MINOR MENTIONS.

-J. Mueller's Palace Music Hall. -Sheridan makes photographs. -The county board of supervisors meet next Monday. -Bloom & Nixon's hall is being put in shape for the coming amusement season. -A marriage permit was yesterday granted William Ritter and Sarah E. Benner. -Joseph Reiter makes snits in the latest styles at No. 310 Broadway. -This evening there is to be a basket social at the Baptist church, and a general good time. -It is pleasant to read of Budwiser Beer in this weather. See advertisement in another column. -Who fired that shot on South Main street Sunday night? That's the unanswered conundrum. -All dog taxes must be paid by September 1, for after that date a penalty attaches to delinquents. -Carpet Sweepers-The Aurora Bissell and Standard Carpet Sweepers at Harkness, Orcutt & Co's. aug-28-29. -At Shill's butcher shop, south Main street, you can always get the best meats at reasonable prices. -The rage on base ball runs high. One enthusiast yesterday pawed his dog to get money to bet on the home nine. -The public schools are to open on next Monday, so the young lads should get all the comfort possible out of this, the last week of vacation. -There was a report on the streets yesterday that Frank Baldwin, formerly city marshal here, had been killed while rail-roading near Leadville on Sunday last. -An accident insurance policy in favor of R. A. Barrett has been found and left at THE BEE office for the owner. -Harkness, Orcutt & Co. have decided to continue the cheap Dress Goods and Ribbon sale eight days longer. Please remember this when looking for bargains. aug-28-29. -Wm. N. Pearson, of Pierce street notoriety, entered a complaint yesterday for Justice Abbott, that his sorrel mare had been stolen, but the bottom dropped out of the case. -Two boys, Creighton and Schokostas, complained of for bothering an old man named Smith, living near them, were discharged yesterday by Justice Abbott, the prosecuting witness failing to appear. -There was not a single police court case yesterday evening, a remarkable fact for Monday morning, especially as there were two big picnics on Sunday, and other things to keep the people stirring. -Posters were yesterday sent forth to hang up in public places, calling attention to the soldiers' reunion to be held here September 28 to 30. The posters are attractive ones, and were the product of an Omaha job office. -This afternoon there is to be another red hot contest between the Leadville and Council Bluffs, the game to be played on the grounds here. Those who enjoy base ball will surely be out in full force to witness the game, which will be an exciting one. -The subscription list of THE DAILY BEE still increases. Every day adds to its number. On yesterday it was higher than on any previous day. A week hence it will be much higher. Council Bluffs appreciates true merit. -J. F. Banks has been lately investing in some new appliances for picture making. He has purchased one instrument especially for taking interior views of buildings, and one for taking moving objects. The latter is so adjusted that the view is taken in one-sixth of a second. -Yesterday an old fashioned monkey appeared on the streets, showing up a hand organ and a man, and passing around the hat for contributions. Mr. Monkey was notified that the city ordinance requires for a menagerie a license fee of $150 a day, which did not leave margin enough above the receipts to make it very profitable, and hence he moved on. -The two editors who are gaining fame by running an educational column, devoted their space largely yesterday to the merits of a patent tonic astringent and aloe cure, and an account of how a little boy named Thompson cut his wrist while trying to get a switch from a tree. Boys as a rule are easily taught to beware of switches, without such a practical example as this. -An attempt was made the other day to play a confidence game on Chief of Police Field. It was the "mining stock" game, but he did not prove a good field to work, for he had already several million dollars' worth of the stock in his desk. If Chief Field isn't able to discern by this time between good and bad, he never will be. -The oil inspector last week tested 31 packages, his week's work, therefore netting him $1.55. Of these 31 packages, 10 were from 150' to 154', and hence were approved. The other 21 packages were condemned as they ranged from 125' to 142', all falling below the required 150'. Though 21 packages were condemned only 1 prosecution has been commenced, that against the Consolidated Tank Line company, which will come up for a hearing Tuesday next. -There are now twenty-four prisoners at the jail, of whom four are females. The prosperity of this boarding house seems to be on the increase. There is one thing which is noteworthy in this connection. Of the twenty-four there is a very small proportion who belong in the city. Nearly all were arrested out of the city. Whether crime is less in Council Bluffs than in the country, or whether the city officers are less active in capturing criminals, is the problem. -About a hundred laborers employed on the Milwaukee & St. Paul road were laid off yesterday, there being no more work for them. About thirty of them complained some because they were not paid off when discharged, and were by no means satisfied to wait until the pay car comes along, which will be about the first of the month. They complained together about hurrying up matters by bringing a suit, but finally concluded it better to wait. The delay is explained on the ground that the pay rolls have to be sent in to headquarters and approved, which takes time. -The organ concert to be given to-morrow evening at the Congregational church will be a musical event which will draw a big crowd. Louis Falk's fame as an organist will make all music-lovers anxious to hear him, and Mr. Pennell and Miss Pennell, of Omaha, will give vocal selections. -Ed. M. Welch, the traveling man, who is being given so much unenviable notoriety as one of the Keosauqua bank robbers, is well-known here, having made regular trips to this city for some years past. On his last visit here but a short time ago, the hotel folk, with whom he stopped, cashed a $170 check for him, as they had done several times before, and it proved all right. He had so many acquaintances and customers on the road, and they had such confidence in him, that had he chosen so to do he could have raised, almost as large a pile by one trip, by bogus checks and loans as he could have got by robbing any ordinary county bank, but for some reason he seems to have preferred to get his swag at one foul swoop. -Beckman, the well-known harness maker looked sad and a tear took a tumble from his eyelid yesterday afternoon as he stepped into THE BEE office to inquire if there was any truth in the report that the new government building was to be located near Geisse's brewery. He has been an ardent advocate for having it located in the park, because he hoped that by Uncle Sam's protection he would not again be attacked by highwaymen while walking through, as he once was. Beckman never got over that exciting incident in his life, but says that if the fellow, whoever he was, will call at his store, 307 Broadway, he will give him good as a harness as there is in the land, and as cheap for cash as anybody will sell it. -One of the justices in company with a constable took a buggy ride the other afternoon down on the bottom, on horseback. They struck some mud and the horse got mired. They had to unhitch the steed and get him and themselves out, and in doing so found to their horror that the place swarmed with snakes. On their return they told their horrible experience, being careful not to shrink the number any. Later investigation proved that they had struck an eel pond. They now talk very little, and smoke much, when reminded of their snake story, and they fairly gasp for breath when reminded that when one gets clear to the bottom he is apt to see snakes.

DANIEL'S DENIAL.

Pool Manager Daniels Says There is no Discrimination Against Council Bluffs. The People Will Not be Very Ready to Accept His Views However. A reporter in Chicago on Saturday last interviewed Commissioner Daniels, of the Iowa pool, concerning the charges of discrimination against Council Bluffs by the recent change of tariff, by which rates to this point were raised five cents, so as to make them equal to Omaha. In reference to a letter recently published from Council Bluffs, in which charges of discrimination were made, the commissioner said that such strictures were unreasonable and unjust. He said that at a conference held between the officers of the pool lines and a committee of Council Bluffs merchants, the latter urged as a grievance that the Iowa pool had made rates identical to either Council Bluffs or Omaha, and asked that the rates should be five cents higher to Omaha. Commissioner Daniels stated that the officers of the lines in the pool had shown the visiting committee that the rates had been made the same to all Missouri river points, upon either bank of the river, and that there could not, in the nature of tariffs, be any discrimination against Council Bluffs, or for that matter, against any town on the river. To prevent any discrimination in favor of Omaha, the Iowa Pacific, he said, had, at the request of the Iowa pool, made the rate westward the same from Council Bluffs as from Omaha; and, after digesting the facts, the committee, he added, were convinced that their first apprehensions were unfounded. Mr. Daniels put the case as plainly as possible for the pool lines' benefit, but no amount of palaver can cover up the fact that there is under the new arrangement much of a discrimination against Council Bluffs. The shippers and merchants here did not want Omaha rates to be raised five cents above those to Council Bluffs, but they did object to having the rate to this point raised five cents so as to be as high as Omaha. If Commissioner Daniels can explain in any interview where there is any justice in raising rates to Council Bluffs without raising rates to Omaha proportionately he would confer a favor, which doubtless is not in his power to confer, however. Or, if he could show in any interview that there is any justice in charging as much for freight brought to this point as for freight brought several miles farther, and across an expensive bridge on which high tolls are charged, then he will give a rest to many who are puzzling over the conundrum. On every ton of coal the raise amounts to one dollar, which the consumer in Council Bluffs will of course have to pay. Will not the commissioner explain a little more clearly why a Council Bluffs consumer should stand a raise of one dollar on every ton of coal he burns? It is poor consolation to tell him that to offset this he can have his ton of coal carried across the big bridge free. He don't want it in Omaha. He wants it here. Is anyone so foolish as to think that the Union Pacific will carry freight across the bridge for nothing? Of course not. Who pays the Union Pacific for it? The pool lines, of course. But who pays the pool lines? They are paid many times over by the raise in freight rates to Council Bluffs. They with a bland smile, insist that the shippers and merchants here shall pay them a raise of five cents on all the freight that comes here, and claim it is fair because they knock off the five cents again on such portion of the freight as crosses the river. They virtually collect in advance full rates to Omaha on freight only coming to Council Bluffs, and then claim to be ungenerous because they do not charge extra, if the receiver wants to ship part of the goods over the river and keep the balance here. A merchant here receiving a ton of freight is charged $1 more than the rate and the pool lines try to pacify him by saying that if he wants to ship 200 pounds of it across the river, they will carry it over for nothing and it will save him ten cents. To pay out $1 extra to save ten cents, would you not also of Daniels' sophistry. Council Bluffs wants only fair play, but it wants that "awful bad."

JUMPING JAIL.

A Desperate and Party Successful Attempt to Depopulate the Calaboose. Two Prisoners Fined by the Door and One Skedaddled. A desperate attempt was made about 10 o'clock last night by the prisoners in the jail to break out. As Jailor Shoutz opened the door six or seven of the prisoners made a rush at him, but he partly shut the door, and so quickly that only one succeeded in passing out. Two others were kept squeezed by the door, and were unable to move either way, and the rest were kept on the inside. The jailer, not being able to close the door, completely held his own while the prisoners struggled until assistance came to the officers and order was restored. The only one who escaped was named Ed. Points, who was awaiting action of the grand jury on a charge of burglary at Leadville. He is about twenty-five years old, and nearly six feet in height, smooth face, and when he escaped he had nothing on but a shirt and pants. The plan was evidently formed during the day with the hope of downing the janitor and making a general outbreak.

CITY COUNCIL.

Important Questions Considered Last Evening. A special meeting of the city council was called last night to consider sundry cases pending in court, in order to stop five or six suits on appeals on condemnations. It was decided to abandon the proposed widening of Main street. The city attorney stated that the Driving Park association did not care to press its suits enjoining the use of the levee fund if the city really intended to use the money for levee purposes only. A resolution providing for putting money in sheriff's hands for condemnation already made was referred to the committee, who were instructed to see if a better and cheaper route for a levee could not be made, and to report at the meeting next Monday night in regard to alleyway in the rear of Dr. Patton's property. The city attorney reported that the original condemnation amounted to $100, of which the citizens promised to pay one-half. On appeal the jury had recently fixed the damages at $250. A resolution was introduced that if the citizens interested would pay the officers the city would go ahead, otherwise the alley would be abandoned. The city attorney announced that in the case of U. R. Scott versus the city, to restrain the collection of his taxes, Scott offered to drop the suit if the city would accept in payment of his taxes a judgment he had against the city. No action taken, the city attorney being informally instructed to fight the suit to the end. COUNCIL BLUFFS SPECIAL NOTICES.
