LOCAL BREVITIES.

The residence of James Ruane, No. 612 South Sixteenth street, was entered by burglars Friday night. They got in by turning the key in the front door with a...

A two-story home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kosh, living seven miles west of this city, was destroyed by fire on Saturday while they were in town. Three little children left alone, made their escape in safety, and the origin of the fire is a mystery. The loss is about $3,000, on which there is some insurance.

Miss M. A. James, the niece of Mr. Eugene O'Neill, whose house was burglarized last week, could not identify the men who were arrested on suspicion, although there was a strong resemblance between one of them and one of the robbers. They were accordingly discharged.

Jerry O'Grady, formerly on the "regular" force and now a "special" on duty at Kessler's hall, was attacked by a couple of young fellows on Saturday evening, stabbed in the side with a pocket knife and cut on the head with a "hilly." The officer succeeded in landing one of his assailants in jail.

Two shots were fired early Saturday evening in the alley in the rear of Hornberger's saloon. The reports attracted Policeman Armour and quite a large crowd of men to the spot. A couple of young men were found and searched for weapons, but had none and were discharged.

The change of weather between Saturday night at 3 o'clock and Sunday morning was decided enough to affect nearly everybody. A slight flurry of snow fell yesterday morning, and the blizzard howled all day long.

The A. O. H. and their splendid band returned from Plattsmouth, where they went to celebrate St. Patrick's day, on Saturday evening and presented a fine appearance as they marched up the streets to their hall.

The firm of Schlank & Prince has strengthened its working force by acquisition of Mr. J. G. Cronland to their number. Mr. C. is known by everybody and will always give his friends a hearty reception.

The garnish at Ft. Omaha turned out Saturday to extinguish a prairie fire west of the barracks which threatened to destroy some of the government buildings. It was quenched without damage.

There is visiting at the residence of Mrs. C. B. Goodrich a lady who was the first white child born in Nebraska. Her maiden name was Allie, and she was born at Bellevue 41 years ago.

Regular meeting of George A. Custer Post, No. 7, department of Nebraska, G. A. R., will be held Monday evening, March 19, 1883. Visiting comrades are invited to attend.

The election of officers for the ensuing year for St. George's society will take place on Tuesday evening, March 20th. All the members are requested to be present.

Travel was fair yesterday, and trains heavier than usual, but one of the railway employes says a blizzard like this always sets immigrant travel back.

The silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. H. Patrick will be appropriately celebrated by their friends this afternoon and evening.

The Social Art club will open their rooms on Monday, the 19th, for the sale of decorative art work in all its branches.

D. W. Sax, the druggist, with Judge Thurston and Henry Homan, Jr., left yesterday for a big duck hunt.

The Wahwah was two and a half hours late yesterday morning and the overland train did not wait on her.

The equinoctial storm has begun. The last week of Lent.

It is stated that trace of the gold watch stolen from Mr. Eugene O'Neill, in Wednesday morning's burglary has been discovered at Sidney.

Harvey Holmes, the colored thief, was sent up for thirty days. A piece of silk valued at $30 was found by search warrant Friday, with other valuables, all the property of S. P. Morse & Co.

Special meeting of Capital Lodge No. 3, A. F. & A. M., this evening, March 19th, for work in the second degree. Visiting brethren cordially invited. By order of the master.

Bender's new Map of Omaha just completed and ready for delivery at $5 each; in four feet by seven feet. Largest and most complete map of Omaha ever published. OFFICIAL map of the city. See column.

It is reported that Jack Hanley will shortly reappear in the arena with a noted eastern boxer. It is said that under Jack's tutelage some of the young men who belong to the gymnasium club are becoming experts at the manly art.

The custom of sending cards appears still to be on the increase, as is shown by the fact that this year twice as many cards are being sold as last by Kuhn & Co., cards

IRELAND'S PATRON SAINT.

A Beautiful Word Picture by Rev. F. Calmer, S. J.

St. Patrick, His Life the Prototype of the Life of the Irish People.

Rev. F. Calmer, S. J., lectured in St. Philomena's cathedral, on last Saturday evening, the festival of St. Patrick, before an audience which filled the church. The subject was "The life of St. Patrick, the prototype of the life of the Irish people." It was a brilliant effort, lasting for more than an hour, and was listened to throughout with breathless interest and attention. From the lecture the following extracts are made. Father Calmer lectures again next Sunday evening in the church of the Holy Family.

In the book of Ecclesiastics, the wise-man exhorts us "to praise men of renown and our fathers in their generation; for these men of mercy, whose Godly deeds have not failed; good things continue with their seed; their posterity are a holy inheritance; and their seed hath stood in the covenant; and their children, for their sakes, remain forever; their seed and their glory shall not be forsaken. Let the people shall forth their wisdom, and the church declare their praise" (Ecc. 44).

We are assembled here to-night, obedient to this exhortation; we are here with filial devotion to praise that man of renown, whose Godly deeds have not failed, whose good things continue with his seed, whose children's glory shall not be forsaken—the father of our generation, whose praise the church declares to-day—St. Patrick, the father of the Irish people and their patron saint. There are some, not of our faith, who do not understand the enthusiasm awakened in every Irish heart at the return of his festival every year. But let them examine its motive, and I doubt not they will consider themselves promoters in their censures. Glory is the homage paid to excellence, and praise is the expression of this feeling. Yet so various are the opinions of men, according to their different educations, pursuits and habits, that what is meritorious with some, by others is neglected and despised. Hence, the children of the world may say to the children of whose name is not written in the book of life; and eminence in crime has been praised. But true excellence is based only on virtue and that glory, which comes not from God and tends not to His greater honor, is but a dream which returning consciousness puts to flight, a phantom which should never be esteemed by a Christian people.

Of this we are reminded by the words of the apostle: "He that glorifieth, let him glory in the Lord; for not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom God commendeth." God alone, therefore, who knoweth all hearts, renders to each according to his merits, and those whom He has honored, we cannot err in praising. And having thus the approbation of Heaven, we care not what the world may say; we will praise that man, whom God glorified and "whose glory shall not be forsaken." But even though we had not this visible sanction from on high, while faith and virtue and country are dear to our souls, nature itself would impel us to praise him whose festival we celebrate—the chosen minister of the Almighty, the regenerator of a country still darkened by the spiritual parent of numbers of illustrious saints, "our fathers in their generation." If our tongues be silent, our hearts must speak, and, at least, what Irishman would wish, though he were able, to hush the pleasing thrill that throbs within his breast when, on this day, before the altar of his faith, he calls to mind his patron and parent, the glorious St. Patrick, the father of his people?

He will have an additional reason or motive, if, after these general remarks, he attentively considers the subject, which I have chosen as the theme of a few words, this evening: "The Life of St. Patrick, the Prototype of the Life of the Irish People."

There is a remarkable passage found in the Acts of the Apostles, which may be applied to St. Patrick. St. Luke, speaking of St. Paul, the apostle of the Gentiles, says to the Lord said to him: "For this event have I appeared to thee, that I may make thee a minister and a witness of those things wherein I will appear to thee, to open thine eyes, that they may be converted from darkness to light and from power of Satan to God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins and inheritance among the saints by the faith that is in me."—E. 26-27 Ec. These words strike the keynote of my discourse; they body forth the leading idea to which I desire to call your attention; they portray the salient features of the life of the apostle and that of his people—and with justice do I apply them to him. For like Paul, when he stood before King Agrippa, giving him an account of his conversion and his subsequent apostolic life, St. Patrick, God's vessel of election to carry His name before gentiles and kings, might have spoken these same words, when he stood before the proud king of Tara. God had delivered him from the people, and the nation to which He had sent him to open the eyes of the Irish people shrouded in the gloom of idolatry "that they might be converted from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, that they might receive the forgiveness of sins and a lot among the saints" by the faith that was in Him.

It is this grand gift of faith bestowed upon Ireland and its people that lays claim to their special veneration and honor of the saints. His heart that was filled with burning zeal for the conversion of Ireland and was so loving, so large and full that He knew as the best remedy for Coughs, Colds, Throat diseases and Asthmatic troubles. Price, 25 cents a box.

TIRELESS TOILERS.

The Silent Forces at Work While Most Men Sleep.

A Tribute to the Power of the Press.

One day last week a Bix reporter, who happened in at the Paxton hotel, met Mr. C. E. Bennett, the wide-awake general agent for H. E. Bucklin, of Chicago, proprietor of the famous medicines, including Dr. King's New Discovery, etc. Mr. Bennett was in the city arranging for the handling and advertisement of the goods sent out by this house, which has three factories, one at Chicago, one at Elkhart and one at Hamilton, Ont.

ENORMOUS BUSINESS done by the firm may be judged from the fact that their goods, which are sold on a positive guarantee, are handled by over 15,000 druggists, and are advertised in over 6,000 of the best papers in the country.

"SCHEME" ADVERTISING. The agent was interviewed on the subject of advertising in general and whether in his business it had changed any in the past few years. "I was formerly with the Hop Bitters folks," was the reply, "and have had a large experience in this important branch of our trade. Formerly heavy business was done, huge announcements were plastered on fences, walls and every conceivable place of prominence! Even NATURE'S GRANDEST WORKS were utilized, the magnificent mountain scenery was ruthlessly amersed in paint until the eye was characterized as "vandalic," and thousands of posters were scattered in every city, village and hamlet. The ceilings of street cars, the hotel registers, and so on, announced the various wares in letters which he who ran might read. All this was what we called scheme advertising."

"Only to a limited extent, and by firms of secondary importance. Our firm has ABSOLUTELY DISCARDED all but newspaper advertising, and we find that by its use we have accomplished more in two years than we could have done by five years of bill posting and distributing circulars."

"It is rapidly becoming so, as this is the experience of all medicine houses who used to follow scheme advertising, but have now abandoned it entirely. We find the newspapers working for us

WHILE WE ARE ASLEEP. "Do you advertise in all papers indiscriminately?" "Not at all! We find that advertising in cheap papers doesn't pay and make a point to get into the best, first-class papers only, such as THE BEE, which charges us, by the way, five times the price for its space asked by any other newspaper in Nebraska. We find in such cases, nevertheless, that the result justifies the expenditure."

"Can you give any idea of the outlay and income of the patent medicine houses in this country?" "A SMASHING TRADE. "In round numbers over $7,000,000 per year is invested in newspaper advertising in America. There are nearly 1,600 patent medicine houses in all, and their sales will aggregate $35,000,000 per annum. All this has been worked up by the press, and, as I have said, years of experience have determined us to put all our scheme money into newspaper advertising."

"This is a general rule, is it?" "Yes, an invariable one. In your own city, for instance, Mr. C. F. Goodman, who handles the goods of H. E. Bucklin here, informs us that since he has been advertising in the best papers, he has sold five times as much as he did six months ago."
