LOCAL BREVITIES.

Examinations at the institute for the deaf and dumb are in progress.
Krug, the brewer, intends to immediately begin an extensive improvement at his brewery.
The ladies of the First Baptist church will hold an ice cream social to-day evening in the parlors of the church.
The case of Marsh vs. Sauer, in which the defendant is sued for five cents street car fare, has been submitted to Judge Wakley on an agreed statement of facts.
On account of the lateness of the season, Mr. Paul Nindell, the fashionable hatter, will sell out his summer stock at over 50 per cent below the usual prices.
The Woman's Christian Temperance union held a social tea at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Tuesday, which was largely attended.
Ask your grocer for D. G. Evans & Co.'s celebrated Anker roasted coffee and Star Baking Powder. These are the best and cheapest goods in the market.
At a meeting of Sixteenth street property holders Tuesday it was decided to urge the city council to have Cunningham street graded from Sixteenth to the city limits.
The proposition of the Omaha Electric Light and Power company to light the streets is endorsed by one hundred and fifty of the most prominent business men in the entire city.
General Sheridan has ordered the Fourteenth infantry from the Department of the Missouri to the Department of the Platte. That will make six regiments in the department.
Henry Wilson, the colored man who was so badly beaten near the Thirteenth street bridge, Tuesday, was able to be removed yesterday to his home in South Omaha, and, it is thought, will recover from his wounds without trouble.
In mentioning the death that occurred in the family of E. D. Pratt on the 7th inst., it was stated that it was a girl, when, in fact, it was his youngest son, Charles Redick Pratt, aged five years and nine months. The two other members of his family, Nellie and Ephie, are convalescing.
George S. Bower, for the past eighteen months the agent of the B. & M. in Lincoln, has been promoted to general agent of the company with headquarters at Atchison. His successor is J. J. Cox, for some time past assistant stock agent of the company. Mr. Cox is well known throughout the state, and is a general gentleman who will no doubt become as popular as his predecessor.
The marriage of William T. McIntosh and Miss Alice Dalton occurred at St. Philomena's Cathedral Tuesday morning. The ceremony was performed by Father English. The groom is a popular and efficient employe of the Omaha Nail company, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. William Dalton, of South Seventeenth street. The esteem in which the young couple were held by their friends was shown by the handsome presents received.
A branch of the organization now established in New York for the preservation and the furthering of the Irish language was started Tuesday by adopting the constitution of the New York branch and electing officers of the following: President, C. J. O'Donovan; vice president, J. M. McMahon; recording and corresponding secretary, R. P. Hickey; financial secretary, M. J. O'Brien; treasurer, O. W. Tarry. The society starts with some fifty names enrolled.
Since the trouble between Baby Barnes and Jack Nugent, Saturday night, friends of each party have come to the front and bets are being made on all sides on the result of the contemplated fight. The original offer of Barnes to present Nugent with $500 to stand up before him for three rounds has been changed, and $500 a side put up in the hands of the stakeholder. There is a good deal of talk everywhere, and it is the opinion generally that the fight at the end-off will be conducted with fairness on all sides.

CHASE'S CHAFF.

The Mayor of Omaha on Female Education.

He Delivers a Fine Oration at the State University.

The address delivered by Mayor Chase before the students of the State University Tuesday is thus spoken of by the Lincoln Journal:
It is a remarkable fact that the University address, which is usually delivered by distinguished speakers from abroad and is generally the best literary performance of commencement week, is invariably attended by a smaller audience than greets any other orator.
Last evening was no exception to the general rule as to the audience. The parquette was filled and a row or two of the dress circle contained all that could not find seats in the parquette. Colonel Chase was introduced by Professor Thompson, and spoke for about forty minutes on "The Education of Woman." The nineteenth century, he said, would go down to future ages as the most remarkable of any equal period in the Christian era. In every branch of progress it has been remarkable, and the whole system of conducting the affairs of business and everyday life has been changed in the time by our inventions and discoveries.
In no respect, however, has progress been so evident as in the education of women. Sixty years ago there were no female colleges. Other colleges were not open to women, and a woman's education was embroidery, painting, and, to some extent, music. In a few instances the daughters of eminent men were given extensive educations, but this was purely a private affair. These special cases showed, however, that women could pursue any educational course which man could pursue, and laid the foundation for equal education.
To New England, said the speaker, belongs the credit of taking the initiative in the matter of the more expansive education of woman. He mentioned Miss Lyon as a pioneer in the establishment of Mount Holyoke seminary, and the distrust with which the experiment was received, and the fact that Mrs. Williams' seminary at Troy, N. Y., and of the opening of Oberlin to females.
The question of the co-education of the sexes was then taken up and some pointed sarcasm directed against the objections offered by the opponents of co-education. The speaker analyzed the male and female mind, and, while recognizing differences, thought it was not so radical as to be an objection to co-education. Colonel Chase inveighed against the rigid adoption of one course of study for all minds, and said that the fault of the education of day was that too little attention is paid to training students in the line of their natural inclinations. He spoke of the advantage to children from intelligent parents, and read an extract from The Detroit Post to illustrate the lamentable result of the lack of culture in parents. He said that the woman in the pite, who described Julius Caesar as the heathen who wears a sheet and pillow case uniform, and said "Give me liberty or give me death," and said that Mark Anthony was an old colored man who used to work for her father, was a fair sample of our American women, a type, however, that was becoming less and less numerous as woman's education progressed. He said that our women should be educated so as to be able to answer the questions of inquisitive childhood. He thought that education should have a practical education if she wished to fit herself for a wife and mother, and that to cook well required more skill than to try a law suit or cure a patient.
In speaking of the new women have of an education, the lecturer said that great men spring from great mothers more frequently than from great fathers, and that he would say, "Let me select the mothers of the women and I care not who may select the fathers." He then gave examples of women who had been rulers, poets, authors, teachers, conversationalists, musicians, dramatists and heroines.
The speaker referred to the discussion in the founding of the university, and thought the people were well pleased that a true university instead of a mere academy had been established. He reiterated that no fixed course should be prescribed for all minds, and said that all knowledge not useful was useless; that woman should be specially educated just as men should be, and if their object was to make a happy home, they should make their education tend that way.
In conclusion the orator said that he believed that the University of Nebraska was surely doing its work. He thought that instructors should endeavor to find out the characteristics of a new student and train him accordingly; that lady professors well known for their aptness and earnestness should have their full representation among the college educators; and in fact that everything about the university should be practical in every respect. "This, done, our university will take its place in the front rank of educational institutions, and our young women and young men will no longer desire a diploma from Harvard or Yale or Dartmouth in preference to one from the faculty of the State University of Nebraska."

Death of Mrs. Ira A. Paddock.
Died at the residence of her daughter in this city at 2 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, June 12th, Mrs. Ira A. Paddock, nee Lela Sherman Wells, mother of A. S. Paddock and Mrs. J. C. Higy of this city. The deceased was born in December, 1814, in the town of Cambridge, Warren county, N. Y. Afterwards the family moved to Warren county in the same state where she was married. Her husband was for many years a prominent lawyer residing at Glenn's Falls, Warren county, New York. After his death, which occurred in 1862, the deceased came to Nebraska, and for nearly twenty years was a member of the family of her youngest son, ex-Senator A. S. Paddock, but during the greater part of the last year was in the loving care of her only daughter, Mrs. Higy, residing on Eighteenth street, in this city. The deceased was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church during more than fifty years. Every day from the beginning to the end her life was that of a true Christian. She was of the highest type of the American mother of the old school. She had no ambition except for the prosperity and happiness of her children and to perform well and faithfully every duty in the life of a Christian wife and mother. She was gentle and personified, always ready with genuine sympathy and kind offices for the relief of those in trouble or distress. If it be true that loveliness of character and of living, if the possession and the constant exercise of all the Christian graces is to be rewarded in the future world by a crown of glory, surely one of the brightest of them all awaits this noble woman.

There will be no funeral ceremony here. The remains of the deceased will be conveyed under the care of her son and daughter to Glenn's Falls, where the funeral will take place.

REED'S RACKET.

A Ten Thousand Dollar Damage Suit Begun.

That Being a Husband's Valuation of his Wife's Affection.

A Sensation which Puzzled the Police.

A Husband on the Heels of his Wife and Suspected Rival.

A suit was begun yesterday in the district court of Douglas county for damages in the sum of $10,000, the plaintiff in the case being Stewart E. Hoge, a well known engineer on the B. & M. railway, and the defendant Mr. A. P. Adams, who owns a cattle ranch and saloon at Red Cloud and Hastings and is reputed to be worth a good deal of money.
The grounds of the suit furnished the principal sensation in police circles Tuesday and some lively developments were expected, which the abrupt departure of the principal parties to the affair prevented.
As stated Mr. Hoge is a railroad engineer, and resides at Hastings, Neb. His wife is a very prosperous lady of long residence in the city, and her recent life has been blessed by the advent of several little "olive branches."
Adams does business both at Red Cloud and Hastings, and in the course of his transactions became acquainted with Mrs. Hoge, and as it appears, the two became mutually enamored.
The husband saw enough to arouse his suspicions, and, in coming to Hastings, he effected an indisposition which kept him in bed, and Tuesday morning his wife took the train for Omaha on business, leaving him at his home. He was not so sick, however, but that he took the next train for Omaha, arriving here with his eyes open for developments.
The same train which bore him hither brought his rival, who saw and recognized the wife, but did not reveal himself. The rival was met at the depot by his wife, and the two came up town together.
During Tuesday forenoon, Adams and Mrs. Hoge walked down Thirteenth street and past the Creighton house. A little later the man returned and inquired if he could secure good rooms, and being answered in the affirmative, registered at the hotel. P. Reed and lady, Hopkins, Mo.
"I presume this is your wife," inquired one host Donovan.
"Yes, sir," was the reply.
"Yes, we prefer to have it registered that way."
The register shows that the word "lady" was erased and wife substituted, the couple then being shown to an excellent room. Here it is stated that they remained about four hours, and the disordered condition in which things were afterwards found is probably additional circumstantial evidence in support of the claim filed by the husband for damages.
The police were notified of the facts in the case, and a warrant was issued, it being the expectation that the arrested couple would be made by midnight. "A. P. Reed and wife, Hopkins, Mo.," left the hotel in the afternoon, promising to return in a short time, and S. E. Hoge registered and slept at the same place, as THE BEE reporter ascertained at 3 o'clock a. m. The suspected couple, however, did not return at all, and, as it was subsequently ascertained, left the city on the evening train, and were not seen afterward.
The papers in the case were filed yesterday, and the title is "Stewart E. Hoge vs. A. P. Adams, first name unknown." The petition is very brief and merely sets forth that the defendant has carnally known the wife of the plaintiff, fixes the date of yesterday, and claims the sum of $10,000 as damages for alienating the affections of Rebecca Elizabeth Hoge from her husband, and depriving him of the presence and comfort and domestic services of the said Rebecca Elizabeth Hoge.
THE BEE reporter interviewed Mr. Hoge's attorney, Hon. N. J. Burnham, but he refused to make any explanation whatever of the facts in the case and was close as an oyster. The facts as discovered by the reporter, and the arguments of the petition filed in the district court, were all that could be relied upon for the details of the affair, which promises to cause a sensation, both at Hastings, Red Cloud and Omaha, although, as no service was obtained on the defendant, the case will probably never be tried in this city.

REED'S RACKET.

A Ten Thousand Dollar Damage Suit Begun.

That Being a Husband's Valuation of his Wife's Affection.

A Sensation which Puzzled the Police.

A Husband on the Heels of his Wife and Suspected Rival.

A suit was begun yesterday in the district court of Douglas county for damages in the sum of $10,000, the plaintiff in the case being Stewart E. Hoge, a well known engineer on the B. & M. railway, and the defendant Mr. A. P. Adams, who owns a cattle ranch and saloon at Red Cloud and Hastings and is reputed to be worth a good deal of money.
The grounds of the suit furnished the principal sensation in police circles Tuesday and some lively developments were expected, which the abrupt departure of the principal parties to the affair prevented.
As stated Mr. Hoge is a railroad engineer, and resides at Hastings, Neb. His wife is a very prosperous lady of long residence in the city, and her recent life has been blessed by the advent of several little "olive branches."
Adams does business both at Red Cloud and Hastings, and in the course of his transactions became acquainted with Mrs. Hoge, and as it appears, the two became mutually enamored.
The husband saw enough to arouse his suspicions, and, in coming to Hastings, he effected an indisposition which kept him in bed, and Tuesday morning his wife took the train for Omaha on business, leaving him at his home. He was not so sick, however, but that he took the next train for Omaha, arriving here with his eyes open for developments.
The same train which bore him hither brought his rival, who saw and recognized the wife, but did not reveal himself. The rival was met at the depot by his wife, and the two came up town together.
During Tuesday forenoon, Adams and Mrs. Hoge walked down Thirteenth street and past the Creighton house. A little later the man returned and inquired if he could secure good rooms, and being answered in the affirmative, registered at the hotel. P. Reed and lady, Hopkins, Mo.
"I presume this is your wife," inquired one host Donovan.
"Yes, sir," was the reply.
"Yes, we prefer to have it registered that way."
The register shows that the word "lady" was erased and wife substituted, the couple then being shown to an excellent room. Here it is stated that they remained about four hours, and the disordered condition in which things were afterwards found is probably additional circumstantial evidence in support of the claim filed by the husband for damages.
The police were notified of the facts in the case, and a warrant was issued, it being the expectation that the arrested couple would be made by midnight. "A. P. Reed and wife, Hopkins, Mo.," left the hotel in the afternoon, promising to return in a short time, and S. E. Hoge registered and slept at the same place, as THE BEE reporter ascertained at 3 o'clock a. m. The suspected couple, however, did not return at all, and, as it was subsequently ascertained, left the city on the evening train, and were not seen afterward.
The papers in the case were filed yesterday, and the title is "Stewart E. Hoge vs. A. P. Adams, first name unknown." The petition is very brief and merely sets forth that the defendant has carnally known the wife of the plaintiff, fixes the date of yesterday, and claims the sum of $10,000 as damages for alienating the affections of Rebecca Elizabeth Hoge from her husband, and depriving him of the presence and comfort and domestic services of the said Rebecca Elizabeth Hoge.
THE BEE reporter interviewed Mr. Hoge's attorney, Hon. N. J. Burnham, but he refused to make any explanation whatever of the facts in the case and was close as an oyster. The facts as discovered by the reporter, and the arguments of the petition filed in the district court, were all that could be relied upon for the details of the affair, which promises to cause a sensation, both at Hastings, Red Cloud and Omaha, although, as no service was obtained on the defendant, the case will probably never be tried in this city.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4, 1883.
Referring to your endorsement of March 27th, on application of Private Edward Dandon, company E, Thirtieth Infantry, for a decision as to the meaning of the sentence of general court martial, (G. O. M. O. No. 157, Department of the Missouri, December 5th, 1882) "to forfeit to the United States ten dollars of his pay for six months."
I have the honor to inform you that the secretary of war decides that while it may have been the intention of the court to impose a forfeiture of $60, the sentence fails to express it, and can by no just interpretation be considered otherwise than as involving a forfeiture of $10 only.
