GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST "By a thorough knowledge of the natural lave which govern the operations of digestion and outrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our broakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save as many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maisdies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping our selves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gasette.

Dr. F. C. Valentine Exp a ns How He Performed the Operation on Mr. Okeburg.

A Surgical Remedy Which He Thinks All People Ought to Know.

ew York World.

The case of C. J. V. Okeburg, who was found in a room at the hotel St. Andre, at No. 11 Eleventh street, on Sunday morning, insensible from inhalling illuminating gas, and whose life was saved by the transfusing of blood to him from a negro named Edwin Banks, caused much comment yesterday. Dr. Ferdinand C. Valen-tine, of No. 28 Eleventh street, the yesterday. Dr. Ferdinand C. Valentine, of No. 28 Eleventh street, the physician who attended Okeburg, was seen yesterday by a reporter of the World. He said: "Since the publication in this morning's World of the account of Mr. Okeburg's case it has "Blast me, I can't stand abuse." account of Mr. Okeburg's case it has become known that the circumstances under which he nearly lost his life Girard man the crowd were purely accidental, though at the pile of rags and mud. time it did seem as though it was an 'Now, look here, n temporarily unsettled, owing to the strain caused by a pressure of business. He left home on Friday morning without health abuse him. You handled yourself well enough while you were licking me, but you overdid the abuse." ing without breakfast and wandered about the city all day Friday, and at night put up at the St. Andre hotel, where he was assigned to room No. 6. He retired about 11 o'clock, and was found in the state already described at about 6 o'clock the next morning. When I was called in I found his respirations tenor eleven to the minute and his pulse had no perceptible beat. Artificial respiration was indulged in, and we soon had his respirations up to fourteen a minute. During this operation somebody present searched be clother and from latters tound it. wt ere he was assigned to room No. 6. his clothes, and from letters found it was ascertained that he was a friend of Dr. Gerries, who was then sent for.

When he arrived we consulted and decided that the transfusing of blood should be done, and at about 1 o'clock the operation was performed."

'It was not a quart of blood, however, that was taken and transfused, as has been asserted, but six ounces of blood from Banks, and 'mmediately after the termination of the operation, Okeburg exhibited signs of returning consciousness.

THAT TATE OF SUDDEN PRATERNITY. "Is it true that after the operation Okeburg addressed Banks as his brother' and refused to recognize his

"No. That was the invention of an imaginative person who is addicted to dabling in startling theories as to physiology and is apt to be in a hurry to bolster them up. It is a fact that Okeburg did not at first recognize his wife, and it is a fact that he spoke very gratefully and warmly to Banks, but these facts are susceptible of a very simple explanation.
"His wife called while he was un-possible for him to recognize her. Fingellations and shocks of electrical currents aided us in restoring him to consciousness, which state he gained at about 6 o'clock p. m. When he was well enough we told him of the operation to which he had been one of the principals, and he earnestly thanked Banks for having given him the

"Is the transfusion of blood a rare occurrence?"asked the reporter. "No; indeed," replied Dr. Valentine. "On the contrary, it is much more common than you would believe, and it is most efficacious where a person through hemorrhage or from other causes is at death's door, from loss of blood. Nor is the operation's difficult one; on the contrary it is so simple that any intelligent person can, if properly instructed, perform it. The syringe is the only thing necessary to purchase, as cups and linen can usually be ob tained free. If the operation was generally understood, I feel confident that the loss of life at railroad accidents, boiler explosions and other like casulties, where persons in many cases die from absolute loss of blood, would be much less."

"What is the usual method of transfusing the blood?" "Well, after first tightly binding the arms of the person from whom the blood is to be taken and of the person to whom the blood is transfused, an incision is made in one of veins of the former and blood which flows from it is placed in one or two cups or bowls. Then the blood which meantime has been thoroughly besten to prevent coagulation must be atrained through a piece of linen into another cup and it is then ready for placing into the arm of the patient. This is done slowly—a little at a time -by the aid of the syring through a puncture made in a vein in the arm, and the operation is done. It is, as you will see, simple and almost invariab'y effective. Of course care must be taken to have a healthy person to draw from, as otherwise any disease might be transferred, though, to my mind, I would sooner have an unhealthy person to draw from than none at all. I most earnestly advocate the teaching of such simple life-saving remedies in the higher classes of our schools, as they are beneficial in their results and require hardly any anatomical study. I know, of course, that I will be 'pitched' into by some of the fraternity for speaking as I do, but I believe that physicians have a higher aim than keeping to them-selves simple and effective life saving remedies such as this has been proved "What is Mr. Okeburg's condition to-day?"

"He is well to day, and still remains at the hotel. I believe I will send him home on Monday, and in a few days allow him to resume work. *For the delicate and complicated

THE FRECKLE-FACED GIRL How She Entertained a Visitor While

Her Ma was Dressing. "Ma's up stairs changing her dress," said the freckle-faced little girl, tying her doll's bonnet strings and casting her eye about for a tidy large enough to serve as a shawl for that double jointed young person.

"Oh, your mother needn't dress up for me," replied the female agent of the missionary society, taking a self-satisfied view of herself in the mirror.

"Run up and tell her to come down just as she is in her everyday clothes and not stend on personary."

and not stand on ceremony. "O, but she hasn't got on her every day clothes. Ma was all dressed up day clothes. Ma was all dressed up her new brown silk, cause she expected Miss Dimond to-day. Miss Dimond always comes over here to show off her nice things, and ma don't mean to get left. When ma saw you coming she said, 'The Dickens.' I guess she was mad about something. Ma said if you saw her new dress she'd have to hear all about the poor conscious, and of course it was imhymn books to send 'um. Say, do KIDNEY-WORT the nigger women use hymn-books leaves to dot heir hair up on and make it frizzy? Ma says she guesses that's all the good it does 'em, if they get any books. I wish my doll was a heathen'.

"Why you wicked little girl, what do you want of a heathen doll? inquired the missionary lady, taking a mental inventory of the new things in the parlor to get a homily on worldly extravagance

"So folks would send her lots of nice things to wear and feel sorry to have her going about naked. Then she'd have hair to frizz, and I want a doll with truly hair and eyes that roll up like Deacon Stiderback's when he says amen on Sunday. I ain't a wicked girl, either, 'cause Uncle Dick -you know Uncle Dick, he's been out west and swears awful and smokes in and he hopes I'll be a angel pretty soon. Ma'll be down in a minute, so you needn't take your cloak off. She said she'd her war and I I and the soon of the said she'd her war at I I and the soon sequently happy. said she'd box my ears if I saked you to. Ma's putting on that old dress she had last year, 'cause she said she didn't want you to think she was able to give much this time, and she needed a new muff worse than the queer of the cannon ball islands needed ligion. Uncle Dick says you oughter go to the islands, 'cause you'd be safe there, and the natife'd be sorry they was such sinners anybybody would send you to 'em. He says he never seen a heathen hungry enough to eat you, 'less it was a blind one, an' you'd set ablind pagan's teeth on edge so he'd never hanker after any more missionary. Uncle Dick's awful funny, and makes pa and ma die laugh-

"Your Uncle Richard is a bad, de praved wretch, and ought to have remained out west, where his style is appreciated. He sets a horrible example for little girls like you."

"Oh, I think he's nice. He showed me how to slide down the bannisters. and he's teaching me to whistle when ma 'ain't around. That's a pretty cloak you've got, ain't it? Do you buy all your good clothes with missionary money? Ma says you do."

Just then the freckle-faced little giri's ma came into the parlor and kissed the missionary lady on the cheek, and said she was delighted to see her, and they proceeded to have a real sociable chat. The little girl's ms can't understand why a person who professes to be so charitable as the missionary agent does should go right over to Miss Dimond's and say such ill-natured things as she did, and she thinks the missionary is a doublefaced gossip.
