A CIRCUS-RIDER'S LIFE.

The Manner in Which Equestriennes are Trained--Hard Experiences.

Philadelphia Press. "The work of the leading equestrienne is one of the most laborious in the whole range of the circus profession."

The speaker was Miss Lily Deacon, a fair-haired English lady, with the form of a Juno, who arrived in this country from London recently...

"The training necessary to success in equestrian performances," continued Miss Deacon to The Press reporter...

"The best equestrian instructor in Europe--in fact the only one of established reputation--is M. Salmosky of Berlin. He is one of the grandest horsemen in the world, and his great circus includes some of the finest stock on the continent."

"M. Salmosky would send me into the ring with his most spirited horses every day and stand by to direct my exercises. Sometimes I thought I should never survive the terrible discipline, and often thought I should go back to London and content myself with being a second rate rider..."

"After graduating from M. Salmosky's institution and filling a long engagement with his circus, I returned to London and joined Henley's circus, in Regent street, where I was constantly engaged up to the time I closed an agreement with M. E. Franghagh."

"But, as I said before, no one unacquainted with the dangerous preparatory instruction of an equestrienne has any proper estimate of the toil and weariness which her performances represent. One never knows the boundless capacity of the human frame for pains and aches until one has gone into training for circus riding."

"American horses! Yes, you have some fine stock here," said the lady, "but generally I think the English thoroughbred is best for circus purposes. I hear they raise fine horses in Kentucky, and when I go there I shall buy several of the best I can find and send them to England."
