NEW SLEIGHS AND OLD.

Brilliant Colors and Streaming Plumes in Fashion Now, and Prices Up.

New York Sun.

"There is a heap of style about it all," said an old timer, overlooking the brilliant scene on the avenue, as he moodily chewed the butt of his cigar, "but I don't seem to see half the fun in it that I used to find years ago, in the days when the big sleighs, with twelve and fourteen horses to them, used to dash up and down Broadway, carrying the public at 25 cents a head. Anybody could have a sleigh ride in those days; one that had more solid sport and jolity in it than you could squeeze out of a mile of that procession. Now, only the rich can go sleigh riding. Perhaps it's because the climate is changing, and the snow has got so scarce as to be a luxury beyond the reach of the poor, except when they have to trudge on foot in it to hunt their grub. Yes, 25 cents it used to cost to ride in a crowd of merry plebeians the whole length of Broadway. Now, if you have luck you may get a hack, horse and an old cutter to take your girl out at $10 an hour.

The reporter asked a manufacturer of sleighs about prices.

"We have them," said the maker, "at all prices from $25 up to $500. Up to five years ago there was little variety in sleighs, and they were far less costly than they now are. The cutters were either of the swan-shaped 'Albany' pattern or the square bodied 'Portland' pattern. The first innovation was what is known as the 'Silver' pattern, which was more comfortable than the Albany and had much more graceful lines than the Portland. With the addition of springs to take off the jolts, it may be considered about perfect in its kind. But now we have a number of new styles, of great beauty and corresponding expensiveness, taken from Russian, German and Canadian models. That six seat vista-vis is a model of our own, and is the same of sleigh-building. It has a sort of landau body, with doors supported on curved iron, and is worth $800. We made several for this winter, and that is the only one we have left. This is a Canadian pattern, and is known as a caricle, or tob sleigh. Its body comes very close to the ground, and rests on solid wooden runners, has a very high front and back, and is fitted either for a driver to sit on a narrow driving-seat in front or for use without a driver's seat. This size of sleigh is worth from $175 to $250, according to finish, but very large ones are made on the same general principle that cost $400 or $500. That one with the seat perched up behind for the driver—a 'rumbly' sleigh—is Russian style, and though it holds only two, and a driver, if one is wanted, is worth $450 to $500, according to finish. There is a superb Russian-Canadian sleigh for four persons. Its body, as you see, is much like a cabriolet or Victoria carriage—price $450 to $600. This square-bodied one, with angles instead of curves every where, seats on a level, heavy moldings in panels, and rather plain in appearance, is German, and can be dragged away for just $450.

That gentleman's driving sleigh, which so much resembles a dog cart on runners, is worth $500. Here is a specimen of our speed cutters, made of forged steel and bent hickory, which weighs only fifty pounds, and is worth $5 a pound. It is strong enough to carry two good-sized men, if they could be got into it. That sort of sleigh we make a specialty of, and have sold them to Vanderbilt, Frank Work and a lot of other gentlemen fond of driving fast horses. A new and expensive thing that we have put on nearly all our sleighs this season is that nickel-plated wire snow-screen in front. It adds very greatly to the looks of a sleigh and is also useful. That fashion we call the Langsty cutter. It is worth $500.

"Sleighs last a long time if they have decent handling. One that we repaired for a gentleman this season has been in use fourteen years and is yet as fine and strong as any on the road. Most of the old sleighs, when they get too much battered up for the city or their drivers get tired of them, are traded off for the west or out on Long Island, or to Jersey. I don't know what becomes of them. They are like the 'one-hoss shay,' in that they may break down but never wear out.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle, by C. F. GUNTER.

How He Won Her.

Chicago Tribune. "Cecile!" "Yes, papa." She arose—a brown-eyed, brown-haired girl, with a rare grace and sweetness in her manner—and approached the desk before him and gazed steadily, almost fiercely, at his daughter. She returned the gaze with a timid, hesitating look, while the rosy blusher of maiden modesty chased each other rapidly across her fair young features and leaped outward into the great beyond.

"What brings young Frelinghuysen here so often?" asked the old man.

"His feet, I suppose," was the answer, in low, shrinking tones. "I noticed that he had them with him the last time he called"—and the girl shrank instinctively against her bustle.

"I want no nonsense," replied the father, "I have called you here to talk about your future. You must make a wealthy marriage."

"Papa!" "Do not interrupt me," he continued. "I have spoken my piece, and have only to add that I am a Hard Man from Wayback."

Sobering as if her heart would break, Cecille went slowly to the sofa and sat down with a dull, sickening thud. She had broken her bustle. Suddenly she arose. "I love Harold Frelinghuysen," she said, "and I will marry no other man."

"You are sure you love me?" "Can you doubt me?" asked Harold.

"Yes," replied the girl, "I can, but have decided not to"—and kissing him warmly, she went away.

Spring in Coaceton. Percival Deadwood is again seated at his desk.

"You expect young Frelinghuysen to-day?" he says to Cecile.

"Yes, papa."

Even while they are speaking the door opens and Harold enters.

"Have you come to redeem your promise?" asks the old man scornfully.

"I have," is the reply, and Harold places $50,000 in bonds on the desk. "How did you get this money, and where have you been all winter?" "Drawing him up proudly, Harold answered: "I'm a retired sand-bagger from Chicago."

PROF. ADOLPH OTT, New York, says: "I used it for scolicities, among the passengers, during a passage across the Atlantic. In the majority of cases I saw the violent symptoms yield which characterize the disease, and give way to a healthful action of the functions impaired."

To Cure the Land's Heart In New York Evening Post.

Society girls have little flat sachels of silk or satin, delicately scented and decorated with a bit of their own hand-painting, either floral or comical. These they suspend from the waist by a knot and end of narrow ribbon. Into this case they slip the card on which is printed the order of dancing. Down the back of the case are fastened small loops of ribbon, which serve to hold a tiny pencil.

The grand jury of Hancock county has indicted Frank Walker, George Fallover, M. Carter and A. M. Freeland, of State Center, for the big game steal in Hancock county for which Jim Bailey was arrested in West Virginia. It is now claimed that Bailey is not to be prosecuted, not having been indicted, and that his evidence will be used by the state to convict the men against whom bills were found.

GRATITUDE.

DEVER, CO., August 29, 1882. "GENTS—I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude to you for the cure your Swift's Specific has effected in my case. I was afflicted with the horrible disease for three years, and after spending some time at the Hot Springs I used only one dozen small bottles of S. S. S. and there is not a sign of the disease remaining. My nerves are all right, my throat is entirely free, and my health is as good as I can expect. I am full of thanks for the cure, and I shall be glad to thank of the cure by which has been brought on the human family by the use of Mercurial for Blood Diseases. It is a crying shame that physicians will not acknowledge the merit of your GRAND BLOOD MEDICINE. Use my name as you wish. J. H. RAFF.
