LOCAL BRITANNIA.

-Weather prophets now foretell a short but severely cold winter.
-Married, November 27, by Rev. J. M. Richards, Ralph M. Greer and Emily E. Russell.

-The first three days of December rule the winter months, so watch and see what is to be expected.
-John T. Raymond appears at the opera house next week in "Fresh, the American."

-"Fire King" cases No. 2 was out yesterday pumping out the steamer on Farnham and Ninth streets.

-Watson Wyman and John Harlin have returned from a hunt down on the B. & M. with a fine bag of geese and ducks.

-Go to Wyznan's Commercial College to learn book-keeping, penmanship, business arithmetic and commercial law.

-The Travelers has paid up arrears of $5,000.00 for claims under their accident policy. W. I. Hawks, agent, 1224 Farnham street.

-D. S. Benton, an attorney formerly of this city, but now a resident of Denver, will be married next Tuesday to Miss Ella Celestia Downs.

-All ex-convicts resident in Nebraska desiring half-year permits, will please make application for same as early in December as possible. Office, 1224 Farnham, Omaha, Neb. A. F. Borden, agent E. & M.

-Mike Gilligan, who was recently sent to jail because he would not leave the city as ordered by Judge Benke, was released Thursday morning, and will at once go to work and behave himself, he says. He has certainly earned, and should be given the chance.

-The Menomonee society had splendid entertainment Thursday night. One of the principal features was the grand turkey raffle. The singing done by the Menomonee was exceptionally fine, and altogether the society may congratulate themselves on the success of their Thanksgiving entertainment.

-The crowd which besieged the box office at the Boyd Fri morning was something never seen before in Omaha. J. H. Lee was the lucky chap who headed the line. Several of our prominent citizens spent all the forenoon in the line awaiting their turn. The advance sale yesterday netted amount to $1,500 or $2,000. There is still plenty of good seats, but there is no time to be lost in securing them.

-Lieut. H. C. Dunwoody, inspector of the U. S. signal service, who passed through Omaha recently, is at Lincoln concerning with Prof. Thompson of the state university in regard to the establishment of a state weather service to cooperate with that controlled by the government.

-The arrival of a new son and heir to Mr. Felix Slaven was announced recently. Mr. Slaven has signed his admiral in honor. William A. Paxton by naming the youthful scion of his house for him, William Paxton Slaven. The little fellow promises to add credit to a name which is synonymous for success and prosperity in Omaha.

-The Congregational church on St. Mary's avenue is now fully completed and very comfortably furnished. It is proposed by those interested in the new church to have services every Sunday morning at the usual hour. As soon as possible the services of a regular pastor will be secured. The Rev. W. B. Millard, of Dundee, Ill., will preach next Sunday at 10:30 o'clock a. m.

-The evidence of Mr. Bert Wilkins corner of Twenty-third and Charles streets, was the scene of a highly entertaining social party on Thanksgiving eve. The entertainment was furnished by Mr. Oscar Colvin. The excellent music, a special box and the beautiful repast which was served, were the principal features which combined to make this one of the most pleasant affairs of the season. The Omaha medical college and the telephone company were both well represented. Much credit is due Oscar for his efforts to please his guests.

-Articles of incorporation of the Woodmen Lined Oil Works were filed today with the county clerk. The capital stock is fixed at $120,000, divided into shares of $100 each, which may be increased to 500,000 as needed. The existence of the company will expire January 1, 1933. Clark Woodman, D. G. Schell, S. E. Locke, Chas. W. Barstow and R. H. Whitelaw, are the incorporators. Omaha is the headquarters of the company.

-While Manager Nugent was out Thursday with his band wagon some portion of the harness gave way on Twelfth street near Dodge, and the eight horses he was driving were quickly in a badly mixed state. One was thrown to the ground and another fell on top of him, but the rest fortunately worked on the part of bystanders who might have been a very severe and costly accident was averted.

A TERRIBLE THANKSGIVING.

A Flood of Sensations, Criminal and Otherwise.

A Fatal Fight on Lower Tenth Street.

A Man Run Over and Killed By an Engine.

A Bad Layout for the Day of Peace and Rest.

Notwithstanding the day appointed by President Arthur as a season of national thanksgiving was as beautiful as the heart could wish, it was by no means a period of Sabbath-like peace and quiet, as many preceding Thanksgiving days have been. There were an unusual number of big lurches, with the accustomed liquid refreshments, and there were a good many men staggering around the streets at an early hour in the day. In addition to the customary round-ups, a fatal shooting affray, a fatal accident, and other crimes marked the day.

THE GENERAL ROUND-UP included six suspicious characters, three drunks and a vagrant, all of whom appeared before Judge Benke yesterday. Of the first named offenders four are held for examination and two were discharged. Two of the Slovans paid the customary fine, and the other was committed. The vagrant was turned loose.

FATAL SHOOTING. The most serious affair of the day was that which occurred about seven o'clock in the evening on Tenth street between the Occidental hotel and Farr's drug store. At this point a lively street scrimmage resulted in the probably fatal shooting of Henry Eberling, an employe of Mr. Volkmeier, the Cuming street butcher. Eberling is a young man about 24 years of age, whose home is in Fort Madison, Iowa, where he still has a father and brother residing. He came to Omaha some time ago and worked at first for Adam Snyder, the Farnam street butcher. Thursday he had been around with friends and had drunk enough to feel it, and in this condition entered the office of the Occidental hotel, at the hour named above. Here he used some very offensive language and was requested by the landlady to retire to the street if he must persist in such talk. His companion tried to induce him to leave quietly, but he was a little obstreperous and at length the hotel runner, E. P. Shotwell, undertook to eject him. Shotwell pushed him out into the street and followed him and a running fight ensued, Eberling being the larger and better man of the two physically and punishing Shotwell severely. The latter tried to stop the row and called enough, but it was no good, and the bystanders, instead of interfering, rather enjoyed the fight and wanted the participants to fight it out. Finally Shotwell was disarmed and drawing his revolver, after one ineffectual attempt to shoot, sent a bullet at his opponent. The ball struck him in the collar bone and took an upward course to the neck, and it was feared, had produced a mortal wound. The injured man suffered only from internal hemorrhages so that the exact extent of his danger was not at once to be determined. He was picked up and carried into a store near by, and Dr. W. C. Rose summoned. He was subsequently removed to St. Joseph's hospital, where he is still alive at noon yesterday. Sheriff Miller and other officials visited him there, and reported that he would die. Shotwell was arrested immediately after the shooting by Officer Sigwart and lodged in jail, the charge being assault with intent to kill. It was the generally expressed opinion that the prisoner was obliged to shoot to save his life, or save himself from a severe beating, but that he exceeded his authority in following Eberling into the street after he had ejected him from the hotel building. Shotwell has been a resident of Lincoln for fifteen years, and has a family now residing there.

A MIDNIGHT ACCIDENT. A fatal accident occurred about midnight near the sand-house of the Union Pacific railroad shops, the victim being Philip Flannigan, a helper in the round-house.

Engine No. 237 was standing at that point taking in a supply of sand, which operation was being supervised and aided by the helper, who was done stepping down over the pilot and called out to the engineer "All right!" The engine was started slowly, but had proceeded but a short distance when the engineer, Pat O'Donnell, heard some one cry out, "Whoo! whoo!" The engine was stopped and backed up a few feet, when it was found that the pilot had proceeded from Flannigan, who had evidently stepped off the pilot and either fallen or made a misstep, and had been caught and crushed to death beneath the pilot, which on this engine is about eight inches above the track. Flannigan had been dragged under the pilot for ten or twelve feet, and when found was dead. It is thought that he stepped forward off the pilot and was caught by his foot underneath it. Coroner Jacobs, upon being notified, proceeded to the spot, and removing the remains to the round house, held an inquest. The jury accordingly returned a verdict of accidental death, with no blame attached to any one. Upon examination of the body it was found that all the ribs on the right side were broken, and all the organs of the chest crushed, in fact the whole interior of the man was mashed, but the skin was unbroken. The deceased was 38 years old. He has a wife and children in county Connaght, Ireland, two brothers in Omaha and a brother-in-law in Denver.

TWO MORE BURGLARIES. Notwithstanding the arrest of the boys supposed to be implicated in the numerous burglaries of late, two more places were entered on Thanksgiving day. The first of these was Riley & DeLone's saloon and wholesale house, corner of Douglas and 12th streets, from which wine, cigars and a small amount of change were taken. The front door was pried open and the general indications showed the visitors to have been amateurs and not professionals. It was only last week that the same firm suffered.

About 6 o'clock in the morning a man described as being large and heavy set, and an exceedingly ugly-looking customer, entered the store of J. J. Brown, on Douglas and Fourteenth streets, by prying the door open. The clerk, who sleeps in the store to guard the establishment, was awakened by the noise caused by the burglar, and raising up in his bed saw him not far from him, and got a good square look at him. The burglar did not seem at all disturbed, but merely said "Good morning. It's a pleasant day," and went down Douglas street. The coolness of the fellow puzzled the clerk, who thought perhaps the door had been left unlocked by mistake, and that the early visitor was a customer.

MINOR MATTERS. There were numerous fights on the streets and in various saloons about the city, beginning early in the morning and occurring at intervals all day.

There were two or three rows on Douglas avenue, Fifth street, between the contractors and persons who insisted on driving over the new pavement. One pugacious individual was finally lodged in jail, after a briak fight.

CAPTURE OF BURGLARS. Policemen O'Donohue and Burke arrested two men late last night who are believed to be the burglars who have been operating extensively in this city. The men were met about half past one this morning coming out of the alley on Fifteenth between Farnam and Douglas. They started up Farnam, walking rapidly, were overtaken in front of Philip Goo's building. They gave evasive answers about their business so late, and finally started on a run were quickly pursued and taken.

In going down to the jail one of them dropped two pistols, and upon further search, after they had made an attempt to pull a pistol on Policeman Burke, two pistols were taken from them that answer the description of the revolvers stolen from Lang & Foltick. The pistols fit exactly to the marks on the horns of J. J. Brown and Henry Hornberger, which is strong proof that these men are, as suspected, a brace of burglars. Both men are fine looking, well dressed young men.

A Newspaper Editor. O. M. Holcomb, of Bloomville, Ohio, fires to explain: "Had that terrible disease catarrh, for twenty years; could taste or smell, and was nearly blind. Thomson's Electric Oil cured me. These are facts voluntarily given against a former prejudice of patent medicine."

JUVENILE OFFENDERS. A Little Russian Exile Has a Hard Time to Get Along.

Our citizens generally have noticed the boy of twelve years or thereabouts who continually peddles apples about the streets.

He is one of the Jewish exiles from Russia, or rather one of the number driven from home by Russian cruelty. He came to Omaha some months ago with the large company of refugees who were cared for by Omaha citizens and set to work in the city or its vicinity.

The boy in question is an energetic and industrious youth, who cannot speak a word of English, but is persistent in offering his wares. A gang of hoodlums who delight in annoying all honest, hard-working people, have been in the habit of catching on to him and abusing him in every way. Yesterday they attacked him, and after mauling him till he could stand it no longer, ran him into Mr. M. Elgutter's store, where he took refuge for fear of his life. A fine scene this is for a Christian city and in an age of freedom. The sight of a dozen young republicans chasing an inoffensive lad across Farnam street might be relished in Constantinople or Jerusalem, but the police should see that it is not repeated in Omaha.

PITTSFORD, Mass., Sept. 22, 1878. SIRS-I have taken Hop Bitters and recommend them to others, as I found them very beneficial.

MRS. J. W. TULLER, Sec. Women's Christian Temperance Union.

A PRETTY FIGHT. The Glove Contest Thursday Night Won by the Coloradan.

There was a big crowd at the Academy of Music Thursday night to see the glove contest between Jack Nolan "the Unknown," and Jack Hanley, the Colorado champion, the terms of which were that Hanley should knock the Unknown out of the ring in four rounds or present him with $50.

Trouble did not begin until nearly midnight and then it was nearly one-sided. Hanley went in for business and after the first round was master of the situation. Nolan is a fine-looking man and built magnificently, but he was no match for Hanley and acted on the defensive entirely during the second and third rounds. He was knocked down, knocked over sorely and a large portion of the time was clear out of sight of the audience. Hanley was at length proclaimed victor, and stepped forward and tendered his services to anyone else who wanted to put on the gloves with him.

Manager Fletcher acted as time-keeper, to the general satisfaction of the audience, and George Wambold and George Barnes were seconds of Hanley and the "Unknown" respectively. Mr. Bennett was the dignified and popular referee.

Judgmental parents who allow their children to eat heartily of high-seasoned food, rich pies, cake, etc., will have to use Hop Bitters to prevent indigestion, sleepless nights, sickness, pain, and perhaps death. No family is safe without them in the house.

The remains of the late Philip Flannigan will be removed to the residence of his brother Hugh, 1155 Sherman avenue, this morning. The funeral will take place on Sunday at 1 o'clock. The deceased was a native of County Convent, Ireland, and was 36 years old at the time of his sad death.

A BOOMING BLIZZARD.

The Big Dust Storm and Sudden Change of Weather.

An Old Sailor Pronounces the Storm "a Pommeroe."

One of the most curious and sudden changes of weather ever experienced in this neck of woods took place early last night. The day, like that preceding, had been a remarkable one for December. At 9 o'clock some one called the attention of THE BEE reporter to the beautiful brilliancy of the stars, and at that time there was not a breath of wind to disturb the atmosphere, nor a cloud in the sky to dim the vision. A few moments later a blast of wind struck the city that made Rome-aha howl. It was a regular old time Nebraska blizzard with the melody of a midwinter Manitoba wave mixed in to give it variety. The most noticeable characteristic was the absence of any provocation for the attack. Not a cloud even the size of a man's hand was to be seen. In the north the glow of an aurora or a prairie fire was visible at first, but soon clouds of dust whirled as high as the roofs of the tallest blocks and swept in blinding storms down the streets.

A detail from the fire department was out with old No. 1's steamer, pumping out the cistern at the corner of the Paxton. The sparks from the stack, and the cinders from the fire spot, boxed a sort of terrestrial comet, and the boys shivered from the cold blast which drowned the exhaust of the engine. "It would be a bad night for a fire," they said.

On Fifteenth the fire kept up by the paving contractors began to grow dangerous. The coals flow about in chunks the size of a man's head, and threatened to do serious damage, and Officer Burk secured assistance and banded the coals with sand.

At Fourteenth and Douglas there was a regular prairie "duck-hole" and a horse and buggy driven along there about 11 o'clock was belated for five minutes by the mud and dust. The animal ran back and forth and whirled about until it looked as if it would overturn the vehicle. A horseman met the same experience at the same spot. The signs varied with the place everywhere, the sand formed in eddies and the old papers gathered in drifts on the walks everywhere, and the mercury fell most perceptibly, threatening the immediate approach of winter.

An old sailor who has roamed the sea for twenty-one years says the storm was what is called in South America "a Pommeroe." It comes up when the sky is clear, and without any warning of its approach. It will pick up a ship and dash it down upon the water with such force as to crush it like an egg shell. He has seen it gather up rocks that ten men could not budge and hurl them through the air like meteors. Its path is often a degree wide, sixty miles.

At Cape Town, South Africa, it gathered and burst in a black cloud above Table Mountain and is called the "Table Cloth," the dense cloud unfolding its inky folds like a scroll, rolling down the mountain side and sweeping the town as smooth as a marble floor.

At a later hour last night the sky filled with black clouds, or dust, and the night was as dark as a stack of black cats.

U. C. L. A. The entertainment that the Union Catholic library association got up to fitly commemorate Thanksgiving day proved an excellent one. Some time before the entertainment began a tremendous crowd assembled in the rooms of the Union Catholic library association and all the standing room was occupied, even the window sills being used for seating purposes.

Miss Marie Zeminec opened the programme with a brilliant piano solo, after which Mrs. O. McCaffrey and Miss Ella Kennedy testified the audience to an exceptionally fine rendition of the vocal duet, "Lily and the Rose."

Judge A. M. Chadwick delivered a very fine essay on libraries, which was received with enthusiastic applause.

Messrs. T. Sterricker, J. Vamplow, W. O. Mathews, and Geo. Bradley, were simply immense in their instrumental quartette.

The Tear of Repentance, by Miss Julia E. Haschenberg, elicited loud applause, and the vocal solo, "Song of Prayer," sung by Miss Ella Gilson, was greeted with great enthusiasm.

Mr. Jno. M. Gaynor was a superb success in his fine imitations, and the piano solo by Prof. Walther was received with unmistakable signs of approval.

Mr. Charles McDonald acquitted himself well in his reading of "The Lover." The vocal duet, "The Evening," by Mrs. J. Hayward and Mrs. Geo. Crager, was received with unbounded enthusiasm and was vociferously applauded. Mrs. M. Zeminec's violin solo was a grand success, and the instrumental duet between Messrs. W. O. Mathews and T. Sterricker gave much satisfaction and was loudly applauded. Mr. F. M. McDonough, the genre soloist, gave us some of his excellent machine poetry, which was received with the enthusiasm that any of Mac's poems invariably evoke. The entertainment concluded with a grand instrumental trio by Messrs. Gaynor, Vamplow and Bradley.

First Rate Evidence. "Often unable to attend business, being subject to serious disorder of the kidneys. After a long course of sickness tried Burdock Blood Bitters and was relieved by half a bottle." Mr. B. Turner, of Rochester, N. Y., takes the pains to write.
