OMAHA, December 4, 1882. To the Editor of Tun Bun.

Your vigorous editorial in this evening's issue, in regard to the teachings -The number of Nebraska people who of the pulpit, contains a mistake that | births, was filed. I am much surprised to see you fall into. You assert that the pulpit is given up to "exposition of theory" rather than the "preaching whose object is to induce practice." Shallow minds are apt to fall into this error, but a mind that could issue the editorial mentioned ought surely to have escaped it. The writer, we must anppose, has formed his views by reading

LAST APPEAL: Washington, D. C., Nov. 23, 1882.

Col. C. S. Chase:

DEAR SIR—When you receive this our last appeal in behalf of the Garfield monument fund it will be too late to donate articles for the bazar, but not at all to collect and send contributions of money. Your repren-sentatives in Washington have done their best to place the matter before the people of our state, but as yet have received no response. We again most earnestly request that you, if possible, or some other person of influence and public spirit, make a personal appeal to your friends and neighbors to redeem the state from the possibility of failure in this matter. This fair, or bazar, will be a splendid success with out our aid, but if the monument shall be built without a contribution from Nebraska it would be an everasting disgrace to our state. It seems to us that a few hours' effort of any recent of the murdered Garfield or of any lover of the fair fame of Nebraska would secure a nice little sum of money utors should be sent with the donations, that engraved receipts from the treasurer of the fund may be returned to our attention, in which a shild had to each and every contributor. A been gored by a cow wandering about comparatively small sum from each in the neighborhood of the family constitute a decent aggregate as the recidence. It was a mere accident share of Nebraska toward this grand that the child was not killed, and as it object. We desire that the contributis is impossible to keep children in the yard tors names shall be published in the state papers, and we have no doubt state papers, and we have no doubt that when the donors shall hereafter visit Washington and behold the magnificent monument which they helped to build, they will feel proud to recollect how generous and patriotic they were in contributing to honor the memory of one of the greatest and best of American statesmen.
