Friday MORNING, Aug. 4.

Weather Report.

(The following observations are taken at the same moment of time at all the stations named.)

Table with columns: Station, Temperature, Wind, Clouds, Precipitation. Rows include Denver, Cheyenne, Salt Lake, etc.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Three more circuits this season. Range sells Sole Leather Trunks. Range sells fine Valises and Traveling Bags.

The Omaha Turnverein will take a grand excursion to Columbus Aug. 10th. The Y. M. C. A. art exhibition announced for Friday evening has been postponed.

The collecting committee only lacks about $600 to complete the fund necessary to make the improvements required at the state fair ground.

Internal revenue collection for July of the present year was $19,127.33, as against $86,995.29 for the corresponding month of last year.

There will be a meeting of the Omaha Labor Protective Union, Sunday at 2 p. m., in South Omaha. The object is to establish a Bohemian branch.

Geo. E. Hubbard, of the U. P. car department, and who was a soldier in the First Ohio light artillery, has just received a certificate allowing him a pension from October 8th, 1862--nearly twenty years.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson desire to return their sincere thanks to the many friends who treated them so handsomely on the date of their silver wedding day, July 29th.

Andy M. Nathan, one of the whitest men that ever waltzed along the "working board," has accepted a position with Mr. Joe. Blake and takes "off watches" with Colonel. This makes three of a kind that can't be beaten.

Jerry Kernan, aged 16 years, while playing with a number of boys Wednesday afternoon, got into a difficulty with one of his playmates, who pulled out a pocket knife and gave him a severe stab in the fleshy part of the left arm. The wound being quite deep and three or four inches long.

A couple on matrimony intent got so full before they were married Wednesday that the responses to Judge Wright's solemn questions were almost inaudible. They staggered off afterward in a decidedly intoxicated state, but it was not the intoxication of wine but of whisky.

The couple who had such a difficult time Wednesday afternoon in finding the county clerk's office for a license to get married, and took an extended tour through the Millard hotel, finally found Judge Chadwick, and they were subsequently made happy by Judge Anderson.

The funeral of the late Wm. Aust will take place from Jacobs' undertaking establishment on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, providing the remains reach here on Saturday; otherwise, should they arrive on Sunday, the funeral will take place from the same place at 4 o'clock.

The match game of base ball at Council Bluffs this afternoon between the U. P. and Council Bluffs team has taken over quite a crowd from this city. On Saturday the U. P. and B. & M.'s. play on the grounds of the former, and on the 12th inst. the Dubuque boys come to this city to play the U. P.'s.

Anton Lisks, the crazy man shot at recently by John Bell and who subsequently tried to butt his brains out in the county jail, is now crazier than ever, and so violent that he has to be kept chained down in his cell. His wounds are rapidly healing but there is no prospect of restored sanity. His brother is expected to-day from Chicago to take him home.

the revenue laws by taking fifty cent revenue stamps from beer kegs and sending them to Omaha brewers to exchange in payment for beer.

It was a very little cooler this would be good sugar weather. The hook and ladder truck was taken to Simpson's carriage factory yesterday for repairs.

The work of grading, curbing and gutting Sixteenth street already shows considerable progress. Miss Quinlan, arrested for stealing a pair of shoes from H. H. Green's store, was sent up for twenty days at hard labor.

A complaint was yesterday sworn out in Judge Benke's court, charging John Shanahan with keeping a fence and dangerous dog. Messrs. Patrick Duffy and J. D. Reynolds will open a new sample room at the northwest corner of 24th and Sixteenth Monday evening next.

In the police court yesterday morning two plain drunks paid the usual penalty and a Douglas street grocer paid a small fine for throwing pebbles at an expressman who was obstructing the sidewalk in front of his store.

A lot of "stuff" was sent to Denver yesterday from the general land office of the U. P. in this city, together with all the bottled samples of grain from the land office at the Transfer, to be used in the U. P. department at the Denver exposition.

The old case of the State vs. Paul and Herman Dietrich, charged with assault with intent to kill, was heard on the preliminary examination before Judge Benke on Wednesday and the two defendants were held to bail in the sum of $500 each to appear before the next grand jury. The authorities say a strong case was made against them.

On Friday and Saturday evening, at Saturday matinee, the eminent comedian, Mr. Joseph K. Emmet, will appear at Boyd's opera house, supported by a company of first-class artists, in "Fritz in Ireland," said to be one of his best plays.

The scenery, as a work of art, is perfect, every scene having been painted from models and sketches taken on the spot. During the play Mr. Emmet will introduce the following song and dances composed by himself: The Bells are Ringing, The Swell, The Cuckoo Song, The Shamrock, Wilhelmrick Straus, The Brother's Lullaby, I Know What Love Is.

The venerable structure once known as "The Western Barn," on the alley on Twenty-third and Comings street is the latest landmark to disappear. This historical old building was one of the first ever constructed in Omaha. It was for a long time the headquarters of the emigrant travel and subsequently a resort for thieves and vagabonds generally. It was the site upon which for many years all the crime in the city was hatched up, and could its dumb walls speak and their ante-mortem statement be reduced to writing it would make a thrilling history.

The barn was built entirely of cottonwood and the roof a light or two ago overweighed the supporting walls and the old monument to pioneer wickedness became a heap of ruins.

An aged Virginian, en route to visit a son in Wyoming, was taken in on a confidence game on Tuesday last, by a runner named Brown, if he is correct in identifying the man. It was only a slight variation of the old story. He gave Brown his money to go to the depot and buy him a ticket for $20. He hasn't seen Brown since, nor the ticket either, and is a long way from seeing his son in Wyoming.

Unfortunately he did not report the case to the police until yesterday but the runner was arrested and for once the right man may meet the reward of his roguery. The Virginian had to seek lodgings at the Hotel de McClure last night for want of funds, so the Virginian and the trickster slept peacefully under the same roof.

Another Victim of the Confidence Check Man. The almost daily occurrence of confidence operations by the bogus check manipulation and the constant efforts of the press to expose the fraud seems to have no effect whatever in preventing the rustics from getting robbed. In fact, the bait of the artificial dodgers is so quickly taken that the verdict of the public now-a-days is that a man who loses his money by the old-time confidence tricks has got just what he deserves.

Only a day or so ago we published the fact of an old farmer from Holt county, Mo., who was on his way to Colorado, turning over all his funds to a stranger at the depot and being in consequence left penniless in this city. Yesterday another old fell a victim to the confidence man. A young farmer from Webster City, who was on the noon train destined to Grand Island, met a stranger just as the train was leaving the transfer. They occupied the same seat in the car and their conversation was on the very subject of confidence tricks, the agricultural man loudly boasting that no "feller could fool him in that way."

When the train drew into the depot on this side the stranger suddenly remembered that he needed twenty-two dollars to make up the balance on some baggage that was waiting his arrival in this city. He too was bound for Grand Island, where he was in business, and if the farmer would only loan him the amount he would leave with him a check as security. Immediately his verdant highness pulled out the money and gave it to the stranger, taking the check in return. The confidence man stepped out, and to his victim that step was the most notable on record, for it covered so much space that the borrower of those twenty-two dollars will in all probability never see the lender again. The check was on the bank of Kansas, for $1,610, payable to J. B. Morgan, and signed by A. P. Riserer & Co. Luckily the farmer had enough money to enable him to reach Grand Island, but the general verdict of those to whom he told his story was that he deserved just what he got, and a man who did not know better how to guard his money after almost daily warnings from the press deserved to lose it.

DIAMONDS DISCOVERED.

A Fortunate Day for Mr. H. W. Yates.

The Long Lost Valise and Jewels Found at Last.

Probability that the Possessor is Not Guilty of any Crime.

The diligent reader of local news will remember an incident that occurred several months ago, while the snow was still on the ground. Mrs. H. W. Yates, wife of the cashier of the Nebraska National bank, returning from a visit to friends in Chicago, was met at the Union Pacific depot at 7 in the evening by her husband with the family carriage. The drive up Tenth street was a rough one and on arriving home Mrs. Yates was startled to find that a small bright morocco hand satchel, containing valuable jewelry, a pocket book containing about $17, and other articles, was missing. The principal articles articles in the satchel were a diamond broochpin, two diamond rings, a pair of diamond ear drops, a pocket book, a gold bracelet, pair of slippers, pen-knife, etc. A reward was at once offered through the newspapers for the return of the property, a diligent search made on the same night and within an hour after the ride having failed to discover the property anywhere along the route. All efforts to obtain tidings of the diamonds were unavailing and the affair had nearly passed out of the mind of the owners.

Yesterday a Bohemian laborer employed at the smelting works, Anthony Kusick, called at Huberman's jewelry store about 9 o'clock, and exhibiting a splendid diamond earring, asked what it would cost to have one made to match it. The clerk saw its value at once and detained the man in conversation until a telephone message could be sent to the city marshal's office. The clerk told him it would be duplicated for about $5, etc., etc. Officer Flynn soon arrived in response to the message and took the man in charge, finding a pair of the earrings in his possession. On being taken before Judge Benke, Kusick said that his sister-in-law, in Chicago, had sent the jewelry out as a present for his little girls. The judge remanded the prisoner to the city jail for further examination, and the man kicked a good deal against being incarcerated, saying that he had been a resident of Omaha for five years, and that they had no right to put him in jail. Mrs. Yates' loss was recalled, and Mr. Yates being sent for at once identified the jewelry, as also did his wife on being shown them.

A search warrant was issued and officers sent to Kusick's house, on Tenth and Dodge streets, where the lost valise and all the property, except the diamond pin and the cash that had been in the pocket-book were found lying on the floor beside a chest and with no attempt at concealment. The officers took the property with them, and Kusick admitted that his little girl had found the valise on the evening of its loss. He had been unacquainted with the customs of the country and being unable to read or speak a word of English had kept the valise for want of an owner. A preliminary hearing was set for the afternoon, but it was thought that the circumstances nothing could be done with the prisoner. The entire value of the property lost and recovered under such peculiar circumstances is between $600 and $1,000. It was a lucky find and it is hoped that the examination may show that Kusick was guilty of any wrong intent, as he had not offered to sell the earrings, but was apparently trying to ascertain their value.

Bright's Disease, Diabetes. Beware of the stuff that pretends to cure these diseases or other serious Kidney, Urinary or Liver Diseases, as they only relieve for a time and makes you ten times worse afterwards, but rely solely on Hop Bitters, the only remedy that will surely and permanently cure you. It destroys and removes the cause of the disease so effectually that it never returns.

Card From a Grand Lodge Secretary. OMAHA, August 3, 1888. To the Editor of this Bee. Sir:--I would like through your valuable paper to call the attention of the public to articles that have lately appeared in public print, setting forth that a corner stone had been laid for the A. M. E. church by an individual styling himself "M. W. Grand Master of Masons," with and by the authority of a grand lodge of such. Now I wish to say on all concerned, and the public at large, that this self-styled individual is well known in the city of Omaha as one who has ever worked and striven to build up castles of honor for himself on some other person's foundation, and has from time to time appeared in positions before the public to which he was not entitled. I therefore deem it my duty to bring this "Great I am" and "Would-be-king" of the colored race to task before the public that he may receive his just and well-earned rebuke for his conduct. Therefore I wish to say to all concerned that there is but one Grand Lodge of colored Freemasons in the state of Nebraska, and it is known as the Widow's Son Grand Lodge, and of which this self-styled individual is not a member. There is but one grand master, and his name is Thomas Carnahan, and he resides at Lincoln. These are facts that are well known and undeniable, and I think they should be sufficient to establish in the mind of the public a just condemnation of any other person claiming said title. The laying of the corner stone was done by a subordinate lodge known as Rough Ashler No. 47, working under what authority I don't know, but it does not belong to any grand lodge in Nebraska, and I am responsible and can prove that there was neither a present grand master or a grand lodge taking any part in the laying of that corner stone and the whole thing deserves just condemnation as being contrary to all usages and regulations. The individual who referred to the church and its officers out of the right of laying its corner stone and made a mockery of all Masonic regulations, as every well informed Mason knows. The laying of a corner stone as a Masonic body is solely vested in grand lodges. Now I would like to know where and when Mr. E. R. Overall became grand master of Masons. Respectfully Yours. W. R. GAMBLE, W. Grand Secretary of the M. W. Widow's Son Grand Lodge of F. & A. M. of the State of Nebraska.

BOUND FOR DENVER.

A Wave in a Woman's Hair, Against Three Sons at Home.

He was one of those fellows the women call a "sweet blonde," his golden hair fell in a natural bang over his marble forehead; one long but graceful lock helped to fringe the tangle in the bewitching sapphire eye, he was in fact a dashing daisy, but he began to feel lonely in the big train which went spinning on to Denver. The man he played poker with had stepped off at the other station to spend a quiet Sunday in the country, and so gratify his family and tone him up for the races and state fair. There were some farmers in the car but they were putting their heads together over cyclones and crops with certain depreciating allusions to the fortunes and failures of their respective scare-crows.

The rear end of the car was gararisoned by a baby and its attendants, and while affording rare opportunities for the study of the human voice and human nature in general, did not promise the finer enjoyment which alone could soothe a poker, according to the view of our blonde. But to his left, and only three seats in front, sat a pretty girl, in fact a girl to whom the blonde could apply his favorite term and say she was "regularly square." She was a blonde, too, but so femininely so that she might be called blondeine. Her ulster was so undeniably too-tin in its cuts and seams that the fair wearer might have been proclaimed a tailoress; her irresistible hat bespoke her to be a milliner; her dress suggested Worth himself, and the interesting waves in her hair assured him at first sight that she could never be called "a maid whom there were none to praise and very few to love." As he leveled his glance at her the blonde was observed to smile faintly, pull up his collar, and his most fascinating twinkle, and saunter up to the blondeine.

With a graceful swing of his left arm his bundles were wafted from the vacant seat in front and with a brilliant smile he feelingly asked: "What good would my game for?" "Your game?" inquiringly. "Yes, my little game of poker just now."

"How could I spoil it?" "Oh, by distracting my thoughts by your beauty." "Oh!" glance and deepening smile. "Yes," he continued, "I was so distracted I couldn't keep the run of my own cards. By the way, the thought 'Yes, a little, but not for pools.'"

"Of course not, I wouldn't play for pools myself. But come now, I believe you'd play with me now if it wasn't for your father's being on the train."

"Well," reflectively, "that needn't always signify." "Many thanks, then shall it be royal casino? Of course you'll win. How could a man keep track of the cards when sitting just opposite you?"

"Oh, beautifully you shall," she murmured. "Are you related to Longfellow?" "Ah! no! can't say I am exactly, but I've read his poems more or less. Expresses exactly my sentiments, especially about love!"

"Does he? How nice! But didn't you ever even see him?" "No, why?" "Oh, because you do so remind me of his best photograph!" With the same words greeted and up, the blonde gazed rapturously at the reply when he was tapped on the shoulder by a buxom widow friend who had her eagle-eye on him. "Well, Jack," she said, "you needn't feel so high-minded as to occupy a whole seat if you have got three sons at home."

The blonde smiled, and nestled in the corner of the seat next to the window and gazed in amiance on the scenery without; when the blonde resorted to the smoking car to soothe his ire and calm his highly-strung nervous system.

The next day father's big overcoat was noticeable in the seat by the blondeine. The blonde, however, had "braided up" and concluded to see the fun through; so, taking the bull by the horns, he scraped acquaintance with the guileless father and proposed royal casino for the three. Then, seated once more opposite the bewitching daughter, he triumphantly played his trump cards. A sigh, a glance, a firm but gentle pressure of her foot. But such a climax was too transcendent. The blondeine jumped up indignantly and clawed his hair, to the intense satisfaction and amusement of the passengers. The blonde retired at the next station, and swore he'd never again wager a wave in a woman's hair against "three sons at home."

Sad Bereavement. We regret to announce the sudden death, yesterday, of Lillie, infant child of Colonel and Mrs. J. P. Martin, from that dreadful disease for children, cholera infantum. The parents will have the deepest sympathy of their many friends in their affliction.

Notice. The "Hawthorn Centennial Exhibition Roof Paint," was patented May 24th, 1881, and letters patent number 241, 893. Any person found or known to tamper with the manufacture of said paint will be punished to the full extent of law. No person has any authority whatever to sell receipts. DAVIS DILEMMA.

A Collector Accused of Crookedness and Arrested.

W. T. Seaman, the book and stationery merchant seems to have more trouble with the crooked work of agents, salesmen, clerks and porters than all our other business men combined. Several times during the past year Mr. Seaman has appeared as complainant in the police court against his employees, and sometimes secured convictions and sometimes not. Wednesday he preferred charges of embezzlement against William P. Davis, who has been in his employ about four years.

It is said that Davis has appropriated about $300 out of collections made by him for Mr. Seaman during the past month. He was arrested and held in $200 bail for examination at some future time. The young man has a great many friends who will await the trial of the charges against him with considerable interest. There seems to be a rancor for embezzlement among clerical employes in the country these days, but whether it comes from a desire to live beyond their means or because they are obliged to work for such small salaries that they cannot support themselves honestly and respectfully, it is hard to say.

George Meredith, Jersey City, writes: "The Spring Blossom you sent me has had the happiest effect on my daughter; her headache and depression of spirits has vanished. She is again able to go to school, and is as lively as a cricket. I shall certainly recommend it to all my friends. Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents." aug-1-d

BETA THETA PI.

The Forthcoming Annual Convention at Cincinnati.

The nearest thing in the way of an announcement that we have seen for many a day came to us yesterday in The Convention Courier, of the fraternity of Beta Theta Pi. In point of typographical neatness and excellence, it is a beauty. It is bound in "pink and blue," the fraternity's well known colors, and is a fitting and courteous of the grand convention which this noble brotherhood will hold at Cincinnati, O., August 29, 30 and 31.

The Beta Theta Pi is a college fraternity of the first magnitude, possessing forty-three active chapters and a membership of four thousand five hundred. Prominent men all over the world are proud to have their names enrolled under her banner, and among those of our own state may be mentioned Hon. Albinus Nance, governor of the state; Hon. A. J. Poppleton, Hon. H. S. Kaley, of Red Cloud, and many others.

The headquarters for the convention will be at the Gibson House, where ample arrangements have been made for the entertainment of all members attending.

A large delegation will, it is hoped, represent Nebraska and there is no doubt but that she will be well represented.

Rejuvenated. 72 PER STREET, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 8, 1881. H. H. WALKER & Co. Sirs:--For twenty years I have been afflicted with liver complaint. I tried various remedies, but received no benefit until I commenced the use of your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, which gave me permanent relief. EDWIN A. CANTOR.

SLAVEN'S ROSEHINE COLOGNE. Made from the wild flowers of the FAR FAMED YOSEMITE VALLEY, it is the most fragrant of perfumes. Manufactured by H. B. Slaven, San Francisco. For sale in Omaha by W. J. Whitehouse and Kennard Bros. & Co.

WANTED--A good second-hand bicycle. Address box X, Central City, Neb. 16-3.

The "Moonlight" at Hanson Park. Hanson park was the scene last evening of as gay and enjoyable party as has been seen within its enclosure for many a day. A party of Omaha's gay young people took possession at about 8 o'clock, and, assisted by headlights, park lamps, an abundance of refreshments and Irvine's magnificent music, the evening passed rapidly and most enjoyably.

The park is in splendid condition, and with the promenades, fountains and rustic benches scattered here and there, a "moonlight" in this beautiful place with fine music and gay companions is a pleasure indeed.

Among those present were the following ladies and gentlemen: Misses Mate Clark, of St. Joseph, Jennie Hardin, of Council Bluffs, Kittie Lowe, Libbie Brady, Elsie Harpater, Lizzie Nichols, of Laramie, Irene Lowe, Lottie Larson, Julia Smith, Marnie Ambrose, Miss Wagner, Edith Van Aernam, Lizzie Caldwell, Miss Freeman, Tracy Mount, Miss E. Sharp, and Messrs. Caldwell, Hamilton, A. W. Saxe, Ludington.

Thayne, Smeaton, Cray, Ben Froe, Marvin, Grahl, Lucien Stephens, Grates, Mozhalt, Woodman, Belden, Pogue, Hoyt.
