BURIED TREASURES

Irishmen Skirmishing For One of Their "Funds."

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

New York, October 22.—Subscribers to the skirmishing fund met again to-day. The proceedings began with reading an article in The Irish Nation in reference to the "Belmont fund." Joseph Cromer suggested if the word "Belmont" was taken out and "skirmishing" substituted, the same article would apply to the skirmishing fund. Reference was made to a telegram sent Sir Evelyn Harcourt, for which $117 was charged. It was stated only $12 had been paid for the dispatch. Many letters were received from residents of Wilkesbarre, Scranton and other cities of Pennsylvania stating the accusations made by Luke Clark at previous meetings were in the main correct. The question of the trustees' report was considered. It was suggested that as these trustees were receivers of other funds, it was likely they would bring forward the amounts of these other funds to show the good financial standing recently made. Captain Spearman suggested that only two classes of people had been described to the skirmishing funds: "fools who had given their money and cranks who wished to know what had been done with it." It was suggested at the next meeting to elect permanent officers. Reynolds, of New Haven, referred to as a gentleman of good financial standing and "a trustee who had a reputation to lose," is to be asked to be present at the next meeting and give a detailed account of his trusteeship of the skirmishing fund.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

New York, October 22.—The six day go-as-you-please pedestrian race for the championship of the world and $4,500 in stakes, of which the winner gets 70 per cent, and the man 20 per cent, and third man 10 per cent, began to-night at 12 o'clock in Madison Square Garden, before a great crowd of people. The starters were Charles Russell, George Hazel, Pat J. Fitzgerald, John Hughes, R. B. Vint, Geo. D. Noraman, Frank Hart, Daniel J. Harby and The Buffalo Post man, P. J. Hancock. Hancock, the champion, Myer, short distance runner, and C. Brown, of the Turf, Field and Sports, are the judges, and Hamilton Barbey is referee. The contestant will receive any portion of the gate money unless he scores 925 miles; if any one man completes 925 or more he will receive all the gate money less expense; if two complete the distance the winner takes two-thirds of the gate money, the second man one-third; if three or more make 925 miles, the winner takes 50 per cent, the others in proportion to their number and position of finish. At start-off Hart took the lead followed closely by Hughes. The first lap made by Hart in 6 minutes 16 seconds; Hughes second, Rowell third, Fitzgerald fourth. Rowell and Fitzgerald traveled together. At 1 o'clock the score showed Hazel, Hart and Hughes had each covered eight miles and five laps; Rowell eight miles, two laps; Hart eight miles, three laps; Noraman eight miles, two laps; Fitzgerald eight miles, three laps. The best record for the same time was made by George Littlewood, nine miles and 135 yards.

QUAKER BILL.

Celebrating the Bi-Centennial Landing of William Penn.

Interesting and Impressive Ceremonies at Chester and Philadelphia.

A Poem Written by Whittier Sixty Years Ago Produced and Read

Together With an Eloquent Letter From the Quaker Poet.

A Friendly Celebration.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

CHESTER, Pa., October 22.—A large gathering of the Society of Friends assembled in the meeting house in this city this afternoon to commemorate the landing of William Penn in this place 200 years ago. John M. Broomall, of Medina, Ohio, opened the exercises with an eulogy on Penn. A letter from John G. Whittier was read, in which the poet says: "It is well that the Quakers should commemorate the landing of the founder of Pennsylvania and the great founder of their faith on the pleasant shores of Chester 200 years ago. An event so picturesque in its surroundings and circumstances, so important in its results and influences, is a subject worthy of a poet's pen or painter's pencil. I should feel it were possible for me to put into fitting metrical form the thoughts and emotions which it awakens, but the burden of years begins to rest heavily upon me; I shrink from the effort of handling such a theme. The memory of William Penn is secure in its grand outlines and unaltered purity. He stands and will forever stand with ages, statesmen, philanthropists, of whom the world of their day was not worthy. He lived and thought centuries in advance of his contemporaries, and slowly but surely generations since have been approaching the moral and political standard which he set upon the shores of Delaware. Looking over some old papers recently I found some verses written by me when a boy of 16, nearly sixty years ago. Of course the circumstances under which they were penned alone outside them to notice, but I venture to send them as the only response to your request which I can make. "I am truly thy friend, "JOHN G. WHITTIER."

"WILLIAM PENN."

The tyrant on his tilted throne, The warrior in his battle dress, The soldier's triumph never there— Of justice and of righteousness.

Founder of Pennsylvania, thou didst feel it when thy word of peace Smooth'd the stern captain's swarthy brow, And hid the braided war dance cease, O! Shuykill's banks no fortunes frowned, The peaceful cot alone was there; No death-shout swept the Delaware.

In manners meek it precepts mild, Thou and thy Friends serenely taught The savage huntsman, fierce and wild, To raise to heaven his erring thought.

If we unlike the bloody band, And princely Montezuma's land, And rind around his pathway shed,

With hearts that knew not how to spare, Didst hail the milder means to try; The Indian's sword alone was there— The Indian's choice to yield or die.

But then, meek Pennsylvania's sire, Unlearn'd alone, from terror free, Taught by the heathen council fire The lessons of Christianity.

Founder of Pennsylvania's state, Not on the blood-stained fields of fame, But with the wise, the good, the great, Thy word shall place thy sainted name.

Other poems were read. An address was also made by Alfred H. Lane, president of the Pennsylvania Peace society.

Services in all the churches in the city were in keeping with the occasion. To-morrow the bi-centennial of the landing of Penn will be fittingly celebrated.

AT PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, October 22.—The celebration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Pennsylvania by William Penn was opened to-day with religious services in the churches of all denominations. To-morrow afternoon 10,000 Germans will assemble in front of Independence hall to sing patriotic songs. At midnight the State House bell will announce the landing day. Preparations for the observation have been made on an elaborate scale. Wednesday, trades day, will be given over to a parade of the industries of the city and state. In the evening there will be a street representation of scenes in the life and career of Penn. A reception at the Academy of Music closes the ceremonies. Thursday is Knights Templar day; Friday, military day; 7,000 Templars and 20,000 troops are expected to parade. Regattas, chorus singing, paraded bicycles, unveiling of statues, etc., make up the other exercises.

HOME THRUSTS.

Hon. M. K. Turner Gives the Monopolies a Telling Blow.

Senator Van Wyck Delights a Large Audience.

Home and Foreign News of the Day.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

BLAIR, Neb., October 21, 1882.—The Republicans of Blair and vicinity held a meeting in Germania hall last evening. A large and enthusiastic audience was in attendance, and everything passed off harmoniously. Hon. Lorenzo Crouse presided at the opening of the meeting with a few remarks upon the issues of the day. He introduced Hon. M. K. Turner, the republican candidate for congress in the third district, who spoke a few minutes on the transportation problem, touching particularly upon the relation of the railroad companies to our business and on politics showing from the evidence adduced before the extra session of the legislature how our highest officials are tampered with and influenced. Instances of discrimination were referred to and the system of favoritism as common with railroad companies denounced. Reference was made to the decisions of the supreme court concerning the location of unpatented lands, and the effort made by Senator Van Wyck to compel land grant roads to take out patents. Mr. Turner said that officers of the government were the paid agents of the people and should serve them and record their will, and not work for mere private interest. He commended the speech of that congressman who said that a bill under consideration proposed to sell property of the United States for $2,000 when he was ready to draw his check for it for $500,000, thereby thwarting the deal and pledged himself if elected to act in a like spirit. Mr. Turner's remarks were well delivered and loudly applauded. Senator Van Wyck was then introduced by Mr. Crouse and for an hour and a half delivered the address with one of the finest displays of wit, wisdom and earnestness that it has been our pleasure to listen to in a long while. His masterly presentation of the steel and lumber monopolies in congress, which he could do so effectively upon the tariff question was well received by the audience. He also spoke on the river and harbor bill, the leasing of school lands and the printing contract frauds. It is impossible to do his speech justice except by giving verbatim report which may be published hereafter.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

YOUNG MEN

MARRIAGE.

Married persons or young men contemplating marriage beware of physical weakness. Loss of procreative power, impotency or any other disqualification speedily relieved. He who places himself under the care of Dr. Fishblatt, will find confidence in his power as a gentleman, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

ORGANAL WEAKNESS

Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affection, which renders life a burden and marriage impossible, is the penalty paid by the victim for improper indulgence. Young people are apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the fearful consequences that may ensue. Now who that understands this subject will deny that procreation is not an act by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent. Besides being deprived of the pleasures of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both mind and body arise. The system becomes deranged, the physical and mental powers weaken. Loss of procreative power, nervous irritability, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, constitutional debility, wasting of the frame, cough, consumption and death.

A CURE WARRANTED.

Persons trained in health by unlearned pretenders who keep them trifling month after month, to King's poisonous and infectious ointments, should apply immediately.
