Weather Report

(The following observations are taken at the same moment of time at all the stations mentioned.)

WAR DEPT. U. S. SIGNAL SERVICE, OMAHA, MARCH 4, 1883, (1:45 p. m.)

LOCAL BRIEVITIES.

The attention of the residents of Capitol Hill is called to a case of real destitution existing at the last house on the south side of Douglas street going west, in the second hollow. This is the residence of a Mrs. Johnson, the wife of a carpenter, who after living with her some time, during which he drank hard, deserted her and left her with two little children to take care of.

The reception given on Saturday evening to Mr. G. A. Joplin, the new secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was a decided success in every particular. After a short song service President Hinshaw, Wm. Fleming, Dr. Wood and others made speeches welcoming him and asking members and friends to encourage and assist him in his work.

F. W. White, the individual who came to Omaha a few days ago representing himself to be the agent of the Boston Ideal, turns out to be a bad man. He is now wanted at Winona, Minn., for a forgery committed three months ago.

The ravine followed by the South Omaha sewer is in horrible shape between Ninth and Tenth streets. On the east end is a fifty pond of stagnant water, its banks covered with manure and all sorts of rubbish.

The examination of Mose Roben, arrested on the charge of counterfeiting, was commenced in the court of United States Commissioner Anderson Saturday afternoon, but was not completed, and was adjourned over until Monday.

The Swede employed on the Florence cut-off who froze his feet some time in January last, died from the effects of the same at the county house Sunday, March 4. It is possible that he may have some friends or relatives in this part of the country, but Superintendent Pierce could not even give his name.

The immense pile of empty oil barrels around the old frame building next to the Consolidated Tank Line company's warehouse, on Ninth street, is in prime shape to start a conflagration that will take in the lumber yards and everything else in the vicinity.

On March 1st, Mrs. Mary Furey, mother of Major J. V. Furey, depot quartermaster at Omaha, died at Brooklyn, at the age of 77 years, after a long illness. Major Furey, who was summoned from Omaha on Sunday last, was at her bedside when she died.

Members of the board of trade are requested to meet in the board of trade rooms this evening at 8 o'clock, to take into consideration the establishment of a very important new manufacturing industry, and other business.

Charley Coulter, of the paid fire department, has finished putting the electric apparatus into the new No. 2 engine house. It works nicely and already the men can hitch and get out in fifteen seconds.

The trains both ways on the U. P. yesterday had light loads of passengers. No. 3 carried two Pullmans, one being occupied by the Harrisons. She also had two extra dinkeys. No. 4 brought in two cars of fruit.

We were informed yesterday that Gov. Dawes had determined to appoint Judge Wakely to the new judicial office in this district created by the recent legislature and that his commission would arrive to-day.

Ninth street is to dry now as to be very passable for teams. Next to the Tenth street is settling down faster than any in the city. Good drainage does it.

A couple of fat cars loaded with trucks and a demolished box car, were brought in yesterday from the scene of a recent wreck out on the line.

Friday evening, March 9, in the Unitarian church. Subject, "The Beginning of Geological Time." This is the professor's latest and best lecture.

Charley Whitney has been appointed captain of the Union Pacific base ball nine for the coming season.

A Nemaha county man wants to dispose of 400 bushels of "wine saps" in the Omaha market.

Yesterday was a foggy, chilly day, very unlike the close of the preceding week.

The board of education holds its regular monthly meeting to-night.

The week closing in good shape over head and had shape under foot.

The roller skating rink will be lighted by gas after Tuesday evening next.

Regular meeting of Geo. A. Custer post this evening. A large attendance is requested. Geo. M. O'Brien, commander; C. F. Fitch, adjutant.

A regular meeting of Capitol lodge No. 3, A. F. & A. M., this evening March 5th, at 7:30. A full attendance of members is desired. By order of the master.

Mrs. Alice Martin, sister of Mrs. Jacob Williams of this city, died at Topeka on last Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Williams attended the funeral and returned to Omaha on Tuesday.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors are requested to attend the regular monthly meeting to be held this evening, March 5th, at 7:30 o'clock, at the rooms of the association, by order of the president, J. E. Davidson, secretary.

In Judge Benke's court Saturday two men were arraigned for fighting. One was committed in default of $5 and the other and the other case was continued until this afternoon. One Slocum had his case continued, and one disturber of the peace paid his fine.

Harrison & Hart's "Squatter Sovereignty," direct from their New York theatre, will be presented at Boyd's next Tuesday and Wednesday, with the original effects which made the piece famous by its long run in New York city.

The Marie Goldinger grand opera company, the largest and most extensive organization that has ever visited Omaha, will appear at the opera house next Friday and Saturday, presenting "Trampette," Friday, "Boccaccio" at the matinee, and "Parisian Life" Saturday night. The company supporting this great artist includes sixty-two members.

A complaint has been filed against two boys, charging them with stealing furniture from John Edwards.

A strong team is the new coal firm of Benson & Collins. They handle all kinds of coal, but make a specialty of walnut coal, said to be the best soft coal in the market. Their office is at Benson's old stand, 211 South Thirteenth street.

M. S. Martinovich, formerly connected with THE OMAHA BEER, but at present representing the wholesale liquor house of Stubbendorf & Co., Omaha, is in the city on his regular business trip. Mr. Martinovich is one of those popular, energetic men who make a success of all they undertake, and will build up a business for Stubbendorf & Co. in Wyoming far ahead of any other competitors can boast.

Commissioner O'Keefe has received a dispatch from Gov. Dawes, in response to one of inquiry, to the effect that house bills No. 306 and 298 have been signed, and have therefore become laws. No. 309 is the road bill which provides for the improvement of roads and avenues leading from the city, for a distance of two miles out and authorizes the commissioners to levy a tax on all persons owning property within 500 feet of the road to cover one-third of the cost of such improvement. No. 298 is a bill extending the time for the equalization of taxes.

Assistant Superintendent Thompson, of the B. & O., we learn that during the last week about 150 cars of emigrant novelties have arrived in Lincoln and that large numbers are on the way in thirty or forty trains. On February 27th twenty-seven cars arrived; on the 28th, four; on March 1st, twelve cars; on the 2d, twenty-seven cars; and on the 3d, twenty-nine cars. These emigrant cars are loaded with household goods and there is an increase of one family or more to the car. There were sixty people on the train that arrived yesterday. The larger part of them who have arrived thus far are from Illinois, and most of them go north over the Nebraska road and the rest over the main line. All of them will settle and make homes and help develop the resources of Nebraska. Besides the emigrant trains there is, of course, a large proportion of the arrivals who come by the regular trains. The trains are all heavily loaded now. No. 1 yesterday brought in 481 grown people and 125 children, and every day brings in trains almost as well filled.

THE RIVER.

Conjectures as to the Coming Break-Up—A Dynamic Plan.

While the ice has gone out of the river at various points far below us, it still remains solid at Omaha, although covered to a considerable extent with water. Here, too, it is braced somewhat by the numerous bands, which hold it in place like the threads of a screw. River men in Sioux City say that if the present weather continues the ice will melt out, and opening from the lower end will not make any flood. The weather so far has been all right for a quiet, unseasonal break-up.

TOM POWERS' OPINION.

The St. Paul Pioneer-Press of the 1st inst. has the following opinion from the coming break up on Tom Powers, the well known steamboat owner: Thomas Powers, of the Yellowstone, gave as his opinion that should the upper Missouri and upper Yellowstone break up soon, and he is afraid they will, the dangers of a damaging flood are imminent. The water along the valleys are fearful that a rain may set in. Advice from Fort Buford of recent date give the thickness of the ice in the river at that point—the junction of the Missouri and Yellowstone—as four feet, and from this much damage below is predicted when the break-up comes. A decided depth of snow reported in the valley of the Missouri and at the lower valley of the Yellowstone, and a gradual thaw, unaccompanied by rain, is earnestly prayed for. The Eliphee is frozen in at Red Butte, thirty miles above Buford, and but faint hopes are entertained of keeping her afloat.

The Sioux City Journal of Friday says: The river is still solid from shore to shore. The last bridge of the St. Paul railroad holds as firmly as ever, and trunks crossed yesterday without shaking it to any extent. On the ice much water is standing and running. In places it is deep enough to quite seriously retard the progress of heavily loaded teams. As far as noticed, however, the ice beneath has not rotted away. The small streams running into the river are up and flooding their banks, and from them a large body of water is pouring into the river, which must in a few days cause an increase in the body of the river water, which will make the ice crack and bulge perceptibly. As yet everything is secure and safe. Freight is being transferred across the ice bridge and no preparations have been made to take up the iron. On account of the depth of water on the ice not many Nebraska teams came across yesterday, but several loads of goods were sent over from this city.

Regarding the break up of the ice, the idea was advanced by a river man yesterday that it would be a good scheme to assist by the use of dynamite. The gentleman's plan was to explode the dynamite at various points down the river and up as far as Yankton. He said the expense would be very light to the government, comparatively, and nothing as compared with the additional safety which would be given to the people living and owning property along the Big Muddy. This would commence at the mouth of the Platte and work up stream, and explode as fast as possible and as nearly as possible in the channel.

A SUNDAY FIRE. Burns a Small Shed Near the St. Charles Hotel.

About noon yesterday a small blaze was discovered in the laundry connected with the St. Charles hotel, which is a small shed located in the alley between Twelfth and Thirtieth, Harney and Farnam. It caught in the ceiling, probably from a defective flue, and immediately burst out in a sheet of flame through the roof. An alarm was sent in by telephone and responded to by the Hooks and No. 3, previous to whose arrival one of the men of the house got a small stream on through the garden hose. When No. 3's stream went on it knocked the fire out of time in one round and also knocked the man with the garden hose off the roof. A little later the stream accidentally struck ex Alderman Shannon just behind the car and doored him.

The following account was allowed from the bridge fund, Missouri Valley bridge and iron works, one-half costs of iron work on Elkhorn river bridge, $2,650. Adjoined.

JOHN BAUMER, County Clerk. SATURDAY, March 3, 1883. Board met pursuant to adjournment. Present, Commissioners Corliss, Knight and O'Keefe.

The following appointments were made, J. G. Knight, assessor Union precinct, P. W. Manville, assessor 3rd precinct, H. S. Ludington, assessor of highways south district, Union precinct.

Official bond of J. G. Knight as assessor Union precinct was approved. The following resolution was adopted: RESOLVED, That the county treasurer, and he is hereby directed to reduce the valuation of personal property of Chas. H. Sampson from $650 to $100 for year 1882, on account of error of assessor.

The clerk was directed to advertise for proposals to remove Sixteenth street bridge to Florence, and grading same, also for building 54 foot bridge at Millard.

Silas Springer and others filed their protest against straightening the Elkhorn river.

JOHN BAUMER, County Clerk. HOME CIRCLE CLUB. Preparations for the Coming Character Party and Ball Masque.

"The Home Circle Club," which has given some of the most enjoyable parties of the season, have concluded to give a character party and masquerade on the 15th of March, at Masonic Hall, the occasion being the last party of the series of 1882-3.

The affair will be a novelty in its way. Characters from "Mascotte," "Olivette," "Pirates of Penzance," and others will be taken by members of the club. A limited number of spectators will be allowed.

A SAD CASE

Mrs. J. U. Metcalf Becomes Insane From Sickness.

The friends of Mr. J. U. Metcalf, the well known checkman for M. W. Kennard, will regret to learn of the misfortune he has recently experienced.

A short time ago his wife gave birth to a little one and was apparently getting on all right, until some days later she was taken with puerperal fever, followed by blood poisoning, from the effects of which she became insane, and was yesterday taken down to Lincoln to be placed in the hospital for medical treatment.

The first signs of her malady were when she morning she informed those in attendance that she was possessed of the power of the Holy Ghost. The family here was a Bohemian girl, who could not speak a word of English, and the sick woman stated that she was working on her, and that she would shortly come into the room and talk in a new tongue. Since that time she has imagined that she herself could converse in other languages and was constantly speaking what she called Bohemian, which was unintelligible to any one.

The physician thinks it possible that with six weeks of care she may recover, unless the disease has produced softening of the brain. The child is perfectly healthy.

THE WEATHER.

Its Effects on Business During the Past Week.

No finer weather than the past week has brought us has been experienced in the city for several months. Balm breezes and a clear, azure sky were the uniform rule. The mud has been kneaded into a solid mould, and the crossings made passable by the thousand treads of the pedestrians. But what an amount of profanity was spent before the latter feat was accomplished may be better imagined than can be described. With the appearance of the sun, outdoor work has been more active, and if the fine weather only consents to stay with us the boom which the December frost killed so effectively is likely to be revived at once. So far it has had the effect of bringing the people out in the evening in greater numbers than at any time during the season, and the theater and other places of amusement have had a greater run, despite the Lenten season. One disappointment has been experienced, however, and that was Mrs. Langtry's failure to appear with her "Reddy and show 'As You Like It.'" According to the latest reports the happy twin were speeding eastward, and Mr. Langtry was got to be heard from.

Uncle Sam is a right jovial fellow as a rule, and the grace with which he submits to the handling of his cash box is truly admirable. But when he sees the battle ax and goes about decapitating officials heads all fun seems to depart him. Judge Cronson can tell a little story about this, and if you are so minded Mr. Hall will soon be able to do likewise. How uncertain the gifts of the world are foretold. Here it is just two years since General Garfield was inaugurated in the highest office in the gift of the nation, and now scarcely a mention is made of his memory.

A short time ago, Elliott, the champion pugilist, appeared in the city to an eager crowd in a sparring exhibition. A great deal of fuss was made of the advantages of the manly art of self defense, but when it came to the scratch in Chicago, all the art in the world was not able to save him from ending as a first-class corpse. Muscle is good enough in its place, but the invention of destructive agents, to a great extent, has removed the inequalities of brute force and the best mode of self-defense is at long range, beyond the reach of combative nature. But Mr. Elliott's failure at self-defense was not the only loss which befell this week. In our virtuous midst the defense, though less sanguinary, of a devoted church member, ended disastrously. All of which might have been avoided if a wider range had been taken.

GENERAL HARRINGTON. A Man Who Saw Omaha in Its Infancy and Its Maturity.

Gen. George W. Harrington, who represents the Stein Manufacturing company of Rochester, N. Y., is in the city on a regular business trip. He deals in wooden overcoats.

General Harrington passed through this city in 1857 with Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston's army, and went through with them to Utah, participating in the memorable experiences of that time.

At that time Omaha was but a little trading post, and the young army officer little thought that a quarter of a century later he would be selling coffins in a metropolis of 50,000 people. The general graduated at West Point in 1850, and rose gradually to the position of brigadier of volunteers, and when mustered out of that service was holding the rank of lieutenant colonel in the regular army, being retained in 1869 on account of disability.

Gen. Harrington is a fine looking gentleman, whom not one out of a thousand would take to be over 35 years of age, but who is in reality only 57. He comes of a long lived family, his father being 83 years of age and his grandfather, still living, 105. He himself will probably live to be as old as Methuselah.

A curious circumstance connected with the general's visit to the city, especially when his peculiar business is considered is that he has never until to-day come without finding Corner Jacobs busy holding an inquest. He has been here at nearly all of the important occasions of this kind for the past three years, including the inquest on the wife murder and suicide in Bohemiantown, the murder of Col. Watson B. Smith and on the last visit, the sewer accident on North Twelfth street, in which one man was smothered to death.
