A BLOODY SCENE. An Insane Man Tries to Butt His Brains Out in His Cell.

Horrible Gaping Wounds and Streams of Gore. The Desperate Resolve of a Man Who Thought He Was to Be Hung. The encounter between Mr. John Bell and the supposed burglar, at the residence of the former, on Park Wilde avenue, was detailed yesterday. After his incarceration in the county jail it was discovered that the man was really insane; that he came from Chicago on Sunday and boarded at Kucera's hotel, on Thirteenth street, where he was known as Anton Lisksa.

Monday Lisksa continued to show evidences of being a "crank," saying all the time that some one was following him and that he was going to be hung. He declared he could see them building the scaffold through the bars of his window. He slept some in his cell Monday but Tuesday morning was no better. The jailer, Mr. Joe Miller, came down town about 8 o'clock to file a complaint against the man to bring before the board of insane commissioners, and at that time he seemed a little more rational and asked to have some tobacco brought to him.

When the patient railed he talked more sensibly than he had done since his arrest, and said his wounds did not hurt him. Dr. Chadwick said he would recover if the inflammation and erysipelas could be kept off, but it is a bad month for such wounds. Lisksa asked how many had been killed in there, and said he could stand as much as anybody, and if he gets well his word will certainly be made good. He is quite a young man and very hale and powerful. He was resting tolerably well when The Bee reporter left, but Jailer Miller thought it would be a great advantage if he could be moved to a better place, and that his chances for recovery would be greatly increased.

Bill and Bull. Buffalo William Seeketh Ye Company of Sitting Bull. Hon. William F.
