Merriam remarked hese anomalous forms show the intimate relations which exist between the structure and function of a man with the lower forms of life, and called attention to the fact that England had need to be proud of her son, Chas. Darwin, who demonstrated these deep and interesting problems of biology.

Dr. L. A. Merriam next read an essay on the subject "How medicines act and how to choose the right one," in which he held to the uniformity of nature's laws, and the correlation of physical, chemical and vital forces. city from Baltimore, and will remain over He said that some medicines act the Sabbath. LEGAL LEVY.

on Paving Assessments.

Those who Must Pay for Pavements.

At the request of the city council. Hon. John D. Howe, the retiring city attorney, has submitted in writing an opinion upon paving questions, of which the following is the most Dr. G. B. Ayers read an essay on important portion to taxpayers:

The most Interesting and difficult ings of arteries found in the human law is that which relates to the assess-

· I have given this subject much thought. Your power under the act of 1883 is only limited by the constitutional restriction which confines the power to levy assessment upon such real estate as is benefitted by the improvement. The act of 1882 was apparently drawn upon the theory that Omaha or Plattemouth. only the "lots and lands" abutting this would have been defensible. But some were 66 feet and some 132 feet deep on the same street, and the holdto 132 feet in depth. The law applies of small and frequently repeated doses to all streets. Lots on east and west and to the necessity of a more thorthough this is far from being invarifoot front in both cases. The manifest injustice of this led to the act of 1883. This act contemplates that you shall, in the exercise of your best judgment, determine the depth of real estate matter you should entirely

IGNORE LOT LINES AND THE BOUNDA of the holdings of individuals. Wipe out all questions of ownership and look at the two strips of real estate on the sides of the street, the same as if they were bare ground, and enquire how far back from the street is the real estate benefitted by the improvement. In this way uniformity, equal-

INCLUDED IN THE HALF BLOCKS abutting upon the street. This would make the real estate charged coextensive with the present lately established districts; although that is not very material. I base this conclusion upon the principal considerations that our streets are wide and the blocks are small; the taxes for grading, paving, curbing, guttering and sidewalks added together, make a grievous burden. When we pare on one side of a block, it is in contemplation of a system of improvements which, when completed, will result in paving all four sides of the block. Thus, when the system of paving shall have been laid, we have a small block of ground all surrounded by improvements, and there is not an inch of it that is benefitted and not an inch of it should es-equality and as near perfect fairness as is practicable in such a case. When Tenth street was ordered paved, the prospect for paving the remaining streets abutting it seemed quite remote. The generalization tnat an order to pave on one side of a block should be taken as made in contemplation of a system of paving, which, when completed, would sur-round the block with a like improvement, it seemed difficult to elusidate. Yet within a few months the council had actually ordered all those blocks, no longer difficult to establish the pavement laid in front of it on one street, will in the approximately near future, be surrounded by paving on the remaining three sides. This being so, to levy the assesament for paving each street upon real estate included in the abusting half block would seem to be clearly equitable and just. When the block shall have been surrounded with the improve-

DOUGLAS AND TENTH STREETS were under contract before the law of 1882, which differs from the present law. The present law, ho vover, purports authority to you to lay the asseasment thereunder, and the plan herein suggested is entirely practicable as to them. It is competent for the legislature, in my opinion, by an act remedial or curative in i s nature to empower you to levy the cost of an improvement already under conformer act which was different in respent to matters merely directory or
