

THE CATTLE RANCS.

The Effects of the Recent Storms on the Western Cattle Interests.

An Aggregate Loss of Over Two Millions of Dollars Reported.

Chicago Tribune.

Colorado, Utah, February 18.—As a result of the recent storms, inquiries on behalf of the Tribune have been made to the principal regions of the cattle trade in Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, Utah and Idaho, to obtain the effect of the severe storms of the last two weeks on the immense cattle interests of the west.

The price of sheep has advanced in the last week to the highest level since the intensely cold weather had caused no loss whatever to the cattle and sheep herds, were like all other parts of that association, entirely unharmed, being raised by their interests in the "bull" side of the market.

As the cattle of the western plains roam wild and uncurbed for the year round, except during the usual "round-up," the approach of the winter season brings with it a season of death to many thousands annually.

Reports from the Beaver state that the sheep suffered a great deal during the winter season, especially the old ones, a large number dying.

Advices from the Medicine Bow region state that, while grazing spots have been left by the drifting of the snow, the cattle have suffered from the intense cold.

A telegram from Laramie states that dead antelope have been found on the roads along the Little Laramie river frozen to death.

Idaho, large herds covering all the available ranges, except on the Indian reservations. The owners of many of these herds are east, and no definite information as to their losses can be had until the spring "round-up" season.

Passengers who arrived from the east on the train to night state that deep snow still covers the entire line of the Union Pacific from Omaha here, 1,030 miles.
