WHERE IS E. K. Valentine's much boasted of walkway?

NEW YORK republicans voted as they fought—for honest methods in politics.

Now let the bosses step down and out. They have heard the verdict of the people.

MOORE made the Millard mare go, but the gait wasn't up to the 2:30 standard.

A LECTURE by Joe Millard on the use of money in politics will now be in order.

PENNSYLVANIA shakes hands with New York; the people not the bosses rule the country.

The young republicans and independents have proved that they hold the balance of power.

POLITICAL banking won't work in Nebraska, and Douglas county is a small portion of the state.

The anti-monopoly success throughout the state will only be appreciated when the full legislative returns come in.

That "blood letting," spoken of by Dr. Roscoe Conkling, took place yesterday. The republican patient already shows signs of recovery.

REPUBLICANS have proved what they have so often asserted, that they need no outside help to reform abuses in their party. Defeat is bitter medicine but it will operate satisfactorily.

If anything was necessary to show the total unfitness of women to participate in politics, the conduct of Miss Phoebe Cousins and a band of imported suffragists at the polls yesterday was sufficient.

THE GENERAL RESULTS. At two o'clock this morning returns from the thirty-three states in which elections were held yesterday, are so meagre and scattering that definite results as to individual candidates are not obtainable.

THE STATE ELECTION.

The result of the election in the state is difficult to determine at the hour of going to press.

In the First and Second congressional districts Weaver and Laird have been elected by small majorities.

The result from the Third district is still in doubt, with probabilities of Valentine's defeat.

Any estimates of majorities are mere guesses, and must be, until the returns come in from the country precincts, where the mass of the anti-monopoly votes have been polled.

Several days must elapse before full returns are obtainable. Indications point to an anti-monopoly vote of nearly 20,000, a democratic vote of 30,000, and a republican vote of 40,000.

The senatorial quintette come out of the fight in Douglas county in a dismantled condition.

Three of the ring nominees may succeed in pulling through. The remainder, in spite of Joe Millard's money and the U. P. brigade have been defeated.

The cutting and slashing of the senatorial quintette has made any estimate of results difficult.

TAUGHT TO BE COWBOYS. The Practical Training of Stockmen Made the Object of a School in Texas.

As the advertisement says, $100 pays for three months' instruction in rearing, tending and caring for horses, cattle and sheep, with board and the use of a good saddle horse, on a stock ranch in west Texas.

The speaker was the local agent of the Texas Farm association, who went on to explain:

"This association has nothing to do with the matter, except to receive applicants for this practical tuition.

The man who makes the offer is Col. Byron Von Raub, owner of the Don Carlos ranch, which is twenty-two miles north of San Antonio.

He has 8,000 acres of land, stocked with some 400 ponies, a lot of horses—I don't know how many—and 4,000 head of cattle and sheep.

His plan is to teach young men to be stockmen by making their daily life for a time a steady accumulation of knowledge of results indelibly fixed by experience.

Each branch of the business will be thoroughly taught by experienced men, including breeding, feeding, herding, branding, lassoing, marketing, riding, and a thousand things about camp life that can only be taught by experience.

The pupils will not only be taught by the work on his own ranch, but will be taken to visit the other great ranches in the vicinity, some of which have on them 1,000 to 2,000 horses, 10,000 head of cattle, and 10,000 to 50,000 sheep and goats.

There are now on Col. Von Raub's ranch forty-four young men, between the ages of 15 and 35 years, going through the course of instruction.

A number of them are Englishmen, and there are also some from Nova Scotia, and several from Boston and other parts of New England.

AMENDMENT AGITATORS.

What They Have Led Omaha Women Into.

Scenes Among the Suffragists at the Polls Yesterday.

Food for Reflection and Lessons for the Future.

The first appearance of the female franchise stars on the political stage of Nebraska yesterday was an event that will long be remembered in this community.

The drama they presented to our good people was a farce throughout, containing many scenes that were ludicrous and some that really aroused the sympathetic feelings of men of sound sense who heartily regretted to see the sex thus foolishly throwing itself unblinking before the washed and unwashed public.

It was noticeable that ladies who were on the streets pursuing their legitimate business paused as they passed the polling places and gazed with disgust at their well dressed, intelligent and in some cases pretty sisters, buttonholing the riff raff to vote for their cause and soliciting support from their members of the body politic.

Fortunately the day was unusually fine and the female workers at the polls did not have to wade around in the slush and mud which generally attends November elections.

Then to the credit of our citizens be it said that even in the wards where the "boys" predominated, and where the amendment was most strongly opposed, not an insult was offered, though in some cases it must be acknowledged that the too persistent efforts of some of the sisters invited at least a word of words.

The First and Second wards did not take kindly to the interference of the suffragists in the work of day at all, and when Miss Susan B. Anthony, Miss Phoebe Cousins, Miss Rachel Foster and Mrs. A. P. Nicholas made their oratorical pilgrimage and addressed the crowd from their carriage, the small boys called their opportunity. Youthful cat-calls punctuated the sister's remarks, and sly reminders of equaling infants and unrocked cradles at home floated out on the air.

SUBLIME CHECK.

The New "Windsor Hotel" Goes Up in a Cyclone.

Which Blows the Proprietors Clear Out of Sight.

One of the Coolest Cases of Fraud on Record.

One of the most curious transactions of a bogus coloring that ever reached the public ear came to light in this city yesterday.

Two strangers arrived in town about a week ago, rented a hotel, and without letters of credit, introductions or any references whatever, began to furnish it in the most lavish manner by purchases made from a dozen different prominent merchants.

They promised cash payments in every instance, and it looked as if business in Omaha had been suddenly visited by a purchasing Ceresus, bent on a bonanza boom to present prosperous Omaha.

Through the skill and shrewdness of W. O. Taylor, superintendent of Bradstreet's Commercial agency in this city, the attempted fraud was nipped in the bud, and the following queer state of facts made public.

On the 25th of October last a middle aged, sharp-looking individual accompanied by a youth apparently in his teens arrived in this city and put up at the Occidental hotel, on Tenth street.

The former registered as Wm. Henry and the latter as Ed. Rath, both of New York. They were assigned to room 15, and had all their baggage, consisting of a single common-place trunk, removed thereto.

As subsequent events showed they proceeded to the office of Her & Co. on the following morning and made a verbal agreement with Mr. Joe Her for a lease of the Cozens hotel, on Ninth street, at the yearly rental of $5,000.

The next day, the 30th the two men called on Dewey & Stone and selected $90,000 worth of furniture to be put in the hotel at once for which cash would be paid on delivery.

They then ordered $4,000 worth of carpets, matting, etc., from Orchard & Bean, crockery to the amount of $2,500 from Samuel Burns, additional furniture worth $2,000 from Charles Shiverick, $2,500 worth of table and silver ware from Max Meyer; stoves, etc., billed at $1,200, from Milton Rogers & Son, and sundries from other merchants amounting to $2,000.

In every case cash was promised in payment as soon as money on the way from New York would reach this city.

The strangers kept up their order of orders until the 31st and it looked as if they would buy the town and pay cash on delivery.

On the latter day the merchants who were waiting to deliver the goods ordered became a little inquisitive and called on Mr. Taylor of Bradstreet's.

He immediately set to work to investigate the case, and spent all day endeavoring to find Henry and Rath, but in vain.

On the 1st instant he cornered the latter at the Occidental hotel about noon, but Rath refused to make any statement as to his previous history and reliability.

Finally he said he would send Henry up to Bradstreet's office in the afternoon.

About 3 o'clock Henry called on Mr. Taylor, and in reply to his interrogations stated that he had a cash deposit of $30,000 in the National Bank of the Republic in New York city which he was going to put in business here and that he had ten lots in Brooklyn worth $12,000, clear of any incumbrance.

He also said that Rath had $21,000 in bonds deposited in a New York bank. Henry said he was a lawyer by profession and that his office had been at No. 98 Wall street and that Rath had been in the hotel business for years in Brooklyn.
