COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Wednesday Morning, Oct. 25.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: 25 cents per week. By mail, $1.00 per year.

Office: No. 7 Pearl Street, Near Broadway.

MINOR MENTIONS.

—J. Mueller's Palace Music Hall.

—One plain drunk named Cameron was given the regulation dose yesterday in police court.

—The new meat market of Shultz & Muller, 709 South Main street, generates heat of meat and prompt attention.

—A fine assortment of Boots and Shoes, sufficient to supply the demands of all, at George Blaxin's south Main street.

—Permits to wed were yesterday given Norman McMullin and Mary E. Bamford, of Washington township; also Matt Christensen and Ida M. Larsen, of Council Bluffs.

—Arrangements are made by which during the session of the grand lodge the public library will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night.

—Cheap Railroad tickets to all points, Bushnell, five doors north of postoffice, sells them. Entrance, Main or Pearl streets.

—Joseph Rose, the upper Broadway cooper, desires to purchase 50,000 hoop poles. He also wishes to employ ten extra coopers. Write to or inquire at his cooper shop.

—Roxo Robinson, charged with using obscene language toward Miss Le Fleur, of dog out fame, was yesterday discharged, the medians not appearing against him.

—Mollie Wallace and her worthy boarders were yesterday arraigned for being solid doves. The landlady was fined $20.00 and the other $14.00 each.

—The boys band of the St. Francis parish will play each night during the Catholic fair at Dohany's opera house. Fair commences the middle of this month. From present indications it will be a grand success.

—Strangers while in the city should not fail to visit H. E. Seaman's Paper, Books, Stationery, Art and Toy establishment, where they will be made welcome.

—Loren Peterson was arrested yesterday for assault upon Hans Hansen, but the evidence showed that Hansen was in Peterson's house and refused to leave, whereupon the latter threw him out. Peterson was accordingly discharged.

—Joseph Reiter makes the Finest Suits in the latest styles, at the lowest possible prices. His merchant tailoring establishment is at 310 Upper Broadway, Council Bluffs.

—The old reliable insurance company, Phoenix of Hartford, has lately placed their business for representation in the agency of Odell & Day. Office in Board of Trade rooms of this city.

—One more cell, or more properly called, hole, has been added to the city calaboose. A portion of the police headquarters has been partitioned off, with no window or ventilation except a little transom over the door, and that is to be made tight so as to let no air in and very little light. The old calaboose can hardly be made any more dismal or dirty.

—The Chautauque club, formed mainly of the young people of the Methodist church, held its second meeting Monday evening, at the residence of Rev. Mr. Armstrong, the pastor. There were twenty-five present, and the club promises to grow in numbers as well as intellectually.

—In the police court yesterday some of the numerous disorderly cases were disposed of. George Gerspacher, John Smith, Al Wiedner, and Lee Johnson pleaded guilty and were fined $9.00 each, including costs. WILSON'S WOE.

Some of the Experiences Which a Poor Boy Passed Through at the County House.

The attention of a number of citizens on Upper Broadway has been drawn to the case of a young man named John Wilson, who is sick in body and scanty in purse. Young Wilson is only eighteen years of age, and is a painter by trade. He has of late been quite ill, and being without friends or money, some of those knowing the facts about him, secured the attendance of the city physician, Dr. Bellinger, who prescribed for him. Young Wilson had not even a room, his resting place being a rude cot in the rear part of a paint shop. Aside from the bareness of the place, and lack of comfort for a sick man, there was the constant pain and aggravating his ailment constantly. Some of the citizens in that vicinity finally had him removed to the county poor house to be cared for, and thither he went last Thursday. On Monday he returned, and his story of the treatment he there received is such as should be investigated by the authorities, for if true a reformation is needed there. No one can look at the boy, however ill, pale and trembling, without seeing that his sickness is no sham. A portion of the time he is able to shuffle about on his feet, but is evidently unfit for any work, and is in need of care and medical treatment. He tells in a very honest sort of a way that he had rather die in the streets than be used so like a dog as he was there.

Instead of being given any medicine or being shown any care, he says he was told that he was not sick at all, and by threats made to get out of bed and work, doing chores and even chopping wood. This is the reason he assigns for having made his way as best he could back to town. His very appearance, as he came out of his barren lodging place, and gets cold food to sustain life, is enough to excite sympathy from almost anyone. He is without relatives here but has a brother in Denver and a sister in Chicago, but he says they are not able to help him. His father lives in Portugal, and he has written him for help, but it is a long distance from here there and back and in the meantime he has no means to help him. He lived in Massachusetts for two years, and came here about six months ago. For the past three or four months he has only been able to work a portion of the time, his strength failing, and again and other ailments keeping him confined to his bed about half the time. There are several here who vouch for the fact that the boy is industrious and seemingly honest and straightforward, and they readily believe his story of his treatment at the county house. Arrangements are now being made to get him into more comfortable quarters, and to provide for him more liberally. With a little care now it is thought he can speedily be restored to sufficient health and strength to enable him to do some light form of work, if he can find some to do. He seems intelligent and willing to work, but here among comparative strangers the boy sick and penniless, has a hard lot.

More universally recommended than any proprietary medicine made. A sure and reliable tonic, Brown's Iron Bitters.

RAILROAD RACKET.

A Nervy Woman Defends Her Home-stead with a Revolver, and Holds a Gang of Men at Bay.

Yesterday a construction gang on the B. & M. road were busy laying a switch in the southern part of the city, and in attempting to lay the track across the corner of a residence lot, there found an obstacle in the way, in the form of a woman, named Mrs. Claughessy, who lived there, and not only claimed the place as her home, but armed with a revolver proposed to maintain complete possession. In vain the railroad men claimed that they had the right of way, and that the law was on their side. There she stood, and gave them distinctly to understand that the first man who crossed the line would be a fit subject for Coroner Paul. Chief Field was sent for in hot haste to suppress the riot, but on learning the state of things advised the railroad authorities to make complaint against her and get a warrant, if they had the right of way, as they claimed. They drew off and laid their track elsewhere, but ran it across the rear of the lot on which stands the Center street school house, cutting off about fifteen feet of the lot. Whether they have the right of way there or not is a question, but in any event it damages the school property to a great extent, and if the track is to be used much the noise, smoke, danger from accidents, etc., will render it almost unfit for school purposes.

Sherman on Intentional Errors.

From The Los Angeles (Cal.) Herald.

A gentleman from this city recently wrote to General Sherman asking if it is a fact that General Stoneman failed to sustain the honor of the Union army at Macon. He received the following reply:

Of course it is not the fact. But, if I undertook to correct errors made purposely to deceive, I would have to leave this world by the first train.

Miracle Diet.

"Your Spring Blossom is a success. I certainly think its effects are wonderful; all the dyspeptic symptoms I complained of have vanished; my wife is also enthusiastic in praise of it; she was debilitated by hotches and pimples on her face, and had a continuous headache. She is all right now and all unpleasant eruptions have gone. You may refer any doubting parties to me."

Boston vs Chicago Shopping.

New York's Boston Letter in the Star.

I was not a little amused to hear an observing feminine tourist from Chicago speak of a Boston peculiarity which she called "the shopping bag rage." She said that in no city had she ever seen anything like it; that in every home-car that she had entered for the fortnight that she had been in Boston, nearly every woman had in her hand a leather bag or basket crammed with small shopping packages. I asked her what the Chicago women did when shopping, and was informed that they didn't carry their own packages, but had them sent!

"Suppose you go about to several places," I inquired, "and buy a paper of pins here, and a piece of braid at another place, and—"

"Oh, but we buy everything at one place, from an India shawl down to our boots and shoes and needles and pins and ribbons," I was at once informed.

When I told this to a born and bred Boston woman, she sniffed her little, straight, Beacon street nose at the usual Chicago Boston angle, and remarked, "Our shops are not variety stores." When in turn I basely repeated this to little Chicago with a good imitation of the Boston manner as I could give, I was met by the flat response, "That's a good way out of it; little Boston would be miserable without an excuse for carrying a shopping bag!" This is only a small spark of the fiery feud that is kindled on occasions when Boston and the West used to meet but to squabble. Of late years not only has the west come to thoroughly appreciate this city of the east, but the east has grown in a certain kind of appreciation for the west. I say a certain kind, for I do not think that the east—Boston, at any rate—completely recognizes the cultivation that exists in the great western cities amongst individuals, if not so much in general society. One is constantly hearing here such remarks as, "Well, that is western," applied to some entirely personal peculiarity of the individual. Perhaps it is of dress, perhaps of manners, that this criticism is made, but it is in no more applicable to the west generally than to any other section of the country.
