A Thrilling Romance From Texas Mining Camp.

How a Ventriloquist's Art Served Him in a Crisis

The Dallas Evening Times of September 25 publishes a letter from Carrizo Pass, 600 miles west of Dallas, giving account of a hostile meeting between two miners in the Pecos Mining company's camp, 20 miles north of the Mexican border, last Monday night. The duclists were George Hollenbeck and Wm. Stratton, both New Yorkers, born and MRS. E. J. HARDING, M. D., raised near Palmyra; they were of rich descent of the early Hollanders. They were educated at Cambridge; the former graduated as a lawyer and Electrician the latter as a physician. They came out of college about the same time of Lincoln's first call for volunteers to suppress the southern rebellion. They enlisted and went through the war, serving in Col. Gordon's One Hundred and Forty fourth New York regiment. At the close of the war they Justice of the Peace, Stratton, who repelled him and said motion of the stone make the corn they would settle that little unfinished motion of the stone make the corn difficulty which arose between them at | into meal," JOHN STEINER, M. The affair has caused a great deal of excitement through the camp; but as anything is called fair in such business, no fault is found by the miners with the strategy employed by MONROR, Mich., Sept. 25, 1875.
