

The Daily Bee. COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Monday Morning, Jan. 22. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: By Carrier, 10 cents per week. By Mail, $1.00 per Year.

Office: No. 7 Pearl Street, Near Broadway.

MINOR MENTIONS.

-J. Mueller's Palace Music Hall. -The Catholic fair opens this evening. -The board of trade hold an adjourned meeting at its rooms this evening.

Little speech of acceptance. The first to congratulate him and remind him of the bet was Patterson.

-A masquerade ball is to be given next Saturday evening at Turner hall, by the Turnverein. All their masquerades are enjoyable, and this promises to be one of the best.

-A Walnut land agent was talking to a customer the other day, and the customer wanted to know if it really was warmer up in Dakota than it was here, and if so, the cause. The land agent said: "Why, I don't own such an agration of information as a professor of mathematics in a university, and I don't perspire; but you know, if you know anything about geology, that the icy thermal line runs right through Dakota and the cold end was laid in Iowa; it turns a square corner about 400 miles north of Council Bluffs and runs west; that places Dakota mostly south of icy thermal, which makes the climate very congenial."

-The telephone system in Council Bluffs needs touching up a little. When run at the best there are naturally some causes for grumbling, but complaints seem to be at the central office day and night, and at night it is often almost impossible to wake up whoever is in charge.

-It is reported that a relative of Dr. Ballard's has been arrested for the robbery of which he was lately the victim.

-The street car tracks are still buried so deep in snow that sleighs are run instead of to and from the transfer and depot.

-The city council hold an adjourned meeting this evening, at which time the license question will probably be brought up.

-The hall of the Catholic Knights, which was postponed last Thursday evening on account of the storm, is to be given this evening.

-A young man named Frank Potter, of Shelby county, had his arm so badly crushed in a corn sheller last week as to necessitate amputation.

-The C. B. & Q. train from the east was the first to arrive yesterday, as it has been for several days past. It was two and a half hours late, and the others later.

-The monitory and dignity of the superior court on Saturday was considerably shaken up by a dog fight. The round lasted about five minutes, and was then declared a draw, each dog being drawn away by the tall while the clerk separated their noses by a hot fire shovel.

-The extreme cold has caused much trouble with the gas. It was poor enough before the late snap, but that dimmed it still more. The city council at its last session had to use candles, which were planted on the table in a primitive manner, without candlesticks, and when an alderman offered a resolution, he would rise in his place, grab up a candle, hold it and the paper under his nose, and read way.

-Mr. and Mrs. Edw rd J. Kapars, who have been occupying rooms rented from Charles Roth, were surprised on returning to their rooms to find that the landlord had set out their things into other apartments, leaving them no conveniences or accommodations. They complained of Roth for thus taking the law in his own hand and had him brought into court, but Roth speedily settled the matter.

-In the case of J. M. Phillips vs. the city, for damages to property arising from a change in grade of the street, and in which a decision was recently given in the district court in favor of the city, there will probably be an appeal to the supreme court. As it is necessary for the damages to be appraised, the mayor has appointed J. L. Farnam to represent the city's interest on the board of three.

-A stabbing affray on Broadway was currently reported yesterday. It proved to be an exaggeration, however, the foundation of the report being the fact that a man named Schneider, who was on a little spree, got into some difficulty in a saloon and received a blow over one eye, which caused the clear to flow some. A little later as he was walking up Broadway he fell down on the ice, and received another bruise. He lay there yelling "I'm stabbed," until friends picked him up, and conveyed him in a sleigh to his home.

-The chief of police yesterday morning received word that there was a team of horses standing in a stable back of Igal's store, which had received no food or attention since Thursday morning. Investigation corroborated the statement, it being learned from parties occupying another part of the stable that no one had been there since that time to look after the animals. The appearance of the horses also indicated that they were nearly famished for lack of food and drink. Chief Field took them to Kie's barn to be there provided for, and tried to find the owner, but did not succeed in this yesterday.

-Grandy & Co. wanted permission of the city council to plant a dazzling street lamp for advertising purposes in front of their store, but the aldermen have refused to give leave on the ground that if one firm plants such a lamp, another will, and thus go on lumbering up the street. They were also led to this action by the fact that last fall they refused to grant a request made by A. Louis for a like permit. The regular street lamps do not seem, however, to be fighting the darkness very successfully, and perhaps such private lamps might be a help.

-Tom Cavin feels justly proud of the gold headed cans presented him by the Royal Arcanum but it cost him the cigars. His brother committeeman, Patterson, had wagered him that he Cavin would make a speech during the evening, while the latter, who disclaims oratory entirely, insisted that under no circumstances would he do so, as he was especially sure that he wouldn't even be called on as he had set up all the pins himself. When Tom was presented with the cans it was a complete surprise. Of course he had to at least get up and say "thank you," and as he commenced to do so, he looked across the room, and there was Patterson on the broad grin. He had won his bet. It nearly broke up the unwilling speaker but he managed to rally and made a very neat

Harry Carpenter's First Wife Reaches Virginia Again.

She There Learns That Her Little Daughter is Missing.

The Child Supposed to Have Been Abducted.

The bigamist sensation, in which Harry Carpenter appeared here as the husband of two wives, one in Virginia, the other in Council Bluffs, has dropped out of public talk since Harry was sent across the state to serve a year in the penitentiary at Fort Madison. Mrs. Carpenter No. 1 then went on her way to Virginia, promising to return to Council Bluffs to make her home here, and wait for the release of Harry, with the threat that she would have still further revenge on him. On arriving at her Virginia home it seems that she found still other trouble awaiting her, the details of which are given in The Wheeling Intelligencer of last Thursday, as follows:

Mrs. Emma L. Carpenter, wife of Harry Carpenter, whose exploits at Council Bluffs, Iowa, including his arrest, conviction and imprisonment for bigamy, have already been chronicled in the Intelligencer, arrived home yesterday from Council Bluffs, where she has been since the trial. She says Carpenter's light sentence, one year, was brought about by his second wife signing a petition for mercy, and his mother going to the judge in person. The sentence caused universal dissatisfaction there, as the man was believed to have been guilty of burglary, embezzlement and attempted outrage. An indictment is pending against him at Fort Madison for burglary, and when his term expires he will be tried for that crime.

When Mrs. Carpenter visited her former husband after his conviction, he begged her to appeal to the judge for mercy on his behalf, promising to live with her, but she refused. He then begged her to get him a vial of laudanum, but this request she also declined. It seems that his other victim was less firm.

When Mrs. Carpenter returned home, she sent, and afterwards went to the house of George Johnson, on Market street, near Twenty-fourth, where her daughter Alice, aged 10, had been kept. Both attempts to recover possession of the child were in vain. Mrs. Johnson refusing her admittance to the house until she forced her way in, and then telling her the child had been sent away. Mrs. Carpenter declares she will to-day swear out a warrant for the parties engaged in keeping her child from her, on the charge of abduction. If she does another interesting case will be afforded.

Mrs. Carpenter alluded to an item in The Intelligencer, which was complimentary to her. She says the person furnishing the information was a relative of Carpenter's, who has a grudge against her. Carpenter used to go to school in St. Clairville, where he was commonly called "Dunk Baker," as he lived with relatives named Baker. He was a wild boy, and apparently is never reformed.

Mrs. Carpenter, mother of the prisoner, is still in Council Bluffs. His first wife will receive a writ of divorce from the Iowa court in April.

The great distinguishing feature of Reeling's Russ's Sal-e is its power to remove induration.

Two Brothers-in-law Who are in Law are Far From Being Brothers.

Most of Saturday was taken up in Justice Vaughan's court with the examination of Jo Brown charged with perjury. This serious charge seems to have grown out of a family trouble between Mr. S. Goldstein and Mrs. Goldstein, who is a sister of Brown's. Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein have separated on account of some trouble, which the husband charges up to Brown's account, claiming that he is the real instigator of the difficulties, and the prime cause of Mrs. Goldstein leaving him, and going to her father, Mr. L. Brown, of Omaha, leaving him the care of a babe eighteen months old and two other children. Mrs. Goldstein sought to replevin some household goods which she claimed as her own individual property, and in taking out the papers her brother Jo went on the bond, justifying in the sum of $180, claiming on oath that he was worth that much property. Goldstein in turn had him arrested for perjury in this swearing, and Saturday's examination was to get at the facts. An adjournment was had until to-day for the purposes of getting more witnesses as to the real value of the property which Brown shows as justification for going on the bonds as he did. Myner and Adams are attorneys for the prosecution and O. L. Keatley for the defendant.
