THE IRON RULERS.

Representatives of the Dry Goods Trade Appeal in Vain to the Railroad Pool.

Special Dispatch to This Bureau.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Representatives of the dry goods trade in this and other cities in the east and west appeared to-day before the railroad commission sitting here, to support the claims made in their petition to the commission, in which it is stated that the existing classification of domestic dry goods in the western bound traffic of the trunk lines is unjust, injurious to business, and should be changed.

In support of these charges it was urged that the class of merchandise which the present classification bears most heavily are mainly cotton goods, of coarser and cheaper grade, and it is especially for that class of merchandise that reclassification was asked.

It was also stated these matters were first brought to the attention of the executive committee of the trunk lines at the suggestion of Vice-President Blackland, of the Erie railroad, and a petition was presented to him signed by nearly all representatives of large cotton mills of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York and Pennsylvania, and nearly all representatives of dry goods merchants of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis and other prominent cities.

In this petition it was represented that the classification of this kind of merchandise was raised during the war because the goods became so valuable as to warrant it; that sheetings worth from $400 to $500 during the war now sell for from $45 to $60 per bale; that these goods, as first class, are now subject to higher relative charges on their value than any other textile fabric, and are out of all proportion to the staples of the grocery trade.

The executive committee of the trunk lines, it was contended, met this petition with absolute refusal. Upon what principles the companies have established their classification schedule the dry goods representatives were unable to understand.

Poor Commissioner Albert Fink replied that it is necessary to charge higher rates on certain articles in order that grain and other food products can be carried at a rate enabling the farmers to ship to the east and to Europe. This discrimination is for the benefit of trade in general and the dry goods trade shares in the benefits.

Individual consumers of domestic dry goods would benefit as little by a reduction of freight rates on that class of goods that the difference in cost would be negligible, while the reduction would not benefit the trade by causing an increased demand for their goods.

Silks and the higher class of dry goods bear such relative small proportion in the bulk and weight to the amount of dry goods of the lower classes shipped, that it would be necessary to charge very high rates on them to make up for the reduction on the latter.

The discrimination must exist, he argued, because several classes of articles, and the rates on the classes cannot be established on the basis of cost of service. After further discussion of the subject the commission adjourned to June 13th.

Other Ironed Pools. CHICAGO, May 23.—Colorado traffic association representatives met here to-day and established the following penalties for cutting rates: First offense, twice the amount of the tariff rate on cut shipment; second offense, four times, subsequent offenses six times, the arbitrator to be the judge of the violation.

This applies to the Iowa trunk line and the Southwestern railway association also. The differential tariff on live stock for new of different sizes were fixed as follows: Cows 25¢ to 30¢ less in length to charge regular tariff rates, those 31 feet and more, 10¢ per cent extra.

At a meeting of the representatives of the Iowa trunk line association, it was decided to call a meeting for next Tuesday with the Union Pacific, Burlington & Missouri River, Sioux City & Pacific and Northern Pacific, with a view of fixing rates and forming a pool on live stock from Wyoming, Idaho & Nebraska.

The suit of Israel Weinstein, of New York, against the Pennsylvania railroad for $30,000 for the loss of a leg at Altoona, resulted in favor of the company, plaintiff having traveled on a free pass.
