Slaughtering the "Innocents"

WASHINGTON, November 12.—The air is full of rumors of changes which the president proposes to make shortly in federal offices, both in the city and state of New York.

It is denied that any such changes are in contemplation, but information regarding them comes from persons so near President Arthur that it is useless to hesitate longer in accepting it as true.

It is stated here that within a day or two the president has intimated to General Max Weber, internal revenue collector in the Third New York district, that he desired his place, to bestow it on ex-Alderman Henry C. Foley.

Another dastardly piece of train wrecking took place Friday night on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, near Milford station. It was evidently the intention of the parties to throw the late passenger train down an embankment at that point, as heavy timber had been thrown across the rails. An extra coal train came ahead of the passenger train and dashed into the obstruction. The locomotive was hurled down the embankment and wrecked, and the train wrecked and the lives of a number of cars were wrecked and the rails torn up. The passenger train got through safely.

The contract office of the postoffice department is mailing to receive bids for carrying the mails on what are known as the star routes. The contracts on routes in the states of Florida, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois, run from July 1, 1885, until June 30, 1887. They amount in the aggregate to about $7,000,000. Awards will be made by the contract office at Washington, D. C., at the same time contracts for routes in the several states and territories for shorter periods will be awarded.

The postoffice department has begun payment of allowed claims of postmasters who have suffered loss by fire or robbery. So far nearly 1,600 claims, covering a period of nearly a century, have been received and examined. The total loss has not been ascertained, as the postmaster's were all destroyed, and evidence has to be taken as to the probable loss. The largest number of these claims are in the west, especially those arising from robbery.

The November corn report to the department of agriculture shows the planting late and replanting more general than for several years. The prospect up to July 1st was discouraging, causing sharp rise in values of grain and meats. Since then the season has been steadily favorable to the growth and ripening, and deferred harvest made the growing period of fall average 85; it was 83 in October. Last year the condition fell from 99 in July to 6 in October, presaging a loss of over 60,000,000 bushels which was fully realized. Present returns of the yield make the general average close to 25 bushels per acre, which is under the yield of 1883, but that the heavy production of 1878 and 1880 cannot be approached under the most favorable circumstances, which was 28-1-10 bushels in the census year.

Frank James at Home.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THIS DAY. ST. LOUIS, November 12.—A man who has just arrived from Independence says the people of Jackson county are huzzing Frank James, the bandit. All ages, sexes and kinds of society are represented among Frank's admirers. The men, they say, to hear Frank tell of his wonderful exploits, and women for the purpose of consoling and pledging their influence with the governor to secure his pardon, should be so unfortunate as to be convicted. The ex-members of the Quantrell brigade go for the purpose of renewing old acquaintance, and young citizens of "Cracker Neck" and "Rush Bottom" to hear his romantic tales of life in the saddle. When first incarcerated Frank was given a bare cell like any other fellow, but the sympathizing people could not endure to see him treated in this barbarous manner, so a prison was made up, and at present the atone floor is

and the walls adorned with elaborate paintings; fresh vases of flowers are sent each morning by admiring lady friends, enlivening the dull monotony of the cell and pervading the atmosphere with a rich fragrance entirely foreign to the surroundings. At meal time, instead of the ordinary prison diet, the bandit sits down to a sumptuous repast of delicacies fit for a royal lunch which is also furnished by sympathizing friends. At night, when worn out by the day's entertainment, the bandit is not compelled to curl himself up in a corner with a pair of dirty blankets like other prisoners, but instead is provided with a mahogany bedstead and so that he can stretch himself at full length and enjoy the sweet repose with the tranquillity of an infant. When first incarcerated everybody was admitted to see the distinguished guest, but now Col. Frank asserts his rights and before any one can be admitted a card must first be sent with much formality. If the visitor happens to be one of the outlaw's friends or is a person of distinction, he is admitted to his august presence; otherwise he is informed that Mr. James is indisposed and cannot receive company. In manners Frank is decidedly polite and receives his company with a great deal of grace. He converses freely upon every subject save his own, and displays knowledge of society etiquette which he could have learned only through association with the best people. He is very tasty in his dress and devotes a great deal of time to his personal appearance. In fact he is and entirely different from Dick Turpin and Jack Sheppard of old. The "solitary" visitors are numerous and some of them are more or less distinguished. Among the conspicuous people who have visited him are Gov. Crittenden, Gen. Joe Shelby, ex-Gov. Johnson of St. Louis, ex-Congressman Phillips and Col. John Crisp. The bandit's faithful wife stays with her husband the greater part of the time and ministers to his wants with commendable devotion. Mrs. Samuels, Frank's mother, also visits her son every week and usually spends the Sabbath with him. Frank James' trial comes off in Kansas City the 27th of the present month. It is expected he will enter a plea of guilty and at once receive a pardon from Gov. Crittenden.
