MIRKEL is at a discount, but Kentucky has still faith that a blue grass mule can knock Sullivan out in one round.

If Russia could only catch a western cyclone and turn it loose on England, we should hear fewer sneers at American airs.

Rooms to rent are so scarce in Omaha that several of our brick makers think of putting a bay window in their kilns and advertising for boarders.

PISTOLS and coffee are to be called for by Chalmers, of Mississippi, to settle a difference of opinion between himself and Mr. Galloway, editor of the Memphis Appeal.

M. WASHINGTON is reluctant to represent France at the czar's coronation, because, so he says, the sum of $50,000 appropriated for his expenses is not sufficient.

JOE COBURN has been refused a license to sell liquor in New York on the ground of his "general reputation." If Mr. Coburn will come to Omaha he can be accommodated.

THE council has adjourned for two weeks, and no paving can be ordered done until after their next session.

THE civil service commission has evolved a set of thirty-one rules to govern the admission of competitors for clerkships in postoffices and custom houses.

AFTER four hours mature reflection an intelligent Chicago jury has reached the decision that Jim Elliott, pugilist, was not killed by Jere Dunn.

At the meeting of the Army of the Potomac, the reference of Major Maginnis, the orator of the occasion, to General Fitz John Porter as "one of the bravest and most patriotic officers in the Army of the Potomac, who was made the scapegoat of Pope's campaign," was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

The truth of history has more than vindicated Fitz John Porter from the charges under which he was court-martialed. It has revealed the military malice and the political partisanship which were alone responsible for the ignominy which has been heaped upon his head.

It has torn away the veil that concealed the utter incompetency of General Pope's Manassas campaign, and places his victim in his true light as a brave, able and loyal soldier. Congressmen and every soldier regardless of political creed, who has given the subject of Fitz John Porter's wrongs the careful study that it deserves.

THE FACTS OF THE CASE

The Republican is still in paroxysms over the questions of free trade vs. protection and is filling its columns with labored defenses of the tariff.

Oceans of ink will not change the situation. We are sure to have a moderate tariff for many years to come. The revenues of the nation cannot be recruited so easily in any other way.

It makes no difference how far results are concerned, what the theory is upon which the import is based. Whether we have a tariff for revenue only, or a tariff for protection only, or one for revenue with incidental protection, or one for protection with incidental revenue, the effect will be the same.

The only point upon which there is ground for discussion is upon a proper adjustment of the tariff. The tariff is a tax, and taxes should be laid upon articles which can bear them the most readily.

In these cases incidental protection ought to be substituted for monumental protection. Industrial monopolies, upheld by the tariff, should be compelled to stand on their feet, raw materials for manufacturers should be placed on the free list, and duties should be systematically lowered.

OTHER LANDS THAN OURS.

Parliament is taking a short rest after the excitement of last week and foreign dispatches contain few items of interest concerning the state of the ministry or their immediate policy.

traditions of the Vatican. The church of Rome has always maintained the importance of submission to authority.

Affairs in France have been undisturbed during the week though the rumored death of Count de Chambord created a temporary excitement which was speedily dispelled by a contradiction of the reports.

A dispatch from Hamburg under date of May 14th says that the news from Christiania denotes the present position of political affairs in Norway is very serious.

Norway is practically a republic, with a king of Sweden. It has every political privilege which a radical democrat could desire.

Gladstone's ministry has added to all the other small miseries which crowd upon an administration in its closing days, a serious rising in South Africa among the Basutos.

Mexico can hardly be considered as in a desirable financial condition when its government is compelled to borrow money for the purpose of defraying the current expenses of the administration.

The coronation of the czar will, it is thought, be the most magnificent ceremony of this kind in the present century.
