The only thing found on his person to furnish a clue to his identity was a telegraph blank, on which was a portion of a message as received at the Western Union office at Denver, which was in Schultz's own handwriting. This blank was enclosed by the judge to This Manager Bater, who recognized the writing as Schultz's, and it left no doubt as to the identity of the body. Advertisements had been published by Schuitz's father for information as to his whereabouts, from which it appears that his son left Denver for home as expected after a visit to his parents on his return trip, June 9th. The telegraph officials not know ing that he had been at home had traced the half rate ticket purchased by him over the Kansas division of the U. P. to Kansas City, it having been used on the same day it was purchased, May 29th. The next they knew of the unfortunate man was when they saw the advertisements in the telegraph papers. As Schultz had considerable money with him, it is supposed he got off of the train at Julesburg and was seized or enticed away and murdered for the money. His proper. To the westward large snow relations have been notified of the do with him.
