I think of Tom Sawyer digging for them in the pirate's cave on Mark Twain's mystic island opposite Hannibal, Mo.; and Dave McLoughlin waiting for them year after year on this lonely stream. Perhaps an element of this sort lies occult among the various motives that lure me on this rainful morning, the last day in September, as we pull out for the unknown lake.

Sir William Fernie, her majesty's gold commissioner, is now my guest, and teaches me much about life in these strange regions. Forty miles to-day by the hands of our strong SPEER'S PORT GRAPEWINE rowers, and we have swept past the dirty Indian village at the mouth of the river and entered the Great Lake. The next day is Sunday, and stormy with rain. Religion is controlled by TONIC AND STRENGTHENING the weather, and we order a halt. Monday (October 2) sees us on our way. are those we breast going to this west suggesting to two of us at least wife and sweetheart. But what a surprise awaits us! What strange delightful place is this where we moor our boat. It should be termed the Lotes-Land, for here it is a very home of luxuri ous vegetation and tumultuous wild roses. The very trees are park like and domesticated. Birds crowd songs into the warm air. Beneath them are into the warm air. Beneath them are a score or more of warm springs which have fashioned for themselves resting places in the rocks. These are the loveliest bathing places imaginable. Bath tubs of all sizes and depths, from the infant to the grownest of grown persons, are scooped out of the soft rock, and the water within them is warm, clear, and refreshing, just the 'temperature of the body. I never imagined that the contact with more water could be so delightful.

Major Powell, the government explorer and relic hunter, has charge of a diminutive Washington department known as the bureau of ethnology. It is a little thing, but Major Powell loves it very dearly because it enables him to live at public expense and to gallivant around the country on socalled tours of exploration. It contains specimens of mineral ores, Indian bones, skulls, weapons and tools, old jugs, pots and kettles from Mexican mounds, and various other relics of about as much importance to the nation as the discoveries of Mr Pick wick's expedition were to the Pickwick club As it was thought that the department of ethnology was almost too small to run alone, it was recently suggested that Commissioner Loring attach it to the department of agriculture. The proprietor of the little curiosity in question received this suggestion with every evidence of and intermitted and inte ably be allowed to preserve its inde-pendence. It would probably be just as well, however, if it were abolished altogether. It costs more than it is worth to anybody but Powell.

Dr. B. J. Kridall. & Co.—I had a very valuable Hambietonian coit that I prized very highly be had a large bone spavin on one joint and small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which falled to cure him. I wan one day reading the divertisement of Kendall's spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it and got our cruggists here to end for it, and they ordered three bottles; I tood all and I thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the court hay the coit exceed to be lame and the immes have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the coit's limbs are as free of lumps and a smooth as any borse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable the bare let-twe of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.
