CITY CONCERNS.

How They Are Busying the Alder men in Council Assembled.

At the adjourned meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening, an ordinance was passed amending the seems to be no end of the patching up which this ordinance requires to get it so that it will hang together. This time the change was in regard to circus licenses, the sum fixed by the amendatory ordinance being $75 for each exhibition, making for afternoon and evening $150, which amounts to the same as the old ordinance but gets around a legal objection, a fatal defect in the ordinance as it stood before being thus amended.

Judge Jones appeared before the council and suggested that an ordinance be framed in regard to the handling and storage of gasoline, which was deemed as dangerous as gunpowder, and shall be kept outside the city limite. Dr. McKune also testified as to the danger of gasoline, and said that he had no doubt but that many dealers beside himself would be glad to get rid of handling it at all. The matter was referred to the fire committee and city attorney to pre-pare an ordinance if they should deem it best.

Dr. McKune also presented the matter of the change of street by the driving park, and said that the association proposed to throw Chrrry street twenty-four feet to the other O. Gleason. Those present were most hose side, provided its width could be made sixty feet instead of sixty-six feet, the association to bear all the expense. After some talk the matter was re ferred to a committee to make the necessary contract with the driving park association, and prepare the necessary ordinance. Alderman Seidentopf, of the finance committee, reported the following tax levy for 1882:

This report was adopted, it being less than last year's levy which was 24 mills. The special levy of 5 mills for waterworks is yet to be made, however, but only on such property

as is designated by the council as Ald, Siedentopf called attention to the fact that seven or eight families of Russian refugees were in the city, and some citizens wanted the council -There is a terrible spot in the rear of give some of them permits to peddle Mr. Kelley's blacksmithshop and adjacent without a license. It was decided that this would be a bad precedent, and that the licenses should be paid for by private subscriptions, of which the

The matter of appointing an oil in--Peter Tholl, in gazing upon the horri. spector was called up and caused ble condition of the street in front of much talk. Mr. Schoentgen urged immediate action some Tank Line, assured him there would be no action taken that night, and therefore did not want to break their word. Alderman Eicher finally moved that the council proceed to elect an inspector. This was lost, the there being three for and three sgainst. It was then decided to refer the matter to the fire committee and city attorney to report an ordinance at a meeting to be held next Friday evening, to which time the council ad-

Officer Edgar had a desperate struggle with him before he could lock him up, but finally succeeded in getting him into the calaboose, where also was confined a colored man, who was serving out a sentence for drunkenness. Westrop be-came provoked at the colored man and went for him with a chair, and the colored man in turn, seizing a piece of board, batted Westrop over the head, knocking him down, and causing some severe scalp wounds, from which the blood flowed freely. Dr. Hart was called in and dressed the wounds, and the young man was so weak from aldermen and city officials promised loss of blood that he was allowed to be taken home to be cared for there.

THE TABLES TURNED.

A Joker Who Had His Laugh First and His Cry Afterwards.

The other evening one of the wellknown residents of this city, who is a column at the low rate of TEN CENTS PER great joker, fell a victim to one of his LINE for the first Insertion and FIVE CENTS own plots. He was wending his way homeward, and noticed a short distance from him two ladies, accomparied by the husband of one of them, he walking in advance of his wife and her companion. The joker knew the partier well, they being neighbors and the families constantly visiting backwards and forwards. He thought it would be such a good joke thought it would be such a good joke to frighten them a little, and he chuckled right merrily to himself as No.17—Broadway and Marcy street.

As he got close to the ladies he kept in the shadow of the trees, and as they stepped to one side to let him pass, he slackened his pace and kept behind them. They walked very slowly, and though to let him go by, while the husband busied with thought about his railway business stalked on at a fair gait, getting quite a little distance ahead of them. The ladies began to be nervous about the strange actions of the man behind him. He was tollowing them so evidently, while the joker chuckled the more merrily to himself. At last one of the ladies, almost fainting with fright, clutched the fence, and with her companion, came to a dead stop, at which the joker stopped too, and took a lean against the fence a little behind them. This action was followed by a scream, in which a feminine voice managed to get out the words, "John, John, come back! there's a man following us.' John turned, and came back with a hop, skip and a jump, his fists clinched and an Iowa cyclone upon his brow.
