LOCAL BREVITIES.

According to the city directory, which was completed yesterday, the population of Omaha at present is 43,710. This result is obtained by taking the total number of names, exclusive of firms, &c., and multiplying the same by three, a test based upon long experience and applied in all the cities of the world with uniform accuracy.

SENATOR MANDERSON.

The Arrival Home of the Junior Senator.

A Sketch of His History and Early Career.

Congratulatory Telegrams Received Yesterday.

General C. F. Manderson, the newly elected senator from Nebraska, arrived at home from Lincoln last night, along with a large crowd of politicians from various parts of the state. When the train stopped at the Tenth street depot the crowd dispersed like snow before an April sun, and General Manderson drove immediately home without any of the pomp or circumstances usual to such occasions.

These men should be experienced and thoroughly drilled, and stand in readiness to serve when needed, and when needed, their pay being only for time used at first.

WARD-BONNER.

she should get her meat somewhere else, which she did, but was constantly at the market, the same would meet him at the postoffice and other places, and they spent much time together. I called on ministers and others, and could have broken it up, but she said to every one that I was insane, and by these false statements she accused her conduct for having such sympathy for my husband.
