KENNEDY'S CONCLUSIONS.

The Coming Inquiry Into the Relations of Capital and Labor.
 Alexander Kennedy, president of the federation of labor unions in Washington, addressed a communication to the chiefs of the various labor organizations throughout the country, in which he gives the substance of a conversation with Senator Blair, chairman of the senate committee on education and labor. The communication is dated the 16th, and reads as follows:
 GENTLEMEN:—I casually met to-day the Honorable Henry W. Blair, chairman of the committee on education and labor of the senate, to which committee has been referred the most important question of the day, the solution of the labor problem. The distinguished senator imparted to me as the president of the federation of labor unions in this city, some very important information and requested that I should convey the substance thereof to the members of the most numerous powerful labor organizations throughout the union. As the facilities for direct communication with those bodies by the committee have not been perfected as yet, the senator expressed the opinion that the plan heretofore presented by the Washington City branch of federation of labor, namely the central committee of representative workmen from all sections of the union at the capital with duly authenticated sub-committee or directory, will prove the most practicable method of obtaining information relative to the present condition of the working classes and their grievances, the causes of labor strike, and practical suggestions as to what will tend to the improvement of their social condition.
 In transmitting the foregoing information, at the request of the honorable chairman of the committee designated by the supreme power, the law-making power of the land, to arbitrate between the aggressive capitalists and the comparatively defenseless laborers, I cannot resist the opportunity to say, as a collaborator of the earnest and devoted men to whom this communication is addressed, that I think it would be wise policy at this juncture to advise all workmen now on strike who rely upon financial aid from the scanty store of their fellow laborers, to resume work at an early day, at most before winter with its increased expense sets in, upon the best terms obtainable from their late employers, and continue to work with such patience as they can command until they see what congress will do in the matter. If it should transpire in this legislative inquiry that the industrial classes are being juggled by the knavish tools of an unscrupulous power, a national strike could be inaugurated within thirty days after the adjournment of congress next March by the unified labor organization of the United States with tenfold more effect than the recent strikes of 150,000 men. If the strike is raised and the hostilities cease for the winter, the funds now devoted to sustaining strikes may be more effectively applied to the economical maintenance of a central committee of vigilant and active workers at the capital in collecting and preparing statistics to sustain any case before congress. I disdain any authority from anybody for the suggestion contained in the above paragraph, but submit it as my individual view of the present situation.
 If You Are Ruined in health from any cause, especially from the use of any of the thousand nostrums that promise so largely, with long fictitious testimonials, have no fear. Resort to Hop Bitters at once, and in a short time you will have the most robust and blooming health.
 It Wasn't Fly-Screens.
 She knew he was the fly-screen man by the samples under his arm, but she held the door open and permitted him to say:
 "Madam, I notice that you haven't a fly-screen at any door or window."
 "Not a one," she answered.
 "You must be overrun with flies!"
 "Yes, indeed."
 "Flies are a terrible nuisance!"
 "And this seems to be a good locality for mosquitoes!"
 "Oh, yes, sir."
 "I presume they bother you nights?"
 "Very much."
 "And a great deal of dust blows into a house not protected by screens?"
 "A great deal, sir."
 "And how many windows have you in the house?"
 "Sixteen."
 "Each one ought to have a half size."
 "Yes, sir."
 "And I can make them cheaper to you than any other man in the business."
 "I think you can."
 "Do you prefer plain green or figured?"
 "Well, I always did like plain green."
 "Very well; I will measure the windows and take your order."
 "You needn't trouble yourself any farther," she quietly replied.
 "What! Don't you want screens?"
 "No, sir. The other day the woman across the street had ten minutes' conversation with a tin peddler, and she had her horse in the air over me ever since. A fly-screen man is about three times as long as a potato man, and I've been talking with you to let her see that she isn't the only lady in town who can put on airs. She's mad as a hen by this time, and now you get out and dust or I'll have my dog run you clear to the river."
 Kansas Coal Bed.
 The thickest and best seam of coal in Kansas is the Cherokee bed, found in Cherokee, Crawford and Labette counties. It extends from the Indian territory, entering the state near Chetopa, and runs across the south-east part of Crawford and enters Missouri. It then passes northeast, and appears to be the same stream affording so much coal in the vicinity of Eganville. Like other strata, it dips to the northwest; but how far it extends in that direction is unknown, as the same peculiarities in the deposits have been noticed, which we have described as existing in the Fort Scott seam. The thickness of the coal is from fifteen to fifty-four inches. The latter measurement was made by the writer at the opening (drift) in the northern part of Cherokee county, about three miles from Cherokee. It is more free from pyrites and other impurities than any other coal in Kansas, and there is seldom any black clay shale between its layers. It cokes well, and is a good gas coal. It is used at the Joplin mines for smelting. At both zinc furnaces, at New Pittsburg and near Cherokee, are many persons who have used the celebrated "black coal" of Illinois, and they considered this the best for smelting the zinc ores.
