SINGULARITIES.

A Louisiana man is establishing an alga farm. The hides and oil are in demand.

An Ayrshire heifer at Chester, S. C., has never had a calf, but gives a gallon of milk a day.

A bald-eagle was recently caught at Wilmington, Del., while trying to carry off a large Newfoundland dog.

A single grape vine at Cajon, Cal., bears five tons of fruit, the weight of which has broken down the sturdy oak tree on which the vine climbs.

There was a shower of frogs in Grand Rapids the other night. In the vicinity of the Peninsula club house the sidewalk presented the appearance of a miniature frog-pond.

Nine turkey eggs were placed under a setting hen at Green Tree, near Reading, Pa., and one of the eggs turned out with white duck. The lady owning the hen asserts that one of her turkeys laid all the eggs.

An Iowa junta is building an ark 200 feet long, which it will float down the Missouri river in 1883. There seems to be method in his madness, as he intends to charge $3,000 for fire-calf passage.

An exchange says that a bee-keeper in Los Angeles, Cal., has received an order from Australia for several colonies of bumble bees. They are wanted to distribute the pollen of the clover fields, so as to fertilize.

A sand crane killed at Gridley, Cal., recently is reported to have been 88 years old. Suspended by a string from the crane's neck was a silver quarter, with this inscription: "Captured at Fort du Quenne, May 15, 1783. Released at Fort Dearborn, November 17, 1846."

There is at the green house at Mount Auburn cemetery, near Boston, a century plant, or agave, in full bloom. The main stem is over sixteen feet high, with twenty-five branches. The flower spike was sent from the cold-house January 16, when it was just forming, and placed in a much warmer house, where it grew at first, on an average, four inches in twenty-four hours, and so rapid was its growth that it was found necessary to build a cupola over the house so that it might have room.

A baby seal was captured by the captain of the lighter Egypt, at the Cunard dock, East River, New York, last evening. It was a very bright and playful little fellow, weighing about twenty-five pounds. It is said to be entirely different from harbor seals, and is thought to have escaped from some West India vessel. The seal is confined in a dory filled with water, and seems quite willing to be patted and caressed by its numerous visitors.

There is residing near Schrazenburg, N. J., a German named Peter Durie, who was born without hands or arms, but who writes remarkably well, chiefly by using his lips. His ambition backed by a persevering industry, has enabled him to overcome difficulties that seemed insurmountable, and he therefore qualified himself for an active business man. He is nearly thirty years of age, and is a subject of absorbing interest to all who come in contact with him.

Georgetown (Ky.) Times: A cat belonging to John Pod, on White Oak branch this county, had a litter of kittens, which were taken from her and drowned. The cat was determined to have something to nurse, and went to the woods and brought in five young rabbits, which she procured to eat for her kittens.

Getting tired of the rabbits, Mr. Pod gathered them up, took them out into bushes, and gave them their liberty. A second time the cat went out and brought back three of the rabbits, all that she could find.

An unusually fine specimen of the English lily of the valley was lately brought to New York from Jamaica. It bears blossoms nearly all of which are in full bloom. The stalk, about one inch in diameter, is thickly infloated with long leaves for its entire length, about three feet. Nestled in a cluster at the summit of the dark green wrapping is a tiny bud, which immediately群集于花茎的顶端，呈淡紫色。
