LOU HAUCK OUT OF LUCK. An Old-Time Monte Man in Custody For Killing One of His Victims.

Six or seven years ago the shining lights of the three card monte business were Bill Jones and Lou Hauck.

The former, better known as "Canada Bill," devoted his attention to the territory west of the Mississippi river, while the latter confined his operations to the section of country on the other side of that stream, making his headquarters at Columbus, O. One was the terror of the gambling houses of eastern railroads. Detective John T. Norris, of the Columbus, Hooking Valley & Toledo road passed through this city yesterday with Hauck, who is wanted in Delaware, O, for killing a traveling salesman named Paul Lohman on New Year's day, 1879.

Immediately after the tragedy he fled south, residing for brief periods in Washington, Richmond, Jacksonville, Norfolk and other cities, then drifted to Cuba, thence into Texas and Mexico.

He met and married a woman of Mexican California. During his travels in the west he was known as Doc Davis. The railroad officials endeavored to keep track of the fugitive's movements and after a chase, occupying years, their detectives finally located him a Los Angeles, where he was arrested by the county sheriff and turned over to Norris.

LOU HAUCK IS KNOWN AS ONE OF THE MOST expert "three-card throwers" in America. One of the trio composing the old game was a resident of St. Louis. The Hauck party made Columbus, O., its base of operations for several years, and that city was its headquarters at the time of the Lohman tragedy. The accounts thereof that have been published are inaccurate.

At the time of Hauck's arrest the particulars of the crime were furnished to a party now in St. Louis by one who was on the train at the time the killing occurred. The gentlemen alighted to meet one of the party, who was pronounced them man and wife the applause was deafening. Ladies waved their handkerchiefs as Bobbie kissed his wife. Mr. Bunell then came forward and congratulated them, and all the curiosities extended congratulations, after which the company went down stairs to the wedding breakfast. Mr. and Mrs. Housa is twenty-five years old, and was born at Hartford.
