THE CAMPAIGN.

We are authorized to announce Senator Van Wyck to address the citizens of the Third district on the issues of the hour at the following named places:

Blair, Friday, October 20.
 Tekamah, Saturday, October 21.
 O'Neil, Monday, October 23.
 Norfolk, Tuesday, October 24.

Gen. A. H. Conner will speak at Arlington Tuesday, October 17.
 Columbus, Wednesday, October 18.
 Central City, Thursday, October 19.
 Each at 7:30 p. m.

Hon. M. K. Turner will speak with General Conner at Arlington, and with Senator Van Wyck at each of his appointments.

Additional appointments will be made in a few days.

Ohio republican leaders mounted the prohibition hobby and rode their horses to death.

MR. VALENTINE'S prospects for that "walk-away" are growing beautifully less in the Third district.

The people seem to be leaving the conduct of the campaigns to the leaders, but something is certain to drop on election day.

VAL should call on Steph Dorsey for aid in his canvass in the Third district. That speech in favor of the star routes ought not to go for nothing.

WHEN will the corporation managers learn that the people will not suffer corporation and ring rule even if the defeat of the monopolists brings with it the defeat of their own party.

ONE THOUSAND representative republicans of Buffalo have signed a paper pledging themselves to work and vote for the democratic nominee for governor. The bugaboo of "regularity" has no fears for honest men.

THE campaign lie sent out by the Boone County News that an effort was made to have the democrats endorse M. K. Turner for congress, puts the editor of that paper in the light of being stupidly and criminally ignorant, otherwise a knave.

THE New York Tribune thinks that the sooner republicans admit that their ticket in New York was nominated by fraud, and base their claims for party support on the excellence of their candidates, the better will be their chances to escape the impending democratic victory.

THE prediction made by the Grand Island Independent that Van Wyck would "not stump the district for the bolter's ticket" at any time, was in fact a truth, but not in intention. Van Wyck does not stand as a defender of bolters, the Valentine rump being the only bolt in the district.

THE Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad has secured the Sonora line, and thereby acquired Guyamas as the terminus. Guyamas is situated on the Gulf of California, some fifteen hundred miles south of San Francisco, and is already spoken of as the San Francisco of Mexico. It contains all the leading Mexican importing houses north of Mazatlan, and has been the entrepot for the whole trade of Sonora, except what little has crossed the border from the United States. The Santa Fe roads will have a perfect port from which to start its vessels to the South Mexican coast and to South America, to California, and to China, Japan and the East Indies. Guyamas is thirteen hundred miles nearer to Australia and New Zealand than San Francisco, and it will undoubtedly make rapid progress in the foreign trade. It will also have a source of profit and business in the extensive mines of Sonora. There are already being developed and their fame will attract a swarm of prospectors now that the railroad is so nearly completed to the coast. The trade between the United States and Mexico is still in its infancy. The opening of the Sonora district is certain to be followed by a growing demand for articles of American workmanship and many products of the industry of the country.

HOWLING PATRIOTS.

Every political attorney of the railroads who is stumping the state for the candidates of the monopolists is howling loudly about "patriotism." Half the speeches in behalf of Valentine and Laird are devoted to the issues of the war. Appeals are made to the soldier element to "stand by their old colors," and the bloody shirt is waved as frantically as if the reconstruction period was not over. But the real issues of the hour are carefully avoided by these gentlemen. They rave wildly over frauds in the ballot in Arkansas, but are silent over the gross outrages on a fair suffrage committed under their very noses. They saw the air frantically over building in South Carolina, but keep a tight mouth when the building of Nebraska voters by the corporations is alluded to.

Bob Ingersoll once said that a patriot is one who desires to do something for his country; a politician one who desires his country to do something for him. Gauged by this test, these howling patriots of the railroads will be forced to take a back seat by Nebraska voters. The patriotism of the country is not now in dispute. The war has settled the mooted question of the relations of the state to the general government. Thousands of Nebraska voters were active participants in the great contest and risked their lives to defend the unity of our country. Our nation now calls upon them to perform other and scarcely less important, though widely different duties. Other issues have sprung up and must be settled, not by the bullet, but by the ballot. The old question of the supremacy of slavery has been laid aside, but the issue whether monopolies are to enslave both whites and blacks must be determined at the polls. Appeals to passions which found their vent on the battle fields of the rebellion are not in order. Discussions of questions which are to-day affecting the rights and liberties of every American citizen are of supreme importance.

The true patriot is one who desires to do something for his country. Let the railroad attorneys paste it in their hats. The politician is one who desires his country to do something for him.

FIFTEEN democratic congressmen elected in Ohio, a gain of eleven, seem to assure the next congress to the democratic party. New York and Pennsylvania will add to this number sufficient number to give the democracy a clear working majority. In the present congress the republican majority is eleven, including the votes of six greenbackers. The next congress will be larger by thirty-four members than the last. The additional seats have been very evenly proportioned among the states carried by the opposing parties.

With Ohio's gain already secured, and grave disaffection in the republican party in several other states, it is difficult to see how democratic supremacy in the lower house can be avoided. In fact it is already a foregone conclusion. And yet, the republican organ of the Union Pacific is screeching shrilly that a vote against Valentine may endanger the republican ascendancy in the house of representatives by assisting to elect Mungler.

There is no reason why either Valentine or Mungler need be elected if the voters of the Third district do their duty. But if worst comes to worst an honest democrat is in every way preferable to a dishonest republican. If there were no other alternative, as between Valentine and a reputable, honest and capable democrat in accord with public sentiment on the anti-monopoly issue, the choice would be an easy one. It would be far better that a district in Nebraska should be represented by an honest democrat in a democratic congress than by a disreputable and a dishonest republican.

Public interest ought not to be allowed to clash with the interests of party, but where it does party success must go to the wall. That is the lesson which political events this fall are trying to teach self-constituted leaders. Will they accept the lesson in Nebraska or defiantly brave the consequences?

LAYS in the last session of congress a bill was introduced by General Rosecrans, of California, in reference to the regulation of railroads and their rates and fares. A few days ago the general was interviewed as to its character and the objects which he believed would be attained by its passage. He stated that the measure is intended to prohibit all unjust discrimination in freights and fares upon the lines of railroads which are subject to government control and to punish violations by the corporations of laws enacted by the national legislature. General Rosecrans in the course of the interview stated that they could be no question of the right of congress to legislate on roads subsidized by the people monies and that the main object in the way is the committee on railroads which he knew to be constituted in the interests of the corporations. He made the same charge against the judiciary committee which regulates the question of the immense land grants. "I tell you," said the General, "that the people do not fully realize the immense power of these corporations as exercised at Washington. While I am not opposed to railroads as common carriers and beneficial institutions to the country, I feel assured that the time has arrived when they must be placed under legitimate control. The railroads have a larger influence upon the value of land than the currency, and railroads were unknown to the framers of the constitution; yet currency is controlled by the constitution, and why should not the constitution be so amended as to control the railroads? The benefits of quick transit and cheap transportation belong to the people. I do not make war upon the railroads, but I am of the opinion that they should be compelled by law to grant cheap fares and transportation to the people." General Rosecrans' intentions are undoubtedly good. His bill is worthy of the praise as far as it goes. But it stops short of what the public demands. The right of congress to regulate every mile of railroad in the United States is no less clear than its power to regulate the land grant roads which is but a portion of our entire railroad system. State regulation will fail to bring the universal relief which is needed against the selfishness and greed of the corporation managers and national regulation must step in and complete the unfinished job.

LAND swindling, homestead robbing, back pay grabbing, census fraud, concocting, the advocacy of star route jobs and of the river and harbor steal, are a few extracts from Valentine's record which cannot be explained away by howls for "the old flag and the dear old republican party." The old flag disgraced by being championed by such a character and the sooner the dear old republican party relieves itself of such dead weights the better it will be for all concerned.

HOWARD CARROLL, who has consented to be offered up on the altar of republican defeat as congressman-at-large in New York, is the son of a New York volunteer colonel. He was educated at Hanover, Germany, and upon the completion of his studies acted as Washington correspondent of the New York Times. While in Washington he paid court to the youngest daughter of the millionaire congressman, John H. Starin. He will condescend with Secretary Folger after the November election.

BEN BUTLER has accepted the democratic nomination for governor in Massachusetts, and is marching straight towards the state house in Boston. His letter of acceptance, somewhat condensed, pronounces him as in favor of Ben Turner, and any reforms which may be suggested by both parties.

THE WILB'S ROBBERY, or recondence of THE BEE. WILB, October 11.—Last night some one burglarized A. G. Mallatt & Co.'s store in this place and got away with $240 in money, and from the appearance of things they were old hands at the business.

The store is in the brick block on the corner of Main and Third streets. The safe is a large size Mosler & Co. safe. The burglars did not waste any time with the lock, but cut a square hole through the back of the safe, 10 1/2 by 8 inches, through which they gaited the safe, taking the money and a fine revolver, but left one small revolver lying in the safe. It was too small to suit them. The work was done neatly, and showed they were in no particular hurry. They must have been well supplied with tools. They forced an entrance through the front door with some tool made for the purpose, forcing the lock and breaking the catch. When they went out they had closed the door and put a bunch of paper between the door to keep it shut.

Suspicion rests on a fellow who has been loafing around town for some days. He is not to be found this morning, but will be looked up very soon. The most mysterious part of this business is that no one was aroused, as a clerk sleeps in the next store (a hardware), but knew nothing about it until this morning. If anything further comes to light will inform you. D.

To the Independent Voters of Cuming County.

A meeting of Alliance men, greenbackers and anti-monopolists, and all other independent voters, will be held at De Witt school house on Friday evening, October 13th, to confer together upon the political aspect of the fall campaign and to outline a course of action for the independent voters of Cuming county. A full attendance is urgently requested.

MARY CITIZENS.

THE great value of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all diseases of women is demonstrated by every day experience. The writer of this had occasion to step into the principal Pharmacy of a city of 140,000 inhabitants, and on inquiry as to which is the most popular proprietary medicine of the time, was answered, that Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound occupies a most conspicuous place in the front rank of all the remedies of this class now before the public. —Journal.

FREE PASS POLITICS.

Railroad Pasteboards Liberally Distributed to Carry Cuming.

Valentine's Defeat in His Home County a Foregone Conclusion.

The Contest Narrowed Down to Turner and Mungler.

Consequence of THE BEE.

WENNER, Neb., October 11.—The citizens of the third district have heard from all the counties in this district except Cuming, and your correspondent thinks it only proper to let the people know what is going on in the blessed (?) Cuming, where our Val hails from. To start from the beginning your observer has to state that E. K. Valentine and his strikers committed on the people the greatest fraud ever known before. More than a year ago our county was re-districted, that is, new voting precincts were established and more in number, which were approved by the county commissioners. In these new precincts causes should have been held and representatives elected to the county convention. But our Val and his crew did not believe they could succeed so well in dealing with a number of new men, so they concluded to let things go on in the old way, which they did. The people in general, voters and taxpayers, disgusted as they were, did not attend, and let matters take their own course. Consequently,

THE DELEGATION consisted of a fine stock—two postmasters, one ex postmaster, one ex county clerk, William Stuefer, the king of the Dutch, and one man drunk, &c. A nice outfit they all made to attend the Fremont convention. They were well qualified to hold such a convention as the one held at Fremont. Nobody from our own county convention attended, as they knew it was of no use to do so. But we did get a great sensation in the shape of a dispatch from Fremont which ran thus:

To Mrs. E. K. Valentine, West Point, Neb.: Mr. Valentine nominated by acclamation. (Signed) FRED. Fred. is the same chap who was sent to the Crow agency as utler, and who is the right bower of his honor, E. K. V., and Fritz was the first to send the news. The people were thunderstruck for some time till another message came over the wires, and then they began to breathe more easily. When they heard the news that Mr. M. K. Turner was nominated at the same time.

THERE WAS REJOICING in our camp and Valentine's strikers returned home like dogs with their tails between their legs. The West Point Republican stock went down fifty per cent and as soon as Mr. Turner is elected it will go down another fifty. We want to know who will teach us when the Republican is gone. As to our Val and the voters of Cuming county all I have to say is Mr. M. K. Turner will get a good majority over E. K. Valentine, but I think Mr. Mungler will carry the county. But then the stalwarts, the same Valentine crew, made our county a democratic one at the last election through not nominating the right man for county clerk.

In a number of THE BEE you gave VALENTINE'S PROGRAMME, but it is not precisely the same as your observer had the opportunity of learning. The Valentine programme is as follows: Valentine for congress (and finally for the senate); Judge Barnes to wear a pair of congress gaiters; C. C. McNish for district judge; Capt. Butler, of the land office at Norfolk, a nice little seat at the state capital; Wm. Stuefer (ex-county clerk) is to make the poor emigrants happy at the Norfolk land office; and lastly our Peter-Peter Schwonck, the unlicked census man, a good, strong, fat office in the United States store somewhere. And our election with Yankee notions through the country. But the Cuming county producers, merchants and mechanics, and all taxpayers in general, want something different from that. They do not want a representative who is connected with the B. & M. and U. P., who will sell the people to the monopolies. They do not want a man who uses a free pass and who is able to Awkward Mistake About a Wedding.

A very awkward mistake is reported to have been made at St. George's church, in Southwark, a few days ago. A deaf and dumb lady and a foreigner with but a smattering of English presented themselves for the purpose of being married. To neither of them was the service, under the circumstances, very intelligible; and when owing to the pew opener's mistake, the lady was solemnly "churched" instead of wedded, it is not surprising that they should have retired in ignorance of the fact and under the impression that they were thenceforth man and wife. When the error was discovered the marriage hours had elapsed and it was too late to perform the proper ceremony according to law. It is satisfactory to hear that the interesting couple have been communicated with in order that the unfortunate blunder may be rectified as soon as possible.—St. James Gazette.

DILLON IN DEMAND.

The Two New Omaha Hotels as Rival Claimants.

The Millard Comes Out Ahead and Gets His Autograph.

There has been quite a little feeling stirred up between the two rival hotels in this city in connection with the arrival of Sidney Dillon and Fred Ames. It was announced in one of the morning papers Wednesday that the party had engaged rooms at the Paxton and would make that their headquarters during their stay here. This struck the Millard folks all in a heap as they had confidently expected Mr. Dillon to be great at their house, which is partly backed by capital of U. P. men, upon the strength of which it was, probably, made the headquarters of the republican state central committee at the opening of the recent state convention. The U. P. folks also put a ticket office, equipped in fine style, in the Millard, and is apparently doing all that is possible to maintain the first place in the ranks of the best hotels in the city.

It may be presumed that there was a grand kick when their own paper announced that Mr. Dillon was going to the Paxton, and at any rate, when the train arrived from the east the visitors were taken to the Millard, where they were given two of the finest rooms in the house, en suite, and had a grand private supper in the ordinary, which the hotel folks say couldn't be beaten in New York City. It was now the Paxton's turn to be paralyzed, but they stood back on their dignity, and after holding the rooms till 9 o'clock lodged some one else in them. They say that the rooms were engaged (by whom is not stated) and that they could make the party pay for them if they desired, but that fact will not be taken advantage of.

THE MANNERCHOR.

A Delightful Entertainment Last Evening.

Despite the inclemency of the weather quite a respectable gathering of our musical German population assembled in the rooms of the Mannerchor society in Poppleton's block last evening to pass away an evening in the jolly way which is peculiar to the Teutonic race. The principal attraction was the announcement that Prof. Rohrs, the celebrated violinist, would give one of his exquisite solos on the violin, and those who were fortunate enough to be present, were amply rewarded for the inconvenience they had incurred in turning out on such a night as last night. The piece the professor handled last night was "Heimat's-K'ra-ge," which was received in the most enthusiastic way. The Mannerchor society also gave two excellent renditions, the pieces selected being "Der Wald," by C. Haese, and "Serenade" by Hirtel. Both pieces were exceedingly well received. The remainder of the evening was very pleasantly whiled away in "tripping the light fantastic" to the excellent orchestra under the leadership of Prof. Ravan. The Musical Union orchestra has good reason to congratulate itself on its recent valuable acquisition in the person of Prof. Rohrs.
