LOCAL BREVITIES.

—Eleven cars of stock came in on the U. P. at 9 a. m. yesterday.

—The west bound U. P. train at noon yesterday was half an hour late.

—The foundations of the new warehouse on the southeast corner of 9th and Jones, is was being put yesterday.

—The county treasurer is making up the delinquent tax list and intends to collect the same by distress, if not paid immediately.

—The Ninth street bridge is still without a guard rail or protection of any kind on the west side. An accident may be looked for any day.

—A game of base ball Sunday between the Stars and the Slaven nine resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 12 to 8. Murphy did it.

—A special officers car of the U. P. came in on Denver train yesterday with F. A. Nash and wife on board, and left for Lincoln on No, 15 with Supt. P. J. Nichols.

—The fifty-second convention of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, will commence this morning at the Gibson House, Cincinnati. There are quite a number of Betas in Omaha who should attend.

—The office of the secretary of the state board of agriculture, in the new Paxton hotel, will be opened on Thursday, in charge of D. H. Wheeler, Jr.

—St. Barnabas parish school will commence its fifth year on Monday, September 4. Applications for admission may be made to the rector, Nineteenth and Farnam streets.

—A farmer who came in to town Sunday experienced a series of trials with a loose wagon tire that would have ruined the proverbial patience of Job. After being laid out on Farnam street for several hours a new wheel was procured and the blockade lifted.

—David Cole has recently returned from a visit to the Queen Bee Mills, at Sioux Falls, and brought with him a specimen of Jasper stone, which would be fine for paving purposes. The sample is at the city engineer's office.

—The Earnest Workers of the Christian church will give one of their delightful semi-monthly lawn sociables at the residence of Mr. O. F. Stephens on Forest avenue near St. Mary's next Thursday evening. Refreshments will be served and a general good time is expected. All are cordially invited.

—A freight car was broken into in the B. & M. yard Sunday and a couple o boxes of goods belonging to Wiig & Westburg were opened and rifled of a part of their contents. Officer Kasper is looking the matter up but the robbers left no clue.

—The brief reference to an attack made by a young man on a lady passing the 99 cent store recently, is found upon investigation to be greatly exaggerated. The lady filed a complaint in the police court and subsequently withdrew it and paid the costs. The accused is not such a ruffian as was was represented by any means.

—The citizens of North Sixteenth street are very anxious that the contractors for the sewer and curbing on that popular thoroughfare should complete for travel and traffic, one side at least, before the date of opening the state fair. It is probable that the contractors can be induced to do this and the business men can draw cuts to which side shall be put in order. It is a step that is very desirable for all concerned and should be taken at once.

—Remember that this evening Trinity guild give their open air concert on Bishop Clarkson's grounds, St. Mary's and Park avenue. Cars pass the gate as late as 10:20. The Fourth intantry band of twenty pieces will send forth its sweetest strains during the evening. The admission will be taken at the gate and has been put at the low rate of 25 cents, so everyone may have the opportunity of enjoying one of the finest open air concerts ever given in Omaha.

—Messrs. James T. Wilson, Edward Tuttle and Albert E. Ahlquist, all in the employ of the well known firm of Milton Rogers & Son, completed the work of putting on the corrugated iron siding of Clark Woodman's new linseed oil warehouse last week, and Mr. Woodman was so pleased with their work that he gave them an order on Gen. Frederick, the hatter, for a fine hat each, as he put it, "a reward for doing the work on our elevator, the best job of iron work that has ever been done on the slope."

—The Irish-American Social club is out with neat and nobby invitations to their first social party, which will occur Friday evening, September 8th, at Masonic hall. It is the intention of the club to continue their parties throughout the winter season. The gentlemen having the affair in charge promise an enjoyable time to all who attend. When such old and experienced managers of such entertainments as Messrs. J. H. Feeney, J. F. Price, P. J. Tighe, John Reagan, J. I. Nichol, P. L. Hughes, P. J. Carroll, P. Moston and D. C. Shelley, are at the helm, a jolly good time is assured at the Irish-American club parties. Irvine's orchestra will furnish the music.

IN MONTANA.

Visit of the Board of Trade to Helena.

What a Canyon Is—What Sluice Mining Looks Like.

Miscellaneous Resources of the Rich Territory.

Special Correspondence of the Bee.

BUTTE CITY, Mont., August 25.—Eight miles via Gilman & Saulisbury's stage line to Helena. The trip all in all is not so bad as one might think, notwithstanding an all day's ride by stage over the Rocky mountains is to a "tenderfoot" a sensation that is hard to picture. Many of your readers have experienced the true inwardness of a stage coach, but for the benefit of the rising generation who contemplate expending their ideas in order that a wider scope may be concentrated within the focus of their vision, I feel it my duty to show up a few of the

of Rocky mountain travel. Part of the way the roads are good of course, and abound in varied scenery of which one never tires. Then there is the dread and fear of overturning the coach and rolling down into the deep chasms below with jolts, jams, and bruises to which a ride over the

would not have furnished a circumstance. Even the sides of my pencil are lame and sore.

There are but a few places of interest on the road to Helena. The most notable of these are Elk Park, Bison Canon and Boulder Canon. At the Park a broad level field requires an hour's time in crossing and is of no use for agricultural purposes, though it is covered with a scanty growth of apparently dead grass which is now so dry and parched that what few ranchmen were here, have been obliged to drive their herds up the canons to feed and consequently but few cattle are in sight.

The snow is several feet deep throughout this section during winter and passage is often times impossible. On the sides of the mountains a scattered growth of pine trees with bodies as straight as reeds, are the only green objects in view. The bodies of these trees are long enough to make from two to five railroad ties each and are being cut off rapidly by contractors who are furnishing the Nothern Pacific railroad, which is expected to have its rolling stock moving in another year.

BISON CANON.

Having spoken several times about canons, perhaps a more explicit account will aid the reader to form a better idea of them. A canon is simply a pass through the mountain, and is usually traversed by a silvery stream of water. What has caused these breaks to be washed or cut through the huge pile of rocks still remains a matter of conjecture. Suffice it to state that for several miles the road goes through these passes and in them are found the most varied formations. Many of them are truly wonderful. The different forms and combinations assumed by the formation of rocks, which are piled upon each other in an indescribable mass, with peaks and mounds, are seen standing higher by far than the tops of the tallest pines, with a base so small that one would think they would fall. Usually the rocks are formed in layers running horizontally and nicely fitted together with seams at regular intervals, making the whole a master work of nature's hand. Again, and near by, these layers have been turned up edgewise by some cause, and the influence of the atmosphere has caused the rock to "air-slack" and crumble off on the outside. Some thus crumbled are so exactly perpendicular that the centerpiece left after the splitting and falling down of the outside still remains upright, and considering the heighth to be hundreds of feet and the base not more than four to ten feet, one will ask what keeps them up. I noticed one that was not less than 300 feet high, and at a distance resembled so many sticks of cordwood piled end upon end. These canons are very similar, and a further description will not be required. It is eighteen hours ride from Butte to

HELENA.

Here we find a lively town of 5,000 population, located in a valley between two mountains, which was once a very rich gold mine, but has been worked and the town built on the spot. Real estate on Main street is valued at about as much as it is on Broadway, New York. One business lot, 24 feet front, lately sold for $9,000.

The mining interests keep the town up, but no mines are being worked in the immediate vicinity, except is conducted where free gold is found near the surface by the use of an abundance of water. A bulk head is formed and a hose with a 2-inch nozzle is used and when turned on a hole is fairly bored into the ground by the water. To me this process was the most interesting of any I have seen. First, a sluice or ditch of running water is formed and the earth above the "bed rock" is all worked over and washed by hydraulics into this sluice. The water carries all the dirt and whatever substance there is that is lighter than gold away, while the gold is left at the bottom of the sluice in the form of a very fine powder. After a whole claim is worked over the sluice is cleaned up.

These water sluices are often thirty miles in length. They are constructed by the water companies and in them the water is conveyed over small draws and across rocky places, otherwise a ditch is used. Water is sold to miners by the inch, and parties wishing water for irrigation can also buy it of these companies.

THE BED ROCK

is a yellow stone or ledge of rock and no precious metal has been found in or below it. The bed of the Yellowstone river is nothing more or less than this bed rock. When gulch mining is carried on this bed rock is found usually from two to twenty feet below the surface, and many times as close as six inches. Miners expect a rich deposit or strata immediately above this rock.

Within some fifteen miles of Helena there are several extensive mines worked at present, and there is no doubt that the supply of wealth in all these ridges is inexhaustible. At Helena I find a very respectable people, who are a little sore on account of their treatment by the railroads, which have ignored them, and like all towns isolated from the world, are somewhat backward, but received the Omaha visistors very cordially. In an interview with some of the business men, I was informed that Helena did not consider herself tributary to Omaha, nor did she intend to be tributary to anybody. She has wealth, and if Omahogs or anybody else wanted it, (in a crude state) they might build a railroad and get it. The people in meeting assembled, for assistance to secure a connection with the Omaha Smelting works via Utah Northern and the Union Pacific railroads. One extensive miner said he was hauling ore two hundred miles by team, in order to send it to the Omaha smelters, which alone can reduce the refractory ores (combined gold and silver, with lead or zinc) which can not be smelted by the smelters at the mountains.

APPEALED TO OMAHA

I am not favorably impressed with this place as a commercial point, but must dwell on the hospitality of the people, who have tried and are still trying to make a mark in the world. They have a high sea to buck against, as all freight must be transported by teams, and to a tenderfoot these 10 and 12 horse power freight trains, which are composed of two, three or four extra heavy wagons fastened close together by short tongues, with the horses all ahead of the foremost one, are a great novelty.

"Helena has gold and silver, and if Omaha wants any of it she must use her influence to persuade the Union Pacific railroad to extend her road from Butte or a more convenient place, if any, and get it. As for buying goods in Omaha, we expect soon to have the Northern Pacific road in here, and that will connect us direct with Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago," was the answer I received from one of the principal business men, when asking about the feasibility of opening a co-operative communication with the Gate City. The business men of Helena are anxious to get their wares to market, but do not want to buy anything. Helena is the

and her resources are purely mineral, with exceedingly poor advantages. Along the entire road the beautiful mountain scenery continues, which one gets accustomed to after riding in sight of it for several days. The most difficult thing to overcome is the false measures of distance. Objects which appear to be only within "rifle shot" of you, will continue to appear so for a day's drive. The vast expanse of this country is scarcely perceptible, and I find by searching the resources of my vocabulary that the most powerful expressions at my command are very tame indeed, with which to describe it.

WILD GAME

is said to abound here, but our party has not been able to see any as yet. Mr. Driscoll and others, who were in another wagon, saw a Cinnamon bear cross the road only a few feet ahead of them while traversing Bison Canon. Mountain lion, elk, deer, Rocky Mountain sheep, &c., also frequent these parts. The skulls and horns of many are seen all along the road.

WILD FRUIT.

consisting of black, red and yellow currants, and gooseberries of the same colors, red and black raspberries, strawberries (now ripe), service berries, etc., are found quite abundant. This whole county is stocked with the finest springs of cold water one ever meets. Some agriculture is done, with the aid of irrigation, but a dried, sunburned and dusty vegetation makes it a dismal place to abide in. It is purely a mineral country.

THE STAGE LINE

from Helena to Bozeman is a delightful route to take. Messrs. Gilmer, Saulisburg & Co., have put on heavier stock and larger coaches, and the fare, $12, includes sleeping berths, and no extra charge for poll evil antidote. The coaches are fitted up with reclining chairs, finely upholstered with satin, and mirrors adorn the sides and bach. The body is made of new "patent rubber" in order that a six-seated coach may accommodate twelve passengers, with pure Rocky mountain comfort. This is the most popular route of all the territories, and all tourists prefer it to other lines, even in this condition. F.

A CLOSE GAME.

The Bluffs Score Another Victory off the Leadville Willow Wielders.

A good sized audience gathered at the U. P. Base Ball park, yesterday to witness the second of the series of games between the Council Bluffs club and the Blues, of Leadville. The game from beginning to end was closely contested, and at times exciting, particularly on the ninth inning, when the score stood 8 to 8.

The Blues took the bat and kept the fielders busy until three tallies had been made, followed by the Bluffs with two. The second inning resulted like the first, the score at the end being 6 to 5. From the second to the eighth inning the Bluffs sent their opponents to grass in regulation style, at the same time increasing their score until they led by one. On the eighth the Blues again led, making two runs, causing considerable excitement among their backers. The last inning proved the mettle of both clubs. The Blues failed to reach more than one bag, while the Bluffs succeeded, by a wild throw, in scoring and winning the game.

The game on both sides was, with few exceptions, an unusually strong one, considered by many the best played on that diamond.

The clubs play again this afternoon on the grounds of the Bluffs club and to-morrow afternoon on the B. & M. grounds in this city.

Following is the score in detail:

The Leadville Blues will play their last game in this vicinity to morrow afternoon when the citizens should turn out and give the Colorado champions a send-off that they will remember. An exciting struggle for the mastery will no doubt take place, and a contest well worth witnessing will be the result. Both clubs are evenly matched, and it is the toss of a coin for first choice. The game will take place on the B. & M. grounds and will be called promptly at 3:30.

REUNION NOTES.

Recruits Hastening to the Front by Every Train.

The National Commander of the G. A. R. came in from the east yesterday morning and will leave on the 8 a. m. train, special, to-day for Grand Island.

The special train leaving this city at 8 a. m. yesterday composed of seven coaches, six of which were well loaded, leaving but little room for pickups on the road.

Among the passengers out on the noon train, destined for Grand Island were:

Hon. James H. Kyner and wife and Mrs. Fred Ransom; Dexter L. Thomas; F. E. Brown, Adjutant General G. A. R.; H. H. McKoon, Quartermaster of Geo. A. Custer Post, No. 7; Frank Moores, and a large delegation of comrades. Accompanying the party was martial band which will remain in camp during the week.

WHO WERE THEY?

A Phantom Platoon on the South Omaha Hill.

It may or may not have been the time when grave yards yawn, but it certainly was midnight's holy hour and deep silence, like a spirit brooded o'er the still and pulseless world. At least, so George Prentiss would have spoken about it. And so would the residents of south hill, beyond the depot, have thought of it, had it not been for an occurrence both rare and remarkable.

To THE BEE observer, who happened in that neighborhood at the time, it looked like the advance guard of the army of the Lord entering the city. There were about twenty celestial beings, sacred vestals as it were, robed in snowy white, like just so many sweet girl graduates on commencement day. Unlike celestial beings, however, they wore upon their heads large leafy hats, garnished with sheeny and wavy plumes, that glistened in the moonbeams. The night wind toyed with their filmy drapery, and the stray locks from ebon and golden heads floated airily upon invisible wavelets behind. In this strange band were a few dark objects, likens of hades, whom the angels were about returning to the Plutonic shore. And, as if the shore lay north of the depot, and in the direction of the city, thither bent the host their noiseless footsteps. Tenth street, from curb to curb, in solid, impervious and impassive platoon, was occupied by the marching host. Not a sound was heard, not a footfall disturbed the anxious crest of the street dust, so silently, and so ghost-like seemed the body to advance. THE BEE observer tried to interview one of the body, who, like a leader in the land, rode at their head. But he was waived aside, and by him silently glided the platoons. A sleepy clerk in a hotel suggested they were some of the gypsies now camping outside of town. A chatty saloon keeper looked upon them as the advance guard of the prohibition movement, while a young tenor, who was returning home after serenading his beat girl, said they looked like an opera company in distress. A prominent lawyer, then coming up, and seeing the platoon, started for home to tell his wife that a large delegation to the woman's suffrage convention had unexpectedly arrived. Despite these opinions, THE BEE observer aforesaid is inclind to ask who were they?

Mr. Tucker's face is familiar to all who have visited the Metropolitan or Withnell, and we cordially recommend him to the courtesies of the Laramie people, who will find him very much of a gentleman. Mr. Tucker was in Laramie in 1865, when there wasn't a frame house within thirty miles of the place, and was one of the old-time freighters when the mountains and plains were not traversed, as now, by a net work of railroads.
