—The trains were all behind time again yesterday, from one to four hours.
—St. Paul's Episcopal church, of this city, has decided in favor of five sittings.
—CHEAP RAILROAD TICKETS.—Buy them from D. W. Bushnell, 5 doors north of postoffice.
—William Lewis was complained of on Saturday for assaulting Henry Vogelmann by thumping him several times.
—The sheriff of the state has decided to hold their next meeting in this city at the time of the spring races here in May.
—The case of Schlicht vs. Gutter still occupied the time in the circuit court Saturday and was still undecided at the time of adjournment.
—The boys, Rice and Goodchild, charged with assaulting another boy named Devillia, were discharged by Justice Abbott Saturday.
—Frank Moisy was arrested Saturday night for raising a disturbance while drunk. He will interview and be interviewed in police court this morning.
—John Raymond, who has just served one term in jail for petty larceny, was arrested again Saturday for stealing an overcoat from a Broadway saloon.
—A warrant was taken out on Saturday for the arrest of Lewis Orndall, charging him with having got a $30 suit of clothes of Spelman & Bro. under false pretenses.
—The board of trade will hold a regular meeting Tuesday evening. Let the business men wake up and be on hand promptly.
—The telephone exchange was moved yesterday, and the changing of so many wires caused a general suspension of the telephone business here during the day.
—Burglars are reported as having blown the postoffice safe at Pacific Junction sometime Friday night. They got only about $20 worth of stamps and envelopes for their trouble.
—Fred Bokemeyer settled the cases against him and his shipping bartender by paying $25 fine for the latter, and the costs in both cases.
—Charles Spencer, charged with discharging firearms in the street, was himself discharged on Saturday by Judge Aylesworth. The complaint for carrying concealed weapons was taken under advisement.
—A MARGAIN.—Any person desiring to purchase an elegant residence one block from Hayles' park, for $6,500, part on time, should address W. box 1,577.
—Theodore Gifford on Saturday pleaded guilty to stealing a value from Major Randolph, aide-de-camp on the city marshal's staff. He was sentenced to twenty days in jail.
—No services at the Presbyterian church yesterday. There seems to be much trouble in getting just "the man" for pastor, the pastorate having been vacant for a long time now.
—The saloon-keepers are to meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Max Mohr's, on Main street, to take in consideration matters of importance in regard to the business here.
—The thermometer in some parts of the city yesterday morning at 7 o'clock touched 24 degrees below, five degrees colder than any morning this season. Yesterday afternoon the mercury was 2 degrees below.
—The Danube society gave an enjoyable masquerade Saturday night. This society is composed of a large number of the best Danish citizens, and their social gatherings are always of an enjoyable nature.
—The polling lists were tacked up on the corners Saturday, ready for the public to gaze upon and correct. With the thermometer below zero, there were not many who tarried and gaze upon them.
—The college students at Tabor are very much excited over a discussion as to whether it is proper to say "hash is good" or "hash is good." Those who stand up on the platform that hash is singular seem to be in the ascendancy.
—An attempt is to be made to perfect arrangements by which the Council Bluffs driving park association will be included in the Iowa circuit, together with Duquett, Cedar Rapids, Marshalltown and Des Moines. Mayor Bowman and J. T. Hart expect to visit Marshalltown this week to complete the arrangements.
—Despite the storms and blockades, a box of imported cigars reached this city only eight days after passing through the custom house in New York, and they came too in the roundabout way of one friend in New York buying a box and sending to a friend in this city, instead of by direct importation.
—The fair and festival for the relief of the poor of the city proved quite a success financially. The gold watch was given to Miss Blanche Oliver, she having received the largest number of the 494 votes cast at ten cents each. Rev. J. G. Lyman was given the gold-headed cane, there having been 370 votes cast at a dime each. The entire proceeds of the fair amounted to about $300.
—A man giving his name as Peter Miller was arrested Saturday evening for stealing a value at the transfer. The grip belonged to Edward Ivers, who was en route to Denver, and who carelessly left it in the waiting room while he took a stroll about town. It seems that Miller picked it up and began peddling its contents at different houses on the plea that he was hard up and was forced to sell his clothing.

GOBLING A GIRL.

An Iowa Father Has a Hard Time Recovering His Daughter.

He Finally Finds Her Near Odell, Nebraska, and Brings Her Back.

The Story of the Chase.

Yesterday there arrived in this city an elderly gentleman accompanied by a little girl whose age, on inquiry, was given as between nine and ten years, though her face had an older look, and her form and manners indicated that she was lacking much of the vivacity and vigor of the ordinary girl of that age, when happy and in good health. The elderly man who had her in charge proved to be her father, and he had quite a story to narrate as to how he had regained possession of his daughter after a long and anxious search.

The man gave his name as James Dickinson, and said his home has been for some time past in Jefferson, Iowa. His wife died about six years ago, his little girl being then only between three and four years of age. He arranged a home for the little girl with a wealthy family in Monticello, who did not adopt the child, the understanding being that she should remain there so long as it was satisfactory to all concerned. Time went on, and the foster father and mother had some family troubles, which led to a divorce. On the day that the divorce was granted, the man wrote to Mr. Dickinson, telling him he had better come and get his little girl, and in compliance with this request he started at once for Monticello, but found he was too late, the child having been sent away to some unknown spot by the woman. The anxious father was naturally determined to get some trace of his child, but could not get any information beyond some faint clues that the woman had sent the child to live with one of her sons, who was married and had a family somewhere in the west.

A short time ago he ascertained that the woman had started westward, and thinking that she was going in all probability to her sons, and that probably his daughter was there also, he followed her on the next train. He found the woman in Lincoln, and kept with her until she reached the son's house, about three miles from Odell. He then found his little daughter, living with that family in a very rough and tumble way, much in contrast with the comfortable and even luxurious home which the girl had enjoyed in Iowa. She was poorly dressed, and though the weather was extremely cold, her raiment was thin and worn, she having no warm undergarments, and even her shoes being so worn that her feet were exposed to the bitter frosts, and one of her feet had been badly frozen. She had been helping gather corn, and doing chores about the place, and yet she was beguiled with such promises as that she was soon to have a little pony of her own to ride, and was to have some pigs and calves of her own to raise and sell, etc. The father found that the girl was sleeping at night upon a pallet of straw in an unheated part of the garret and was in all respects undergoing hardships which were rapidly making her look old and worn.

The father insisted on taking the child away with him, but there being opposition shown to this, he went to Odell and there secured the services of a constable, who proceeded back to the house with him. There was quite a scene according to the father's story, one of the sons of the old lady pointing out to him, and the officer having to interfere. The child was secured by them, however, and taken back to Odell, where father and daughter stopped at a hotel while waiting for the train the next morning. The man at whose house the little girl had been stopping got some of his chums and sympathizers together and rallied Odell to take the child back by main force. The hotel-keeper, hearing of this, and fearing a row, advised the father to secrete the little girl until morning, and in accordance with this advice he placed her in a private family. On taking the train the next morning the father and daughter were guarded by the deputy sheriff and a posse to avoid the expected attack from "the gang," and under such exciting circumstances the two left once more on the journey. An attempt was made by two men to get the child away from her father, but this was thwarted, and they arrived yesterday at the transfer all right, and in the afternoon started off east.

Don't fail to attend the Turners' masquerade ball on the 22d.

Items at the Institution.

The Deaf Mute Hawkeye appears this week in the form of a nest. There is first the paper of usual size, inside of that a smaller one called "the junior," and inside of that still another called "the baby," so that each reader can take the one which best fits his size and age. From a number of interesting items we glean:

Rev. C. L. Sturges, late instructor in the preparatory department at Tabor college, has been employed as boys' supervisor, and has entered upon his duties. He is a gentleman of education and culture, and we doubt not will perform his work to the satisfaction of all. The position is a trying one, and requires tact, patience and education to fill it.

The cold weather has caused for the first time the supply pipe to the institution reservoir to freeze.

Miss Pollock, who used to teach here, visited the institution last Sunday. She has resigned her place as teacher in the Nebraska institution and is now at home in Burlington. She expects to be married soon to a Chicago gentleman named Fairweather.

A sleigh load of institution people met with quite a mishap last Saturday. Mr. Rogers was driving and in turning a corner in the lower part of the city, a short turn over tipped the sleigh and threw the occupants to the ground with considerable violence. Miss Van Dorin seems to have been the worst sufferer, receiving an injury on the forehead right between the eyes, which put those organs into mourning, and enlarged her nose to double its natural size. Miss Van Tassel had her knee sprained, and Mattie and Mr. Rogers escaped uninjured. Mr. Rogers was dragged along the street a hundred feet or more while holding to the lines before he succeeded in stopping the horses.

When you want to get Iowa coal that is almost if not quite equal to Wyoming, call for the Frederick, at A. H. Mayne & Co's.

A. T. Flickinger started yesterday for Iowa City in response to a telegram stating that his youngest brother, who is a student at the university, is very ill with inflammatory rheumatism.

J. D. Cameron, of Sioux Falls, whose name has become pretty well known throughout the west on account of his connection with the "script" cases, was in the city yesterday, en route for St. Louis, his trial on the charge of conspiring to defraud the government being set for next Tuesday. W. D. Russell, of Yankton, who is a co-defendant, was also here, both gentlemen being guests of the Ogden. Mr. Cameron is quite confident that he will be acquitted, and expects that there will be no delay in the trial, but that it will commence surely on Tuesday. There are about a hundred witnesses from Yankton and vicinity who are invited to attend the affair. Mr. Carpenter, of Beloit, another of the defendants, has already gone to St. Louis, and Mr. Cameron and Mr. Russell left last evening.

To close out my business I will sell my entire stock of millinery, fancy dry goods and notions regardless of cost. The best bargain ever offered.

J. J. Bliss, 328 Broadway.

Chapman Captured.

The officers for several days have been on the look-out for Josh Chapman, who was wanted on a charge of mayhem, he having bitten the lip of a man named Neal in a row arising over a game of "trece" on Tuesday. Chapman, it appears, has been at work in Boyd's packing house in Omaha since the row, and yesterday he came over here. Coroner Skinner spied him and arrested him at once.

"They who cry loudest are not always the most hurt." Kidney-Wort does its work like the Good Samaritan, quickly, unobtrusively, but with great thoroughness. A New Hampshire lady writes: "Mother has been afflicted for years with Kidney disease. Last spring she was very ill and had an alarming pain and numbness in one side. Kidney-Wort proved a great blessing and has completely cured her."

The report that Marshal Jackson had a narrow escape while bringing Saline Paine from Missouri to this city is now confirmed. The woman had her examination Friday and was committed to jail at night for lack of $500 bonds. During the night she gave birth to a bouncing babe. The woman and babe are being cared for at the jail. The child is doing well, but the woman was quite seriously ill yesterday. The city marshal believes easier as he thinks that the long trip is over and he escaped "the saddest of all it might have been."

AFTER THE BATTLE.

The interview between "The Gallant Major" and "The Girl Who Helped Defeat Him."

Hardly a word has been heard from Major Anderson since he was so overwhelmingly defeated for congress by W. H. M. Pusey. He has been almost a lost Charlie Rose, the places which knew him once know him no more. J. A. Bede, of Tabor, who fought the major so strongly during the campaign, discovered him by chance the other day, on calling at the office of Anderson & Eaton in Sidney. He said the gallant major and the editor had a very lively meeting, but no blood was shed. The major ordered him out of the office, and made the demand in so forcible terms that the scribe fled himself away to his sanctum, and there penned for The Union-Arrow the following account of the affair:

We were in Sidney, otherwise
