OLD SORES AND BLOOD OR SKIN DISEASES IN ANY STAGE.

Disappear before the perfect alternative and tonic effect of the greatest of all Blood Purifiers. It so completely roots out all poison from the blood and breaks the debilitated system, that diseases of this nature disappear like chaff before the wind.

S. S. S. cures me of Scalp Sores, Sores in Nostrils and Ears, and everything known to the medical profession had failed. Three months have passed since I quit taking S. S. S.; there is no symptom of the disease remaining. It has cured me of my cure. It stands unrivaled for Blood Diseases.

J. S. TAGGART, Salamanca, N. Y.

"S. S. S. stands without a peer. The profession will have to acknowledge it a Specific for Blood Diseases."

Dr. N. L. GALLOWAY, Monroe, Ga.

"About four or five weeks ago I was afflicted with a very aggravating type of Blood Disease. I commenced using S. S. S. and after taking the first bottle felt so much relieved that I bought five more, and am glad to say, after using four of them, that I am entirely cured, previously having been under medical advice for several months."

C. G. KATZOFF, Louisville, Va.

"After suffering from the worst Blood Disease for more than two years, and having been treated by several eminent physicians, confined to my room and bed the greater part of the time, my body covered with copper-colored sores from the size of a pea to that of a silver half-dollar, I was well nigh in despair. At last I commenced taking S. S. S. In a short time I began to improve in flesh, all the sores healed, and I could feel and know that I was well, and S. S. S. my mind, and after a few days, my entire restoration to health. I have not taken a dose for over six months, and am as free from sores or blemish as any one."

LEWIS H. HARRIS, Atlanta, Ga.

"Improved after taking the first bottle of S. S. S.; in two weeks was able to come home, finding the waters were no benefit."

J. W. REED, Newport, Ark.

"Our science has not made known a combination equal to S. S. S. for skin or blood diseases."

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

COL. L. T. FOSTER.
Youngstown, Ohio, May 15, 1886.

Dr. B. J. KENDALL & Co.—I had a very valuable horse named Colt that I raised very highly, and had a large bone cyst on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of one of the best surgeons which failed to cure him. One day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined to give it a try and got our crutches here to send for it and ordered three bottles; I took all and I thought I would give it a thorough trial. I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free of lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I have let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now well.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER

THE CATTLE TRADE.
The Movement from Eastern to Western States.

In the summer of 1880 the eastern states had rather a dry time of it—so dry, in fact, that the springs and rivulets went out of business for want of raw material; fruits dried upon bush, cane, and vine—a great saving of the housewife's labor, but not of her temper. The grasses dried brown and dead in the pastures, and the cows died at the stall. Through the inattention of the weather department cows were not notified in time of the impending drought and its consequences, and therefore they conceived and bore young with that cheerful and placid complacency with the command, "Go forth, multiply, and replenish the earth." In due time, if permitted, bring our infant cattle industry to the stature of a promising youth. Their young kicked up their heels in thoughtless disregard for the morals of the frate holder, and the spilling of the calf-fostering contents, which seems to be natural to the thoughtless baby bovina. As the summer passed the owners of these calves began to look down the road for the coming calf buyer, who had year by year bought their calves and taken them to the Atlantic shores, there to be fed and grazed for the later markets. But the peddler of young bovines did not come. He knew there was no use of taking calves to a place where there was no feed—for calves must eat to live, as certainly they live to eat.

Meantime, in the States of Missouri, Iowa, and Illinois grass was more than abundant, the corn crop made fair to be a most plentiful one, and young store cattle could not be found in numbers great enough to supply the demand. Simultaneously, and without consultation or apparent suggestion, stockmen in Missouri and other States named conceived the idea of bringing to the dairy districts of the east the calves, for which the east had no use, because it had no food for them. Beginning late in July or in August of that year, the number of calves brought to the Chicago market exceeded 65,000. No official record for the calves was kept separately for the year; they were reported simply as cattle.

In the first ten months of the year 1881 there were received in the Chicago Union Stock Yards from States lying east of Illinois 31,191 calves and only 16,730 more mature cattle. Of the latter by far the greater number came from the States of Indiana and Michigan. In the first ten months of the current year there were received here 8,559 calves and 12,525 mature cattle. The falling off in receipts of calves amounted to 22,632 head, in cattle to only 4,265. So much for the thrilling romantic side of the story of the calf-trade with the east.

THE GREAT DECLINE IN THIS TRAFFIC in calves may be ascribed to two or three causes, one very efficient one being the publicity given by the press to the dangers with which this movement of calves from the east threatened, and still threatens, the herds of the west, and to the publication of the fact that to those who bought them these tender young animals proved a very unprofitable investment. The latter fact may have been a most fortunate one for the west, however unfortunate it may have been for the individuals most directly concerned.

In 1881 the Illinois general assembly enacted a law which was, by the proclamation of Gov. S. M. Cullum, put into effective operation on November 1 of that year. The reason for enacting this law and for giving it effect lies in the fact that in certain limited areas in a few Atlantic states there has for many years existed, and still exists, in an active virulent form, and without so much as the merest shadow of a reasonable expectation of cure, a contagious disease, which, spreading slowly, insidiously and certainly, wherever there is a near approach of sound cattle to infected animals or to infected materials, brings ruin upon herds almost as surely as fire brings destruction to the grasses of the prairie. From these infected districts cattle could be brought to the west, and the west, and no one who could prevent it. The some calves were thus brought from their near neighborhood of districts where contagious diseases of cattle have within a short time existed in known—more than that, it is positively known that from an infected herd in which cattle were actually lying down the deadly contagious pleuro-pneumonia, or lung plague of cattle, there was sent to the stock yards of Baltimore a young bull. It was long believed that this calf was sent to some one of the western states, but of this no proof has been given. To Australia a single high-bred cow carried the germs of this disease. Countless thousands of cattle have died, and millions of pounds sterling have been lost through their death and through the efforts made to suppress the plague—and the end is not yet. The same story is essentially true of South Africa, of New Zealand, and measurably true of America. Ample evidence shows that the disease has not within the period covered by the history of man originated in any herd or in any country. It has always appeared as the certain result of infection, and thus only a beggarly calf—outcast from a dying herd—may take with it to the broad and healthy plains of Iowa, of Nebraska, or of Kansas the germs of a disease which, spreading widely because of that very freedom which tends to make our Western herds the healthiest and best, will quickly infect the cattle of a State, the railroad, and the stock yards throughout the whole active North, thus eventually contaminating every nook where cattle may be.

ILLINOIS HAS DONE WHAT SHE COULD to erect a barrier to protect her own herds and those in the grand country between her and the setting sun from the approach of the deadly plague. She has to regret only that her power to do so is immeasurably less than her desire to accomplish all of that object.

A little more than a year has passed since the proclamation of Gov. Cullum giving force to the act mentioned was issued. In that time the Illinois state veterinary department, under the direction of Dr. N. H. Faasen, of this city, has striven so to use all means at its command as to accomplish all that could be desired. Unfortunately the appropriation for the use of this department was so small that reasonable remuneration could not be given for guarding one point even—the Chicago Union Stock Yards—and every point at which a railroad enters this state should be guarded against the entrance of animals from the infected areas. To prevent the passage of animals across this state to those beyond the veterinary department seems to be powerless.

Justice demands that credit shall be given to the general managers of some of the railroads and the express lines connecting Chicago and the east. They were appealed to for such help as they could give, and have responded as desired. The American and the Adams express companies, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, and other railroads have given orders to their representatives in the east to receive no bovine animal from the scheduled countries except when each animal shall be accompanied by the certificate of a competent veterinary surgeon, to the effect that the animal it accompanies shows no symptoms of disease, and has not during the ninety days next preceding the date of the certificate been exposed to the contagion.

Little as the record of the year shows, it is all that the department has been able to do under existing circumstances. Until the national government shall awaken to the importance of the interest menaced with ruin and to the necessity of protecting a vast industry, which, sturdy baby that it is, asks for no other protection, but instead promises to feed the whole civilized world when the need shall come—until the general government shall give this protection the countless thousands of cattle of the country will be threatened with a plague which may sweep into ruin many a fortune and bring desolation to many a home.

Does It Pay to Grind the Corn With the Cob?

Agricultural Epitomist.

We are frequently asked this question, and upon the strength of several years experience we can only answer that under some circumstances it does, while under others it might prove unprofitable. The Live Stock Journal states the case so fairly and clearly, and so in accordance with our own views that we make room for an extract upon the subject: "It depends upon the facilities for grinding and the kind of stock to be fed. Shrapnel grain, corn better than cattle, and therefore they utilize the nutriment in whole corn better. The cob contains more actual nutriment than is generally supposed. It shows on analysis 42.6 per cent. of carbohydrates, 1.4 per cent. of albuminoids, and the same of fat. It is quite safe to say that cobs have one-half the value of hay which fed cattle. The falling off in receipts of calves amounted to 22,632 head, in cattle to only 4,265. So much for the thrilling romantic side of the story of the calf-trade with the east.

THE GREAT DECLINE IN THIS TRAFFIC in calves may be ascribed to two or three causes, one very efficient one being the publicity given by the press to the dangers with which this movement of calves from the east threatened, and still threatens, the herds of the west, and to the publication of the fact that to those who bought them these tender young animals proved a very unprofitable investment. We answer, honor bright, it will cure rheumatism, and the severest cases too. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was specially prepared for the rheumatism and lame joints letters from the people relative to its merits in nearly every paper in the country.

Too Late to Attend the Funeral.
New York Times.

"A few days ago," said Henry N. Smith, the owner of Goldsmith Maid, "a measure favorable to Union Pacific was to be introduced to congress. We sent a man to on Washington who was to write on the minute the bill was offered. The dispatch arrived in New York everything went right was, 'Father is dead.' The eventful day came and the hours rolled on, but father did not die. The stock went up the scale a point at a time, but the sad tidings of father's demise did not come. When the stock had gone up five points on the news of father's death came, but it was too late. The boys had received the dispatch with intelligence ahead of us. I have always taken my chance with the boys since," and Mr. Smith dried his eyes in remembrance of the sad event, but everybody else smiled.

Usually wear their badges of authority concealed upon their clothing, but Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil wears its badge in the form of printed labels attached to each and every bottle, so that all may know its mission. It is given with complete authority to arrest all aches and pains, and does its duty every time.

THE BAD AND WORTHLESS

Are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started good name of H. B. in similar style to H. B., with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in

EDITOR EVANS PRESS:
DEAR SIR:—Feeling deeply grateful for the great benefits which I have received from the use of a very valuable article which has its origin and home in your beautiful city, and hoping that others who are afflicted as I have been may find relief from its use, I beg the indulgence of a few lines in your valuable paper for the privilege of communicating to you a brief statement of facts for the benefit of the multitude of friends to be met with on every side. Many of my friends will heart that I have been very severely afflicted with heart disease for a number of years and have suffered from it in only these cases, which have had that disease; it reduced my strength so low that I could scarcely walk across my room, and the least exertion rendered me so short breath that I dared scarcely move, and life seemed very burdensome. I was treated for my malady by the best physicians and directed to use various medicinal treatments or prescriptions until I was advised by my family physician to use Hunt's Remedy, as my trouble was caused by inaction of my kidneys which affected very seriously the action of my heart. I commenced taking it, (having little in it or any other medicine) and it helped me wonderfully, and I am now a great deal better, and have been ever since I began its use. In fact I have taken no medicine that has benefited me so greatly. My breathing is easy, and I have gained in strength so much that I am able to do my household. I cheerfully recommend Hunt's Remedy to all who may be afflicted as I have been, or who are suffering from general debility and nervous prostration.

Respectfully,
MRS. A. O. ROCKWELL,
