A MEXICAN TOWN.

Qualit Pictures of Every Day Life in a Mexican Village.

The Appearance of Churches and Dwellings—Beggars, Peddlers, Etc.

H. H. in March Atlantic. The town of El Paso is on the American side of the Rio Grande, opposite the old Mexican town of Paso del Norte. El Paso is two years old; Paso del Norte, three hundred and more—how much more nobody knows. A sharper antithesis could not be found in the world than these two towns afford, and the town in the flesh that El Paso is to Paso del Norte, only Paso del Norte people could describe. But they will not. They are as mute and gentle to-day as they were centuries ago, and submit to this second great conquest of their country even more silently than they did the first. The steam engine is greater than the Cortez. Their doom was sealed before; it will be accomplished now. Walking through the streets of Paso del Norte, seeing the primeval simplicity and poverty of the inhabitants, one wonders that they should not have welcomed the coming of a railroad, the bringing in of supplies, the opening of a market. But they did not. All they asked was to be left alone.

The town claims to number ten thousand inhabitants; this seems incredible. Still, it stretches for miles along the banks of the Rio Grande, an almost unbroken line of mud houses, mud-walled vineyards and orchards; and smaller lines of mud houses and mud walls, with muddy ditches added, run off at right angles to the river, for a long distance. Every doorway swarms with women and babies, every shaded ditch bank swarms with children, and the little plaza, of a Sunday, swarms with men. Perhaps there are ten thousand, after all; but that ten thousand people could be living in a town, and the town remain one month what Paso del Norte is, is a marvel, and would be an impossibility to any other race in the world; only the Mexicans could accomplish such inertia, or endure such discomfort.

Considered as a spectacle, as a picture, the town is perfect; all that heart could ask. To be there on a Sunday is to escape from America and the nineteenth century as from place and time forgotten.

The church is a long, low adobe building, with a good bell tower, of Moorish design. It is in all probability nearly three hundred years old. Part of the front has fallen, and having been left lying where it fell, has been converted by the swift sand-blowing gales into a hardened mound. The winding stairs case in the bell tower is made of solid rough-hewn logs; a clumsy post, also solid and rough-hewn, being driven through them in the corner. The ceiling of the church is made of logs, reeds, and saplings. The logs are most curiously and effectively carved in deep-out lines, intersecting each other so as to make regular diamond-shaped intervals; in each of these intervals a sort of rose, and at each intersection a projecting peg. The effect is marvellous. The effect is marvellous. The effect is marvellous.

Indigestion, dyspepsia, heart-burn, nausea, etc., cured by using Brown's Iron Bitters. Southern Snakes. A black snake attempted to despoil a beehive in Berkeley county, Va., when it was attacked the reptile and stung him to death. As Mrs. James Hattie... house to go to church, a big black snake lay coiled in the doorway, and darted forth its tongue defiantly. Her screams brought her husband, who killed the snake with the blow of a stick.

The Butler, Ala., Courier is responsible for the following: "Mr. W. G. Woodward recently killed a mammoth rattlesnake a few miles south of Butler. The snake was 9 1/2 feet long, 18 or 20 inches in circumference, and had 36 rattles. When killed it had a fawn in its mouth about half swallowed. A fight between a rattlesnake and a blacksnake was recently witnessed near Fort Worth, Texas. The blacksnake forced the fighting, gliding around in swift circles while the rattlesnake lay coiled. The circles grew smaller and the rattlesnake appeared fused as the blacksnake drew closer. His rattles ceased to give out the usual sharp sound, and his head dropped as if vertigo was seizing him. The blacksnake seized, by a lightning movement, the rattlesnake by the throat, and winding about him, the two rolled over and over together. In a few moments the rattlesnake ceased to breathe. An examination of the dead body of the rattlesnake revealed a fracture in the spine as complete as if done by a blow with a club. The rattlesnake measured five feet and three inches. The Miarlin, Texas, Index says that Mr. Oakes of that town saw a copper-headed snake two and a half feet long lying motionless under a tree. "On one side of the reptile, one or two inches from its head, there was a large green worm fastened to the body of the snake. Its powerful mandibles were fastened to the neck of the snake, and its legs, which were pointed with sharp strong fangs, were firmly planted in the reptile's body. Evidently, so far as the worm was concerned, it was an assault with intent to murder. Oakes seized a stick and despatched both snake and worm. Mr. Oakes informed us that he had noticed of late on his farm several copper-headed snakes all disembowled, and could not account for it, as the dead snakes bore no evidence of having been killed by human beings. The circumstances above related convinced him that they had been killed and disembowled by those worms."

Colorless and Cold.—A young girl deeply regretted that she was so colorless and cold. Her face was so white, and her hands and feet felt as though the blood did not circulate. After one bottle of Hop Bitters had been taken she was the rosiest and healthiest girl in the town, with a vivacity and cheerfulness of mind gratifying to her friends. A Vexed Clergyman. Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet, how very easy can all this be cured by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at C. F. Goodman's drug store.

FRITZ AT HOME.

Emmett's Wonderful Castle on the Hudson.

New York World. Mr. William Oliver, the well-known boat-builder of Harlem, has begun the construction of a gondola for Mr. J. K. Emmet, the actor. "Mr. Emmet came to me about a month ago," said Mr. Oliver to a World reporter, "and showed me a model Venetian gondola. He desired me to have one built like it. Mr. Emmet will retire to his castle on the Hudson very soon and the gondola must be ready for him. There are gondolas on the lakes in Central park and Prospect park. They were imported. Mr. Emmet's gondola will be thirty-six feet long, four feet beam and eighteen inches deep amidships. The keel has been laid, and the knees of hackmatack are ready for the side planking, which will be of cedar. There will be a cabin in the centre with Venetian blinds. The bow, made of bright steel, will support a swinging lantern. It has a curve as graceful as the neck of a swan. Sixteen people can be carried in it very comfortably. The boat will be completed about the 1st of April."

Mr. Emmet, when questioned about his new house, said: "I have traveled all over the world; I may say, and have always had one object in view—to build a house that I could live in when I became old. It is true I have a castle on the Hudson about 10 miles above Albany. It is 100 feet above the river, and there is no other landing on the wall; with his left hand holding the melon on his knee, with two fingers of the right he lazily scooped out mouthfuls of it, and carried them slowly to his mouth, the juice dripping like water all the way. At each mouthful he shut his eyes and sighed with satisfaction. Lounging up and down in the crowd went a swabby-faced man, wearing a red fez and the full, gathered Turkish trousers, selling roaches of peard olive wood. He said the roaches came from Jerusalem, and he was a Syrian. His face seemed strangely familiar to me. "Where have I seen you before?" I exclaimed. "Where you not at Ober-Ammergau, at the last Passion play?" "Yes, lady," he replied.

It was, indeed, the very man from whom I had bought roaches at Jerusalem, in the Ammergau valley, two years ago. He smiled with a superior calm, as he passed on. To his Oriental mind there was nothing surprising in the encounter; and he would, no doubt, have compassionated me as the victim of an imagination bootlessly active, if he had known how pertinaciously my eyes and my wondering fancy followed him, as he strolled back and forth, swinging his crimson and pearly beads on the fingers of his right hand, offering them with a mute gesture, so slyly; that it seemed hardly to demand recognition, and regarding with an equally nonchalant glance the who bought and those who turned away. From Ober-Ammergau to Paso del Norte to sell strings of beads! It must have been some other errand that brought him.

THE BAD AND WORTHLESS

Are never initiated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy initiated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums, but in similar style to H. B., with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in away to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.
