A SURPRISE.

A Chicago Lawyer Stopped in the Opera House Lobby,
And Presented With a Handsome Diamond Solitaire.

It was the last night of the Madden engagement. The Boyd was filling rapidly, and the lobby, the foyer were as indicative of life and beauty as they usually are when Omaha amusement patrons let themselves out. The ladies' reception-room had, as customary, a number of maids and matrons paying their last respects to matters of toilet and satisfying themselves of their perfect irresistibility, before their entrance of the auditorium.

A trio of young gentlemen had just ascended to the landing of the marble stairway and were approaching the flight which leads to the entrance, when a young lady, richly attired, and accompanied by a matronly lady, exclaimed, "There he is, mamma!" The three young gentlemen turned. As they did so the elderly lady approached, and addressing one of them, requested him to step with her to the reception-room. The unrequested young gentlemen, of course, "moved on."

Within the room, the matronly lady said: "Mr. Nolan, I am delighted to meet you, and desire to cancel a debt of gratitude, for which I have long been in arrears. My daughter tells me it was you who saved her life, some years since in the mountains of Colorado. She thought she recognized you at the hotel to-day, and now it is positive you are the man, indeed. If you will kindly accept this little souvenir of my appreciation of your exceeding heroism, you will place me under even more heart-felt gratitude."

Mr. H. W. Nolan is not a bashful man, because he is a lawyer and a Chicagoan. Nor is he the modesty of that Omaha native which would prevent him from wearing the beautiful solitaire diamond which he feelingly accepted on this occasion. If the gentleman, at all, faltered it was because of the languishing effect the young lady's grateful, yet modest glances had upon him, presumably because of the proprietary right exercised over them by a gentleman present who was introduced as the young lady's husband.

The scene was a short one, and upon its conclusion, all adjourned to their respective seats in the auditorium.

Seven years ago Mr. Nolan was prospecting in the mountains. He was climbing a circuitous road to a mining camp, when a runaway horse, to which clung a frightened and powerless lady rider, and which had been driven away from a party of equestrians and their escorts, came galloping rapidly toward him. At a bend in the road both rider and animal would have been dashed to destruction, a thousand feet below. At the risk of his life, he reached the bridge of the horse as it was flying past him, and in a short time, brought the animal to his knees. Both horse and rider were saved. The party and escorts soon came up and bore their member home. Mr. Nolan had not time nor inclination to accompany them and pose as rescuer, and consequently continued his journey. He soon staked beyond the divide, and never heard who he had rescued.

After years of absence and separation, all the parties met here as transients as above related.

Long Pine and Vicinity.
To the Editor of THE BEE:

As your columns contained an article recently in the interest of Alnoworth, written by some imaginary being purporting to be a judge of town, lands, sand, etc., we beg leave to ask you to give space for a few thoughts somewhat different. We shall not undertake to burden your readers with a lengthy detail of the misrepresentations presented by your visionary correspondent. He seemed to be disposed to defame Long Pine, and praise Alnoworth as the only town of importance in this part of Nebraska.

Now, we are not disposed to say anything harsh or wrong of Alnoworth, but when a relic of barbarism writes such an infamous lot of falsehoods as was presented in that article, there is no way to undo the wrong when presented in a respectable paper as THE BEE but to refute it by the whole truth. Long Pine is worthy in the center of the new county. We have the finest water-power for mills we have ever seen. Ten thousand or more acres of the land near Long Pine have been taken during the past winter. About six thousand acres have been taken near here by your correspondent's personal friends, and an unusual emigration is now pouring into Long Pine and vicinity.

Your correspondent would have your readers believe that Long Pine is a dwindling away, but such is not the fact. Business men are coming here, and Mr. Smith has just put down a large lot of lumber as an evidence of the demand still going on. We also have a good new furniture store. The merchants have increased their stock. Farming implements have been brought on lately, and Glover & Whitmore are doing a lively business in their bank. A new newspaper, The Long Pine Journal, has just started, and commences with a large subscription list and a number of advertisements as the paper will show. Twenty-five new dwelling houses in the neighborhood of Long Pine will be erected in the course of three or four weeks. Several new ones are going up now.

As to the lands near Long Pine, good judges have said that it is almost precisely such soil as the great wheat producing valley of California. We write nothing but what can be proved, millers are here now looking after millsties. Mr. Upstill is at this writing putting in a mill and will be manufacturing lumber in a few days. An intelligent public will judge whether Long Pine is dying or not.

Now as the gentleman saw fit to make a large statement in regard to the business outlook of Alnoworth, we would barely mention that we have the following business houses in Long Pine, and the stores and other places of business are doing well:

Tracy—Dry goods, groceries, boots, shoes, clothing and general merchandise.

Rye—Dry goods, groceries, boots, shoes and general merchandise.

Wheeler—Groceries and provisions, confectionery, etc.

Skinner—Hardware, cutlery, etc.

Spafford—Druggist, stationery, etc.

Mead—Furniture, undertaking, etc.

L. S. King—Millinery, dressmaking, etc.

Glover & Whitmore—Bankers.

Glover—Land commissioner.

Moore—General feed store.

Skinner—Feed store.

Ringard—Blacksmith.

Sander—Harness maker.

Hoteles—Long Pine house, railroad eating house.

Mrs. Miller—Baker and dining room.

Ferguson—Dairyman and milk merchant.

Hotel livery and feed stable.

Gill—Meat merchant.

Smith—Lumber, lath, lime, etc.

We have a railroad round house, railroad division and a fine depot.

John Danks—Dryman.

What It Did For an Old Lady.
CONSUMPTION STATION, N. Y., December 26, 1878.
GENTS—A number of people had been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In one case, a lady over seventy years, had been sick for years, and for the past ten years has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent her to Depot, forty-five miles away, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It improved her so she was able to dress herself and walk about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's, and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use.

DELEVAN, Wis., Sept. 24, 1878.
GENTS—I have not taken quite one bottle of the Hop Bitters. I was a feeble old man of 78 when I got it. To-day I am as active and feel as well as I did at 30. I see a great many that need such a medicine.

D. BOYCE.

wouldn't make a move in that case." Is it possible?" gasped one. "You bet it is possible. It's not only possible, but the minute I begin to throw my chalk on the market, over will come a whole fleet of English vessels each one loaded with chalk, and another of America's industries will receive its death blow at the hands of pauper labor. I tell you, gentlemen, we might as well be infernal cannibals as free-born American patriots!"

"The man who knows nothing of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham and her sovereign remedy for women is wanted for a juryman. The fact clearly proves that he does not read the papers."—N. H. Register.
