All men entering on foreign stations, except "domestic service certificate men" are to be entitled for the cruise. The board also fixed the complements of all classes of vessels.

It is proposed the president will return to Washington Thursday. J. H. G. COVING, chief of Iowa, has been appointed chief clerk of the secret service division of the treasury.

THE SULLIVAN TRIAL. In the Sullivan trial today evidence was given to show that the bullet came from the body of Saldado and from the neck of Barton were notified from Barton's pistol; also that defendant had said the afternoon of the tragedy: "There would be the devil to pay to-night," and that fifteen men were looking for Barton.

THE BUREAU. The trial of Payne for attempting to bribe jurors in the star route business began today. The defense endeavored, without success, to obtain a statement from witness Brown of the conversation between himself and Gov. Wells on the production of the original affidavit known as the "Ingraham affidavit," which was exhibited to witnesses containing Fall's name in intimidation. He said he thought the name had been inserted after he had sworn to the affidavit, which he said was in Col. Ingraham's handwriting. It was not true he asked Fall's name on that occasion. So much of the affidavit as stated Martin, another juror, was to be influenced, was untrue. Witness regarded Payne as a dupe. He believed the written agreement had been destroyed. Witness denied offering Payne $150 for the written agreement. Witness never said he thought there was money in the star route business for him. The cross-examination brought out no new points.

At the request of the defense further examination of Brown was adjourned until tomorrow in order to allow them to obtain by subpoena upon the attorney general, affidavits collected by special counsel Wells. A. B. Williams was called to answer for the affidavits of Nelson and others. He said he had returned Nelson's affidavits to Nelson. His reason for so doing was he did not believe there was a honest prosecution. The paper was wanted for no honest purpose. Witness acknowledged he had deliberately, for the purpose of evading the subpoena, given the affidavits to Nelson. He did this because he wished to compel the government to bring Nelson into

The Question of Closure Discussed in the British Parliament.

DIMERS IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, October 31. - In answer to a question, Duke said the government envisaged the antecedents of the commissioners appointed to try Arabi Pasha, and that the English government would not interfere with the details of the trial. He further stated counsel upon both sides had agreed upon rules for procedure which did not exclude the press. The government had insisted upon certain matters, but could not undertake the trial from London.

Debate on procedure rules was resumed. Gibson, conservative, moved a crucial amendment that closure shall not be carried out two-thirds of those present at any session shall vote in favor of the motion on that particular occasion. He pointed out and urged upon the attention of members that the legislative body would no longer be the freest in the world, but that it would be possible if closure was to be decided by a bare majority for any government party with a compact majority to suppress free speech in the house; that such majority might if they chose, legislate for the country with the mouth of members closed and the minority helpless to represent their constituents.

Gibson explained to the house that he offered during the session last May to adopt the two-thirds majority rule, but was not then felt justified in the withdrawal of the proposal, which was merely a plan to make the system, one which he could not wholly approve. He stated there was no desire to go the minority. He said his only wish was to restrain unnecessary debate against the evident sense of the house. Gibson's amendment would have the effect of transferring the rights of the majority to the minority. He would not make this a question a subject of dispute to the country, but he begged that the house would not assent to the amendment. It would be infinitely preferable there should be no closure whatever than that there be one established which would require two-thirds majority to put in operation.

Sir John Lubbock, liberal, spoke in favor of the two-thirds vote for enforcing closure. It was arranged before the leaders of the parties that divisions should be taken Thursday, and the question definitely settled then.

THE SULTAN AND ARABI.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 31. - An official denial is received of the reports that Arabi Pasha's papers reveal correspondence involving the sultan and the cabinet of Egypt and Turkey and various other prominent persons. Those near the sultan say he desires an early trial of Arabi, with open doors, no secrecy; that he will not himself interfere with the judgment of the court nor allow any one else to influence improperly its action. It having come to the sultan's ears yesterday that Earl Dufferin was about to make a trip to Egypt upon

A SECRET, MYSTERIOUS MISSION, he summoned a council of ministers, which sat throughout the entire night. Said Pasha, prime minister, and an interview with Dufferin today and asked for an explanation of his instructions and intentions. It is reported the ambassador gave him assurance that his instructions from the British government were to should insist upon the maintenance of the suzerainty of the sultan. Notwithstanding the public interpretation of the interview, there is much alarm in Turkish circles lest the mission may have a deeper meaning.

THE SUDAN REBELS.

CAIRO, October 31. - Ismail Pasha, Roub having declined command of troops to be sent against the false prophet, the English government has consented that Egyptian officers shall lead the expedition into Sudan. One hundred and fifty marines are to be brought to court martial for taking part in disturbances at Alexandria.

WATCHING THE SOCIALISTS. BERLIN, October 31. - The government has ordered increased surveillance over the socialists living in Germany be exercised. It is feared they have formed some sort of connection with the Geneva-French anarchists, whose recent outbreak alarmed both countries.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT has not yet submitted to Prince Bismarck any proposal for a settlement of the Egyptian difficulty.

A LIVELY DISCUSSION is going on in the principal German newspapers as to chances for the directorship, whose chief factors shall be Gambetta and Gallifet.

as an assurance agent, but I suppose he will have to retire from the "receipt of customs" and spend his future life as a missionary. He is taller even than Mr. Teasdale, and the wicked now remark, that whilst a short time ago the Mormons chose their apostles by weight, they are now selecting them by height. THE GAUDY JINNS OF AUTUMN as at present. The colors are in all their leafy glory of gold and crimson, orange and olive, pink and brown, never has the variety of shades or intensity of color seemed so rich and so diverse. NO WONDER HE DIED. The Mormon papers are very fond of publishing the names of the following: "The late Patriarch Joel H. Johnson, who died at Johnson, Kane county, September 24th last, was the father of 29 children, had 124 grandchildren and 54 great-grandchildren. One of his daughters, who was born in the church and reared from the bosom of Mormons, has had 27 grandchildren in all."

The argument arising from facts of this kind is, that polygamy has proved its own defense, or shield; in other words that there are more legal voters in Utah who will vote the Mormon ticket even now that all polygamists are disfranchised than there would have been if polygamy had never been practiced, or rather there are more legal voters born of disfranchised parents than the total number of the disfranchised polygamists. CHICAGO, October 31. - Representatives of the amalgamated iron and steel workers of this district, President Jettie, and mill owners who failed to agree upon a schedule for next year, have been holding another meeting for the past three days. There was a wide divergence at first, but an agreement was finally reached to-night on a scale of reduction of 20 per cent compared with the prevailing prices. The mill workers, however, are firm in demanding that this agreement should cover the entire year. The conference again adjourned without a perfect understanding.
