Seven Rounds Ended With One Terrific Blow. James McLaughlin Beaten by the "Black Diamond" After the Crowd Had Attended a Cook Fight.

New York Times April 7. In various stages of sleepiness and inebriety a crowd, which finally numbered about 200 men, began to collect at break of day yesterday on a grass plot which sloped gradually from the rear of a hotel on many yards distant from the old Coney Island horse track. Most of them had spent the night around a cook-pit, improvised in a room adjoining the hotel bar.

In the upper part of the hotel two men had been resting quietly. They were Henry Woodson, a colored man, known as the "Black Diamond," and James McLaughlin, a white man. A ring was formed on the turf by the spectators, but there were no stakes or ropes. About thirty carriages formed an outer circle. The "sporting gentlemen" who made up the purse had apparently insisted that the best man should win. The seconds of the black man won the toss, and selected the high ground of the slope. At 5:16 o'clock time was called, and the fighters sprang into the ring. The colored man was naked to the waist, and wore white trunks and drawers. The white man was similarly attired, except that he wore a light sleeveless shirt. The colored man weighed 180 pounds, and is 5 feet 9 inches in height. The muscles stood out like great knots on his shoulders, breast, and arms. McLaughlin is half an inch shorter than his antagonist and about 10 pounds lighter. His muscles had a marked development, but not the hard set of the colored man's. So eager were the men for the fray that they forgot to shake hands until told to by the referee. The men undoubtedly wore gloves, but the coverings added very little to the bulk of their closed fists.

The colored man led off in the fighting and landed lightly on McLaughlin's stomach with his left. He tried again, but the blow fell short. Woodson moved up quickly and hit McLaughlin on the mouth and breast without receiving a blow in return. A wrestle and fall ended the round in 35 seconds. The colored man had the best of the wrestling, which surprised his opponent's friends. McLaughlin is a collar and elbow wrestler, and his chances of winning were chiefly based on his ability in that line. In the second round McLaughlin led with a second round blow on the "Black Diamond" jaw. Woodson countered heavily on McLaughlin's mouth and followed up with clean hits on the eye and mouth, McLaughlin falling to make any return. A clinch and a fall ended the round in 45 seconds, with McLaughlin on top. When time was called for the second round McLaughlin sent out his right and caught Woodson heavily on the jaw. McLaughlin got in another blow on Woodson's jaw with his left without a return. Then came a clinch, and McLaughlin was thrown heavily, the round lasting 35 seconds. When time was called for the fourth round both men were breathing heavily. McLaughlin's face showed several bruises. Woodson forced the fighting, and threw McLaughlin over a bench, the round lasting 30 seconds. In the fifth round McLaughlin went at the negro savagely, landing on Woodson's mouth, nose, and ear without a return. Woodson closed with his opponent, but McLaughlin, still fighting fiercely, drove his opponent against the wheels of one of the carriages, and almost under the feet of the horses. The referee ordered the men to break and return to their corners. The time of the round was 30 seconds. In the sixth round McLaughlin was in the better condition. The colored man tried for McLaughlin's chest with his right hand, but fell short and received stinging blows on nose and ear. Woodson had got around to the higher ground and managed to get his right fist on McLaughlin's jaw with much force. The latter countered lightly on the negro's face. Woodson took a step back, made a feint with his left at McLaughlin's face, and sent in a right-hander straight from the shoulder that left not a doubt in any man's mind that the fight was over. McLaughlin's form was fairly driven into the turf. He had caught the blow on the mouth and nose, and, as he fell, his head was slightly turned to one side. His flesh was purple. He quivered two or three times as he lay on the grass, and somebody called out, "His neck is broken." A general rush was made for the carriage, and many persons hurriedly drove away. McLaughlin's seconds feared at first to lift him, but the panic passed in a minute, although it was several minutes before McLaughlin returned to consciousness. His second stood with blanched face looking at his principal, and then absent maddedly threw up a towel which he held in his hand instead of a sponge. Woodson was declared the victor, and a purse was made up for McLaughlin, who had never fought before in the ring. Woodson is the champion colored fighter in America, and has won several ring fights. He is 24 years of age, and McLaughlin is 29.

Did She Die? "No," she lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years, the doctors doing her no good; and at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about. Indeed! Indeed! how thankful we should be for that medicine!

OCCIDENTAL JOTTINGS.

CALIFORNIA. Colusa county has a Chinaman who practices law in the justice's courts. Arabian millet has been the means of converting hundreds of waste places in California into rich pastures and valuable lands. Henry E. Connor, a newboy, has brought suit against the Southern Pacific railroad company to recover $50,000 damages for a horse he was injured in the Tehachapi accident last January, through the alleged carelessness of defendant. In Merced county, Cal., many of the farmers have been irrigating their lands from the San Joaquin and King's rivers. They now complain that their crops are in danger of having too much water, in consequence of the rains coming on just after irrigating. Patents and Santa Rosa are contending for the county seat. Santa Rosa is the present county seat and offers its public the best square and $100,000 in cash if it is allowed to retain it, while Festina promises to furnish a Court house of the record and jail, free of expense to the county if the seat is removed there. A cyclone passed through Salt Spring valley, Calaveras county, last Wednesday afternoon. It started in the southern part of the valley, going northward, taking in its course fences, trees, etc. The large barn of Tower & Bisbee was completely wrecked. Its path was 150 yards wide and extended several miles in length. Several of the San Francisco hotels have thus far declined to enter into a contract for housing and feeding the Knights Templar to come from the east this summer by the route of the San Francisco and North Pacific railroad via Healdsburg to the Mendocino redwood country. Engineers who were surveying the route last week stated that they were seeking orders from English capitalists, who owned the road, and who had given instructions to extend the road anywhere that would pay. It is considered not improbable that the road will be extended a route of great interest to the Sacramento valley, traversing a country as yet without railroad facilities.

NEVADA. Sheep shearers are in demand in Reno. An expert can make $10 per day. The various mills along Carson river are making regular mill shipments to the market. A polygamist residing at Bunkerville, named Levitt, boasts that he is the father of fifty-two children. The Central Pacific will hereafter issue round trip tickets to points in Nevada at the rate of 45 cents a mile. The old rate was 75 cents, although 10 cents was charged for short distances of five or ten miles. The attaching creditors of the Alhambra at Eureka all signed an agreement last week, and in a few days the accounts will be adjusted, when the miners, laborers and mechanics will be paid, and work will be resumed in the mine under a new management. The development of fossil remains at the Nevada State quarry continues to be more and more interesting. Scarcely a blast is made which does not disclose some strange tracks, osseous remains and fossil ivory. The vegetable indications are numerous and interesting, as are the many specimens of fossil shells. An "angry tree," a species of acacia, is growing on a farm in Virginia. It was brought from Australia, and is now eight feet high and growing rapidly. It shows all the signs of a high temperature. When the sun sets its leaves fold together and the ends of the tender twigs curl up like a pig tail. If the twigs are handled, the leaves move uneasily for a minute or more.

MONTANA. Smith River valley farmers are busily engaged putting in their spring crop. The leases of the hotel privileges in Yellowstone Park have already been stable $200,000 and a 400 ton ice house. Governor Crosby has decided that he has no authority to appoint notaries public, except while the legislature is in session. The net indebtedness of Deer Lodge county, March 1, 1883, was $29,988.71—a reduction of $2,250.40 during the pending that date. Hon. Frederick Billings, who gave its name to the Montana boom town, has given $75,000 to the Vermont University for a library building. The average daily mail going north from Ogden over the Utah and Northern is 45,000 letters, forty sacks of newspaper mail and 125 registered packages. The politicians of Benton have been thrown into a state of great excitement by the report that a number of them would be indicted for violating the election law. It is said that nearly all the goods now received by Helena merchants come by way of the Northern Pacific as does the greater part of the travel of central Montana. A Crow chief was shot and instantly killed by a white man recently. The latter was a hunter on the Snake side. The Indians turned the murderer over to the authorities at Fort Custer. There is a rumor in Benton that Gilmer, Salisbury & Co., are figuring on putting in a stage line to pass between Helena and the Canadian Pacific by way of Benton and Fort Assiniboine. There is a giant pitch pine tree on Grant creek, Missoula county, Montana, which is 125 feet high and is 27 feet 4 inches in circumference five feet from the ground— or about 9 feet through. The highest wooden bridge in the world will be on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad, in O'Keefe canyon. It will be 225 feet in height, the timber being raised to position by aid of a stationary engine.

UTAH. Colorado is now taking Utah's surplus crop of potatoes. A convict in the Utah penitentiary named Banks is said to have fallen heir to $10,000. F. B. Horne, while night telegraph operator at Piedmont, W. T., appropriated a number of railroad tickets and sold them at Salt Lake, where he was arrested last week. The first building and savings society ever organized in Utah was established at Ogden last week. The capital is $300,000, divided into 3,000 shares of the value of $100 each. The Eureka Hill mine, Tonic, is shipping from fifty to sixty tons of ore per day to the smelters near Salt Lake. The mine is being worked to a depth of 500 feet on the incline, and is looking well. The Murdoch chemical and reduction company of Chicago contemplates the building of a smelting furnace at Ogden, which will have a capacity of not less than thirty tons of ore a day. The citizens will donate ten acres of land for the purpose.

The Ogden electric light company have their dam about completed on Ogden canyon, and in a few days the Brush electric machines will be removed from the city to the new location, three miles distant, and then the expense of operating will be very much reduced.

DAKOTA. Bismarck's police force is said to be the most efficient in the territory. A 15,000 hotel will be built at Graton, Boone county, during the summer. The new court house at Jamestown will be the most elegant structure in Dakota. A number of brick buildings will be put up at Lead City in the Black Hills this summer. A Bismarck building association has taken a contract to build a large seminary at Standing Rock Agency. It is likely that two new hotels, one to cost $75,000 and the other to cost $100,000 will be built at Fargo this season. A valuable white clay bank near Fairview has been leased to English capitalists, who will operate the kilns on a large scale. It is rumored that the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad company has purchased the Jamestown Northern from the Northern Pacific. The Episcopalians of Jamestown will this spring commence the erection of a new church. An application has been made for a permanent rector to take charge. A Custer City man named Woodward has invented a road wagon to be propelled by steam that will carry two and take up over two track on a large scale. It will haul twenty-five loaded wagons. The fight over the capitol location has grown very warm through the territory. Last Wednesday a meeting was held at Yankton contemplating the election of the legislature in removing the capitol to Sioux Falls.

Colorado. Hinsdale county has an indebtedness of nearly $118,000, of which $115,000 is bonded. Gunnison is to have iron works this year. Last week the citizens celebrated the event for three nights. Greeley had a very disastrous fire last week. A large number of buildings were destroyed and a good deal of property was lost. The recent city election in Denver, over which considerable feeling was manifested resulted in a victory for the republicans. Thirty thousand dollars, or half of the amount necessary to construct the tramway from Colorado Springs to Pikes Peak, has been subscribed. The Colorado Presbytery will meet at Evans next week for the purpose of transacting the regular annual business of the denomination. Georgetown is making an effort to have a wagon road built from that place to Chicago lake and Ute creek. The county will pay the expense, which will be quite heavy. There is a single disorderly house in Evans and the people are weary of it. A crowd of several men with dark lanterns stand around the house at night and arrest every one who attempts to enter.

MISCELLANEOUS. Detectives in New Mexico are looking for Jack Hogan, who has succeeded in flooding the territory with upwards of $15,000 in bogus silver dollars. Since the breaking up of the band of robbers in New Mexico, large numbers of stolen horses and cattle are wandering back to their homes. One lot of 21 head of cattle and three horses returned to their owners a few days ago in good condition. The Oregon Construction company, who have the contract for building the Baker division of the O. R. & N. railway, have made arrangements with J. H. Hawkins & Co., by which the 3,000 Chinese controlled by the latter firm, now at work on the Northern Pacific, will be transferred to the Baker City line as soon as the Northern Pacific force is disbanded—about a month hence. The Oregon Iron and Steel Company will greatly extend the facilities of the foundry lately purchased at Portland. Two new cupolas are being erected and a large amount of heavy machinery is on the way from New York. They will construct machinery for rolling mills. A site for the shipyard is to be chosen at once, and an iron ship 300 feet long will be commenced in a few months. A new furnace will be erected at the Oswego mines, with capacity for 100 tons of pig iron daily. The company has a capital of $3,000,000, and inexhaustible mines of iron of the best quality. Care for the Immigrants. A bill is before the New York legislature reorganizing the affairs of Castle Garden and Ward's Island for the better protection of immigrants, and on a basis of greater economy. It abolishes the present board of commissioners, and provides for a single commissioner with a salary of $6,000 a year, and associates with him, ex-officio, the presidents of the German society and Irish emigrant society of New York city. It also provides for two deputy commissioners, to be appointed by the commissioner and subject to his authority, one of whom shall superintend the business of Castle Garden and the other that of Ward's Island institutions, the former to have a salary of $4,000 and the latter $2,500 and a house on the island, with supplies of fuel and light. The New York Times thinks the provisions of the bill a decided improvement upon the present system, if the management proposed can be kept out of politics.
