however, at 3 p. m. Saturday, after hours of delirium and intense agony, and in the evening he was removed to Jacobs' undertaking rooms and a post mortem and inquest ordered for yes-terday. The post mortem was held terday. The post mortem was about noon, being conducted by Dr. Ayers, assisted by other physicians. The examination was very full and complete, and the result briefly summed up was that THE BULLET, thirty-eight calibre, was found to have struch the collar bone just beneath the spot usually covered by a collar button, to have passed in an upward direction and backward toward the base of the skull, cutting the windpipe in two places and lodging on the spinal cord, at the sixth cervical vertebrae. The conical end of the ball was flattened out, had broken the bones to some extent and had carried a small scrap of the clothing clear through with it, which was found with the bullet by the surgeon. THE INQUEST took place at 4 p. m., and was not largely attended. The state was represented by District Attorney Burn-ham, and the defense by Colonel E. F. Smythe. Just alter the examination of witnesses begun, Deputy Sheriff Crowell and Jatlor Miller came down with the prisoner, Perry Shotwell, who, by consent of counsel, was allowed to ramain in the room during the inquest.

THE JURY impannelled was as follows: F. J.

McShane, E. A. McClure, Logan Stewart, John Drexel, W. M. Knotts, John Drexel and Dr. Frisoni. The examination of witnesses begun with the testimony of Dr. Ayres, who gave a full description of the progress and results of the post mortem, which it would be of no use to the general reader to reproduce. He gave it as his opinion that the wound was necessarily mortal. The next witness was

story was very plainly told. The de-ceased came to the Occidental during suppor time and asked the price of a being told, he said it was too much and offered a smaller sum, which was declined. He then went into the wash room and was there for probably a half hour. He returned and began swearing, at the counter, and was asked to stop. With the remark that he "did'nt know before that he was in a church," he begrn dancing on the floor of the office. He was requested to stop and the next Mrs. Painter saw was when he was pushed sut of the door by Mr. Shotwell. Witness went to the door and saw Shotwell getting up from the sidewalk, and heard him say "I have had enough! Let me alone"! He repeated this twice in her hearing as he ran toward Leiege's store, across the street. Witness saw Eberling follow him and heard the shot fired. Upon being questioned she was positive he repeated "enough" three times.

ME. PAINTER was the next witness. He first knew of Eberling's presence when he saw him dancing on the floor. Heard Shotwell say, "We have had enough Shotwell say, of this now, and you must go out." Saw Shotwell take off his cost and go out after deceased. Witness twice asked the men to quit fighting. Did asked the men to quit fighting. Did not see the blow given that falled

Shotwell pushed Eberling out and the latter turned about and said, "You son of a b-Come out here and I'll lick you!' Shotwell took off his coat and came out. The witness then described the fight minutely and the chase across the street, much the same as the other witnesses had done. He saw Shotwell stop and turn about and fire at Eberling, who dropped so quickly that he thought he had been killed. He ran to him, but when he reached him Eberling was speechless. His mouth was so full of blood that witness thought he had been shot in the mouth. The parties were about two or three steps spart when the fatal shot was fired. This closed the testimony and the jury after brief deliberation returned the following VERDICT.

We the jury find "that the said Henry Eberling came to his death on the evening of the 2nd day of December, in the city of Omaha, by a pistol shot wound fired by one Perry Shot-well, on the evening of November 30th 1882, and the jury is unable to agree if it was feloniously or not."

THE PRELIMINARY HEARING will probably come up to-day. The father of the deceased, who is said to be a well-to-do butcher at Des Moines, has been telegraphed four times, but no reply has yet been received.

THE CANFIELD'S CHANGE.

A New Landlord Takes Charge of the House To-Day.

A change in the management of the Canfield house, one of the most popular hotels in the state, is announced to take place to-day.

Hon. George Canfield, who has built the house up to its present enviable position in public esteem, will, it is understood, retire from the active management of the place, and D. S. M. Fratwell, the well known auctioneer, will hereafter control the deatiny of the hotel, at leas: for some time. The duties which will devolve upon Mr. Canfield by reason of his election to the highest legislative body in the state, and the urgent demands upon his attention from a couple of fine ranches he owns up in the country would prevent his giving that care the running of the Canfield house which has always made such a pleasant home for all guests. He has there-fore disposed of a half interest to Mr. Fretwell, who will no doubt maintain the high standard at present held by the house.

The new firm will be Canfield & Fretwell, but the name of the house will remain the same. George and Mrs. Canfield will continue to make the house their home while in the city, and with Mrs Canfield's presence will always be a home to the traveler. Good luck to the new management
