ABLE TO DRINK A KEG.

Bear Experts on the intoxicating Properties of Lager.
New York Herald.
Theodore Schnager, of No. 165 Allen street, cashier of the Atlantic Garden, Bowery, in part 2 of the court of general sessions yesterday, was tried on a charge of violating the excise law. The complainant was Policeman Judson Golden, of the Elizabeth street station. He deposed that on Sunday night, the 21st of last May, several persons were in the Atlantic Garden drinking beer; he heard several persons call for beer, he collected and paid for it. Asked by Mr. Kintzing, counsel for the defense, if he (Golden) knew of his own knowledge that the beverage he saw drunk on the premises was lager beer, the policeman said that he knew it was lager from its peculiar color; he did not taste or drink it; he knew the difference between lager beer and weiss beer.
Matthew Fischer, of No. 66 Forsyth street, a tapper of beer in the Atlantic Garden; Victor Heeley, the manager, and a Mr. Bly, who supplied the beer from the brewery, testified for the defense. They said that no lager beer was served on the night in question. While the customers called for lager beer nothing but weiss beer was served; it was drawn from the cellar and ordinary lager beer glasses were used in distributing it. None of them could tell much about the manner in which lager or weiss beer was manufactured or the ingredients of which they are composed. Mr. Bly said that weiss beer was not intoxicating, that it was taken by parties after a debauch to sober up on; he had never tried to get intoxicated on weiss beer. Questioned by the recorder, he said that weiss beer was made from hops and malt and mostly water; weiss beer contained fully 85 per cent of water; lager beer was composed of pretty much the same ingredients. To Assistant District Attorney Requirer the witness said he had never drunk much weiss beer, because he didn't like it.

Recorder Smyth—I once heard a German swear he had drunk a keg and a half of lager and was not intoxicated. What do you say to that?
"I can drink a keg of lager beer myself and then attend to my business."
AN INQUIRING POLICEMAN.
Policeman Golden was recalled.
By the recorder: "What is weiss beer made of?"
"It is nothing more, sir, than ale largely diluted with water; the component parts of it are malt, hops and alcoholic properties."
"How do you know that?"
"I have investigated the subject."
"The result of your investigation is that both beverages are made of what?"
"Weiss beer, as I have said, is ale largely diluted with water. The percentage of alcohol contained in weiss beer is just 1 1/2 per cent; in lager beer the percentage is 5 per cent, and in figures 40 per cent."
By Mr. Kintzing: "Have you ever studied chemistry?"
"Yes, sir."
"And to the results of your investigations you have added the results of your studies?"

"Yes, sir; I have read considerable on the subject, and I have been an expert on these matters."
By the recorder: "Do you consider weiss beer intoxicating?"
"Not unless taken in very large quantities."
"Do you think it would intoxicate Mr. Bly?"
"I don't think it would."
The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.
* "Keep to your place and your place will keep you." But you can not expect to keep your place without health, the foundation of all success. For instance, a railroad engineer in the employ of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad had been grievously affected with diabetes for six years. He took four boxes of Kidney-Wort and now writes that he is entirely cured and working regularly.

Three Tame Flies.
New York Sun.
"What are you doing?" asked the reporter a few days ago a friend in Tremont, who was looking intently at the back of his hand, where he had deposited some sugar.
"Don't come any nearer," said the gentleman. "I am feeding my pets. They don't know you, and you might frighten them."
His pets were three small flies, and they were all eating the sugar off the back of his hand. They looked a little attenuated, as though the cold weather had affected them, but they seemed to have good appetites.
"Oh, they will soon grow fatter," said their master. "At this period of the cold weather they are always thin, but they begin to pick up in February. I take care of a few every year, and generally manage to get them through the winter. Last year I had eight, but two died, so I am trying only three this time. There are no people who think that a fly has no intelligence. I could teach them better than that. Before the winter is half over they know me perfectly. The moment I enter the room they fly to me, but if any one else goes in they won't go near him. I always keep them in the small room."
One of these escaped yesterday, and went up stairs, and I had two hours' work to find him. Of course all the flies that I do not take care of die off, so that as only these three are now in the house there is no chance of my confusing them with any others; but in a month's time from to-day I could tell them among a thousand, or rather they would identify themselves by coming to me.
A fly is a playful insect, too, though you would hardly think it. Some of these I had last year used to play tricks upon me. One would perch himself on the lobe of my right ear and move his feet so as to tickle me. When I brushed him off he would circle around the back of my head and the same position on the lobe of the left ear, and so on ad infinitum, or at least until he understood in some way that I was becoming annoyed, when he would fly away. "How do I begin to tame them? Oh, easily enough. I carefully drive out all the flies excepting those that I want to keep.

Then I remove all food, except such as I give them, from the room. I let them have nothing but sugar, and once a day a little bread slightly moistened. As soon as I think they have eaten enough I sweep all the food away. I allow no cracker-bread meals, for I believe over-feeding kills them. The room, as you see, is warm. These three are still a little wild, but if you will visit me in a month you will find them quite tame."
If you are a frequenter or a resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all new countries—ague, biliousness and intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.
LUDINGTON, Mich., Feb. 2, 1880.
I have sold Hop Bitters for four years and there is no medicine that surpasses them for bilious attacks, kidney complaints and many diseases incident to this malarial climate.

A Mouse and a Finger-Ring.
Boston Journal.
Several months ago a lady residing on Beacon street took off a number of rings from her fingers and laid them upon her dressing-table. After washing her hands she returned to the room to replace her rings, when to her astonishment one of them, a diamond ring, was missing. She was certain that she took the ring from her finger, and equally certain that no one could have entered the room without her knowledge during the five minutes she had been in the bathroom. A most rigid search was instituted, but the missing ring, valued at $200, was not found. A few weeks since the lady was much annoyed by mice. Almost nightly they held their revels. They not only destroyed her sleep, but procured lacerations on her hands. She was determined to trap them, and having baited it with a tempting bit of cheese, placed it near the scene of depredations. On the following morning she had three fine silky mice of various sizes. One of them was so peculiarly constructed that it attracted her attention, as it appeared to have a string tied around its body. The servant girl was instructed to drown the captive and reset the trap, and she was about throwing the dead mouse into the dirt barrel when her eyes were attracted by a sparkle from what proved to be the lost diamond ring, which was not perceptible when the mouse was alive, but which came to light after the severe soaking which the mouse received. It is supposed, in his haste to get away, that he ran his head through the ring, and an unconscious struggle only forced it over his forelegs, where it remained.

Our Citizens desire no notoriety, but are always ready to proclaim the truth.
Mrs. Geo. Hawley of 25 Knight Street Providence, R. I., relates to our reporter her experience with the wonderful curative properties of what is destined soon to be the standard and leading specific of the whole world, for kidney and liver diseases, &c. Mrs. D. says: "Early last spring I was severely afflicted with torpidity of the kidneys and enlargement of the liver, and the kidney disease came upon me so fast and suddenly that before I was scarcely aware of the cause of my trouble I became badly bloated, and my body and limbs very much swollen, so that it was with great difficulty and severe pain that I was able to walk any. I became dreadfully troubled by being short-breathed so that even a slight exertion or a little exercise would tire me almost to exhaustion, and I was so distressed when I retired nights that I could not sleep, and was very restless. One of my limbs especially had a very severe nervous pain, which always seemed to be more severe at night than at any other time, and would frequently act so sharply as to arouse me from sleep. I was very nervous and uncomfortable all the time, and was being doctored, and taking a kind of medicine for this complaint, and that and the other, but all to no good purpose, until at about the time when I was tired out and somewhat disgusted and almost discouraged with medicines and doctors, a relative and highly esteemed friend persuaded me to try Hunt's Remedy. I began to take it a few days ago, and an happy disappointment by the result, for before I had used a bottle of it I began to feel relieved, and soon commenced to sleep splendidly; the severe nervous pains in my limbs when I had to handle so tenderly did not appear any more, my headache and backache have disappeared, I feel better every day, and rest well at night. The swelling has disappeared from my body and limbs, I am now able to do my house-work comfortably and easily. Hunt's Remedy has certainly done wonders for me.

COOL, L. T. FOSTER.
[Youngstown, Ohio, May 10, 1880.
"Dr. R. J. Howard & Co.—I had severe valuable Hambleton colic that I tried very hard, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it and got our druggists here to send for it, and they ordered three bottles; I took all and I thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colic ceased to be lame and the lameness had disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colic's limbs are as free of lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. It is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I have let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it."
Very respectfully,
