Rapid Growth of the State as the Railroad Approaches Completion.

An Exception to Grasping Monopolies

SAN FRANCISCO, February 13—In spite of many evidences of growth and eager life, there are people on this coast who predict that San Francisco has already seen its best days; that its rivals to the north—Portland or Seathas already seen its best days; that its rivals to the north—Portland or Seattle—will outstrip it in the race and will ultimately wreat from it the commercial supposes. ultimately wreat from it the commercial supremacy of the Pacific. Partland especially takes much stock in these predictions. A city of 50,000 people, its growth within the last five years has been even more marvelous than that of San Francisco. The Northern Pacific, which will be completed by next September, will bring it in direct connection with the east. It already talks of lines of steamers running direct to China and Japan. It is resching out in every direction for trade, and its merchan's are aided by the railroad which does not believe in pursuing the policy that has made the Central and Southern Pacific railroads the rough and rocky coast. Hence part of that which goes to Australia ted by the Villard management, and the South Sea Islands. It will LIBERAL VS. MONOPOLY METHODS.

All the hands who can be engaged are crowded on the work, and the moving city which advances as the trace layers move forward, is composed of as bard a crowd of citizens as one will see out of jail. The dispatches from Wecksville, a new railroad town in Montana, show that the vieil

The railroad will not be completed in time to bring out any of the visitors to the triennial conclave of Knights Templar, to be held in this city in June, but the managers of the road propose to do agood tourist business from this end of the
