ADMIRAL STAUFELOTT IN CHINA.

WASHINGTON, November 6.—Rear Admiral Staufeldt has returned from his romantic tour in eastern Asia, and settled down to work as a member of the naval advisory board. However, he is putting in a good deal of work on the report which he is preparing for the secretary of state about his experience in China. It was learned to-night on high authority that Staufeldt when in China was offered the highly important position of admiral of the fleet and commander-in-chief of the Chinese army. The position is one of large power, important duties and large influence. The offer was declined, although the tender was made in the most flattering terms, chiefly because of the opposition of the all-pervading British influence around the court of the emperor. He felt that he could not enter upon the work of reorganization expected of him facing such headwinds.

SANDWICH ISLAND SUGAR.

The following self explanatory letter of general interest has been sent to a sugar firm in New York by acting Secretary French of the treasury department:

"This department is in receipt of your petition of the 30th ult. with enclosure relative to the admission of sugar from the Sandwich Islands, and requesting that some other tribunal than the collector of customs at San Francisco decide as to what sugar may be imported free of duty under the treaty with the Hawaiian government. In reply I have to state that a report on the subject has been requested from the collector of customs at San Francisco, but that he is in no wise authorized by law or instructions from this department to decide whether the sugar to which you refer imported at New York shall be treated as covered by the provisions of the treaty, and a decision will be made by the department after the facts in regard to matter have been ascertained."

AFFAIRS IN THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Dispatches received by the secretary of the navy this morning, from the commandant of the United States steamship Albatross, at Honolulu, report a serious state of affairs there, growing out of dissatisfaction there among sugar planters. The planters have formed a protective union, and used a protest to the king against the selection of his cabinet. They urge a more liberal and progressive policy than indicated by the king's movements. The king, in replying, recognized the right of all to make suggestions if they entertained any grievance, and assured the members of the union that their appeal would be considered. Meantime there has been no change in the situation, and the king has issued a proclamation that he would be crowned February 12. The report further says the matter will probably drift along until coronation day, when indications point to disturbances, unless the alleged evil in romance of the union appears to be that the general policy of the government is not sufficiently liberal, and they urge a better opportunity for bringing in labor and adoption of a course to insure the continuation of the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which it is acknowledged has led to a large part of the wealth of the Islands. The union is prepared to send a representative to the United States to urge continuation of the treaty after its expiration.

THE JEANETTE BOARD

began the examination of Melville this morning. He believed the vessel entirely seaworthy and fully capable of making the voyage. Referring to DeLong's discipline he indicated that it was very severe. He related incident of the cruise up to the date when the Jeanette became blockaded in the ice.

THE MOST INTERESTING REPORTS of the controller of the currency and the United States treasurer will not be ready until late. The order of the secretary that no reports be made public until after being carefully considered by him has had the effect of delaying publication. Comptroller Knox says his report will be comparatively unimportant and confined to routine business.

SILVER DOLLARS.

During the week ending November 4th 1,022,900 standard silver dollars were put in circulation by the United States mints. During the same period last year but 360,400 were circulated.

THE CORWIN CRUISE.

The report of Lieut. Healy, commander of the revenue steamer Corwin, covering the operations of the vessel on her second northern cruise up to the 24th ultimo, was received at the treasury department, having been mailed from Oonahaska. Lieut. Healy says of the natives of St. Lawrence bay, for the benefit of any who may be cast upon the hospitality and kindly feeling of the natives along the northern shores, "I would most earnestly recommend some token of appreciation be offered them. This will insure the extension of hospitality and protection which to castaways means life itself." With regard to Master Putnam he says, "We learned from St. Lawrence Islanders that on the sixth day after the departure of the Rodgers' crew the body of the unfortunate Master Putnam was found on the ice between North and South head. From the story they tell it appears that a few days after departure an easterly wind sprang up, which, freshening into a gale, caused the ice to float into the bay and form a pack, filling its entire extent. Upon the ice the natives hunted seal. During excursions they repeatedly saw the body of Putnam; by his side were revolvers, a sled and the skeleton of a dog. Early in August the Corwin entered the Arctic ocean. After a few days' cruise here she spoke a number of whaling fleets. Captain Bark, of the George and Susan, reported the loss of the steam whaler North Star, crushed in the ice on July 24th. The Corwin relieved him of one of her wrecked seamen; the remainder having sailed for San Francisco by the Thomas Pope. Captain Healy says: "I was particularly sorry that during our trip so far to the eastward the weather would not permit me to take any astronomical observations. We ran lines and soundings, however, during the entire cruise in the Arctic, and while we found that to the westward of Point Barrow along the coast the soundings are marked upon the chart are very correct, those to the eastward are in some degree incorrect. I recommended that line soundings be made along the coast from Point Barrow to McKenzie river." Captain Healy visited the habitations of the natives of King's Island, in the Arctic ocean. They are a curious people, living upon precipitous hillsides as do other people. He says the houses are erected upon poles, and the entrance to each is effected through a hole in the front wall about fourteen inches in diameter. The Corwin is now on her return voyage by way of Sitka to San Francisco.

CARSON CITY MINT.

According to the report of the committee appointed to investigate the charges of misconduct against Superintendent Crawford, Chief Clerk Hafer, of the Carson City mint, the charges are not sustained.

COURT DECISIONS.

Among the decisions handed down in the supreme court to-day was one in the case of William H. Reynolds against the executors of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, owners of the steamship North Star, which collided with the steamer Ella Warley, in 1863. The judgment of the circuit court of New York is sustained, which was that the actual loss must be aggregated and divided according to the amount of damage to the colliding vessel, provided both be equally at fault. The case of W. H. Jessup against the United States in the matter of bonds for the extradition of a man from the circuit court of California, the decision is sustained, the court holding that the bond was good and forfeited as soon as payment was not made.

The case of the county of San Mateo, Cal., against the Southern Pacific railroad company, was, on motion of Senator Stanford, set aside on the calendar, so as to be heard March 4th. Taxes amounting to over $500,000 is involved in this case, directly and otherwise.

This was the action brought for recovery of taxes assessed upon that part of the defendants' railroad which was appropiated to San Mateo for the fiscal years 1881-1882 by the board of equalization. It is a test case, and the opinion of the court therein will directly affect other pending suits in California, involving taxes to the amount of $700,000 and will be of importance to every corporation other than municipal in the entire state. Senator Edmunds, of counsel, said to the court with reference to the motion to advance that they would not be able to argue the case before the second Tuesday in March, and that he would like to have it assigned for that day. Chief Justice Waite replied that the court preferred to set a day as near the close of the term, and intimated that if it could not be argued before that time specified it would, if advanced, probably have to go over until October or November.

The Garfield fair directors met to-night, and reported everything in reference to the coming exhibition as promising.

Sonora's Ex-Governor.

Special Dispatch to THE BEE

NEW ORLEANS, November 6.—The Times Democrat Dallas special says: Carlo R. Cortez, the recently deposed governor of Sonora, accompanied by three of his staff, passed through here to-day on route to Mexico via New Orleans. He says the opposition to him originated in his favoring the introduction of the American railway and capital to Sonora, and his ambition to make it an enterprising and prosperous state. He was elected governor a year ago. He had worked steadily for the building of railroads with American capital. He was driven from the governor's mansion at Hermosillo by a lawless mob, who would have taken his life had he not taken refuge in the American railway camp. He confidently expects President Gonzalez to reinstate him and furnish sufficient troops to maintain the dignity of the office.

DOINGS IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, November 6.—Gladstone, answering questions by Bourke, informed the house that Arabi Pasha occupied the status of prisoner who had surrendered unconditionally; that when war ceased municipal law came into operation, taking the place of martial law. Arabi was therefore being tried very properly under municipal law. Debate on the closure question was then resumed. An amendment was offered by Lord John Manners, conservative, that any division upon closure shall be taken by secret ballot. Rejected, 139 to 55.

Northcote in moving rejection of closure in its entirety, asked whether it was not singular that a government which came into power with words on its lips "Force is no remedy," should have no remedy except force in the affairs of Ireland, Egypt and the house of commons. [Cheers.]

Sir William Harcourt rejoined that closure by a bare majority was necessary to prevent continued obstruction of the legislation of the nation. Debate then adjourned.

The debate on Northcote's motion is expected to terminate Friday. The whips of both parties are endeavoring to have all members in attendance when the final vote is taken.

THREATENED FAMINE IN IRELAND.
