AN IOWA INCIDENT.

Will Eaton Tells the Story of a Council Bluffs Race.

How a Granger Bit the Biters.

Washington Cor., Cleveland Leader. At the club house I saw Dr. Shrey dressed as usual in a polka dot shirt and a standing collar. He was talking with Senator Beck, of Kentucky, and ex-Secretary Robeson, of New Jersey, and seemed not at all troubled about the star route issue.

In another part of the grounds a crowd of prominent men were standing around Will Eaton, one of the editors of The National Republican and probably the best dramatic critic in the country, listening to one of his admirable stories.

It was about thirteen years ago. Council Bluffs was one of the racing centers of the west, and the quarter race was the favorite race.

You know a quarter race is a running race for a quarter of a mile. The grass in that portion of Iowa is a little like that of the blue grass region of Kentucky, and it will, in the course of a few generations, make a race horse out of a scrub.

Eating it makes a horse's bones as hard as ivory, and we had some horses in Council Bluffs, as good as you will find in the country.

Every man in the town was interested in races, and nearly every other man was willing to bet upon them.

John V. Evans, of Logan, was in the city yesterday.

crowd, a friend of his, but whom he pretended not to know, to pick out both jockeys. The old moseback consented, but said he wanted a word with his jockey before he went.

"Carlie said, 'All right,' and the old man, taking the boy aside, said, 'Now, I want to give you a little advice. That horse of mine is a runner, and I've tickled him and looked him this morning, an' when he looks he'll go like blazes. If you valley your life, twist your 'n' in the mane an' don't mind the bridle, but just hold on. I'll hit him with this year club an' you jock will hold on.'

"The boy said, 'All right,' and started past Carlie to the horse. Carlie whispered, 'Damn the mare, hold on to the bridle.' After the boy was on the horse the old man said to him again, 'Now, boy, mine' what I said about the bridle, you hold on to the mane.'

"The boy said, 'All right,' but he still held the reins. The dodge was, of course, to let Carlie's horse get the start. At last they were ready. The old moseback stood behind his horse and at the work 'Go' struck him a thundering blow with his knott.

The horse went like a shot, and the jockey held nearly to his tail with the bridle as he held on to the reins. He hardly got started and was beaten by two full lengths. The old man went to the hotel and took away $4,500, and some of those fellows who borrowed it to bet are in debt yet for it.

Carlie was completely sold, but it was not known how badly until, when the old man was about to leave town, he went to him and asked to see his bridle. The old man handed it to him, and showed him the bit, which was jolted by a spring, and would pull like a heavy lead.

Carlie had done looking at it, the supposed grumpy put his hand around it and said, using very fair language, 'You are not the first that that bit has sold. That bit has just won me barrels of money.' A better instance of the biters being bit was never known in the west.

A Specially Remedy for Lung Diseases. Dr. Robt. Newton, late President of the Eclectic Medical Society of New York and formerly of Cincinnati, Ohio, used Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam very extensively in his practice, as many of his patients, I have noted, and he has been cured by the use of the invaluable medicine can amply testify.

Her Daughter's Husband, Burlington Hawkeye. A traveler saw a woman take a man by the collar, yank him up the steps into a railroad car, jam him down into a hot seat near the stove, pile up a valise and two big brown baskets with loose covers and long handles at his feet, shove a lady into his lap and say:

"Now, all there until I help Mary Jane on the car, and don't move till I come back."

When the woman reached the door the traveler said to her: "Is that man your husband?" "N-A-W-W!" roared the woman. "It's my daughter's husband, and she hasn't spirit enough to say her soul's her own."

This true story teaches us that some travelers haven't enough sense to diagnose a family party when they see one.

ARMY OFFICER'S TESTIMONY. Captain Joseph L. Hayden, residing at No. 924 Fourth Street, South Boston, Mass., formerly captain in the army, now with the Walworth Manufacturing Company, South Boston, writes April 23, 1883:

"While living in Cambridgeport, I was afflicted with terrible pains in my back and sides, accompanied with great weakness and loss of appetite. She tried many so-called remedies without avail, growing rapidly worse when her relatives were called to Hunt's Remedy. She purchased a bottle from Lowell's drug store, in Cambridgeport, and after taking the first dose she began to feel easier, and she could sleep, and after continuing its use a short time the severe pains in her back and side entirely disappeared, and she is a well woman. Many of our relatives and friends have used Hunt's Remedy with the most gratifying results. I have recommended it in many cases, and as many times heard the same story. Hunt's Remedy is not to be obtained for it, and a real blessing to all afflicted with kidney or liver trouble."

MADE A MAN OF HIM. Mr. C. O. Wheeler, No. 23 Austin Street, Cambridge, Mass., makes the following remarkable statement. On April 27, 1883, he writes as follows: "I have been troubled with kidney disease for nearly twenty years. I have suffered at times with terrible pains in my back and limbs. I used many medicines, but found nothing reached my case until I took Hunt's Remedy. I purchased a bottle of A. J. Gernsey, 630 Beacon Street, Boston, and before I had used this one bottle I found relief, and continuing its use, my pains and weakness all disappeared, and I feel like a new man, with new life and vigor. Hunt's Remedy did wonder for me, and I have no hesitancy in recommending it to all afflicted with kidney or liver disease, as I am positive that by its use they will find immediate relief. You may use this letter in any way you choose, so that the people may know of a sure medicine for the cure of all diseases of kidneys and liver."
