DETAILS OF THE CALAMITY.

LONDON, June 17.—The terrible calamity at Sunderland, Durham county, Saturday evening, is the subject of universal unhappy comment. The hall has been surrounded to-day by distressed and excited crowds. It appears there was an entertainment in Victoria hall by a conjurer, attended almost altogether by children, several thousand being in attendance. The body of the hall had been entirely cleared of occupants, when some 1,200 of the little ones came rushing down the stairs from the gallery. At the top of the first flight of stairs was a door which opened only twenty inches, and thus but one child was permitted to pass through at a time. At this point, while a mass of children were pushing forward, one of them fell and was unable to rise, owing to the others crowding. The result was that the great numbers were pushed down, trampled on and suffocated. The scene was terrible. No effort could stop the mad rush of the terrified children. They came on, pell-mell, though strangely without much shouting, and soon 178 were knocked down and suffocated to death by others trampling upon them. The greater number of the bodies, which were badly mangled from the trampling, laid seven or eight feet deep. Many of the victims, and others who were not killed, had their clothing torn from their bodies, and this, together with the bleeding bodies of the unfortunates, shows the terrible nature of the struggle. The excitement in town when the news of the disaster spread was terrific. Great crowds rushed to the scene, until twenty thousand persons surrounded the hall. The feeling was so intense that the authorities ordered out the fifty-eighth infantry to preserve order. The work of getting out the bodies began immediately. They were laid out in the hall, and the parents of the killed were admitted to identify the bodies of their children. A most heart-rending scene transpired while identification was in progress. Mothers of the dead children constantly uttered piercing shrieks, and many fainted on discovery of the bodies of their little ones.

THE DEATH TRAP.
The stairway from the gallery at the top of the landing on which occurred the pressure which led to the accident, was from five to six feet wide and the gallery door through which the children were allowed to pass, one at a time, which circumstance is regarded as the direct cause of the calamity, was fitted with a bolt which lodged in a hole in the floor, thus narrowing the passage by the pressure of the audience was entering the hall. The janitor says the scene behind the gallery door was fearful. Some children were fixed upright in the heap and actually

GASPING FOR BREATH,
so great was the pressure of the crowd behind them. The majority of the children in the hall were under 10 years of age. When the disaster happened the janitor and wife, and several others, hastily summoned the bystanders and their work immediately to give the sufferers relief. They first sent out of the building by other exits the little ones still in the hall, by this way averting the fears of a further crush. Those who went to the rescue of the sufferers found the work of removing the heap of bruised, crushed and suffocated, no easy task. Two hundred children were

RESCUED FROM THE FILE
who were practically uninjured. Many others were found in an unconscious condition, but of these a number were restored and at once sent to their homes. Those who were dead, with a number whose wounds were regarded as fatal, were laid out in the main hall, where local doctors were in attendance, who used every effort to restore those in whom a spark of life could be discovered. An eye witness says he saw lying on the flagstones, a short distance from the bottom of the stairs, seven dead bodies of children. Many of those who came to assist in removing the dead and rescuing the living were utterly overcome by the distressing sight of so many dead and dying children.

THE FATAL LIST.
A number of deaths have occurred since the first report, and the total list is now placed at 186. One of the persons who responded quickly to the call for help, says, many who volunteered to assist in rescuing the children, sickened at the spectacle and fled horrified from the distressing scene. The rescuers' efforts were directed towards reaching the children who were, apparently, alive. So tightly were the victims jammed together it was regarded dangerous to drag them out of the mass, unless less the effort would result in pulling off the limbs of living children as well as mutilating the dead; they therefore proceeded systematically to lift off the topmost. A few of those beneath had survived, and their moaning and low cries of pain could be distinctly heard amid the excitement and cries of the bereaved parents and friends, who were thronging the adjacent streets.

The disaster was referred to in all the churches of Sunderland to-day, and by many preachers of London. Prayers were offered for the parents and friends and victims.

THE STAIRCASE
from the gallery was a winding one. Both the audience and officials were in the hall at the time of the disaster, and were unaware for some time of the terrible tragedy being enacted at the door. They were not informed until Graham, hall keeper, who, strolling near by the scene of the calamity, was attracted by the groans and gave the alarm. Mr. Fay, who gave the entertainment, was busy packing up his report, when a man rushed up. He informed him of the disaster and immediately fell down speechless in a fit. Some of the families whose homes were so suddenly darkened.

LOST OVER THREE CHILDREN.
One man and wife pushed their way into the hall, in which lay the bodies of the victims, and without betraying any emotion began to scan the faces of the dead. Recognizing the face of one of his children, the father, pointing with his finger, exclaimed, "That's one." Passing on again he recognized another, and then a third. Staggering in a fit of agony, he cried, "My God! all my family gone," and overwhelmed with grief he sank to the floor. In some houses there are five children dead.

Queen Victoria sent a telegram to the mayor of Sunderland, expressing her grief at the disaster. The children of various Sunday Schools also sent telegrams of sympathy. Flags were at half mast. One Sunday school loses thirty scholars by the catastrophe. Many survivors had their arms broken in the crush, others are suffering from broken ribs or rupture of the internal organs. Graham, the hall-keeper, says the children, not twenty yards from the door, came pressing forward unaware of the tragedy thus making matters ten times worse than they really were.

THE SCENE INSIDE THE HALL.
during the identification baffles description. It was painful in the extreme. The faces of the dead children in almost every case were black, swollen from suffocation, of which many died. Many lips were cracked and bleeding. Parents, rushing wildly about, would fall upon the bodies of their dead children, with loud wailing and weeping, and clasp the unrecognizable forms in their arms, vainly endeavoring to note any sign of life. Many poor mothers swooned away at the first sight of the dead, while others were wild, almost violent, in their hysterical grief. The act of removing the dead from the hall to-day was the occasion for a renewal of lamentation and confusion. Many parents rushed through the police cordon appointed for the preservation of order and there was a scene of great confusion. One of the witnesses of the calamity stated to-day that for the first five minutes there was a great lack of assistance, and from this cause alone there were certainly one hundred lives lost. The weather was warm and the passageway very close, so that in a short time after the catastrophe a horrible sickening stench came from the main outlet of the hall.

THE LATEST REPORTS
tonight figure up 188 dead. The gravest fears are felt that the number will yet be shown to have reached at least 200. The eagerness of the children to depart from the hall was caused by their desire to receive prizes promised them. Graham throws the blame for the calamity upon the man connected with the entertainment, who, it appears, fastened the door half open, in order that the prizes might be given to the children, one at a time, while leaving the hall.

One sad incident was witnessed in the vicinity of the hall. A lad was sitting on the railing near Murton street, crying. A passer-by inquired the cause of his grief. "Why, sir," said he, "I was in the place there, and when I was coming out a boy that was dying hit my hands, and that's him," he added, pointing to the corpse of the child lying nearby.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.
BERLIN, June 17.—The arrest of Krazevski, the Polish author, has caused a decided sensation in political circles. The discovery of a revolutionary document in Krazevski's home in Dresden has led to the arrest of a prominent telegraph official, who was formerly a captain in the Prussian army. He was arrested at Schoberg, a few miles east of this city, and charged with high treason. For the present his name has been suppressed from publication.

The British sustained no loss of men owing to the effective use of the rocket, the Gylpove fled and a reward was offered for his capture, which is expected to occur shortly.

KINGSTON, June 17.—A telegram announces the sinking of the propeller Canada near Rockport, bound up, loaded with general merchandise. The wrecking steamer Hastings has gone to the rescue.

MARSEILLES, June 17.—An aeronaut named Jarvis, accompanied by an actress and a merchant, departed from here in a balloon last evening to cross a part of the Mediterranean. The balloon and occupants were picked up at sea.

report that James Gordon Bennett has guaranteed the expenses of the team to the extent of $2,500, and state that if it had not been for Bennett's liberality, the team would have to remain at home, as the general public had thus far failed to do anything.

THE RAGING MISSOURI.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
KANSAS CITY, June 17.—The river here is 20 feet above low water mark at midnight. A large portion of the bottom lands are overflowed, and serious damage has been done, which will be very greatly increased by a further rise. The June rise is about due. If it comes now, with the present stage of water, the loss will be very heavy. The water now encroaches upon Harlem, opposite this city.

A LOST SCHOONER.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
MILWAUKEE, June 17.—The schooner T. C. Wilson, thirty-five tons, which left Racine, May 17, the day before the cyclone there, has not been heard from since. It is now thought almost certain she has gone down with Captain Moss and two men, who composed her crew.

DISTINGUISHED DEAD. The Busy Life of James Washington Sheahan, the Noted Journalist, At An End.

The Founder of the Chicago Times, and Co-Laborer of Douglas, Dies of Overwork.

Death of Albert G. Bradstreet.

Special Dispatches to The Bee.
CHICAGO, June 17.—James Washington Sheahan, one of the most widely known journalists in the west, and for many years the leading editorial writer on the Chicago Tribune, died at half past 5 o'clock this morning, after lingering at death's door for many weeks. His ailment was extreme nervous prostration, and a general paralysis of the vital functions. Mr. Sheahan was widely known in the west, both from his intimate association with Judge Douglas and long connection with the newspaper interests of Chicago. He was born in Baltimore February 22, 1833, and received a liberal education at the Jesuit school at Frederick, Md. For several years he reported congress for the Associated Press. While he was thus employed he became acquainted with Senator Douglas, and at his instance came to Chicago for the purpose of publishing a democratic newspaper. He came here in 1854 and founded the Chicago Times, and made it a local power and the organ of the democracy in the west. It was reported, but has been here for the past three weeks, and has no idea, she says, where the major is. As soon as she was advised of the action of the Philadelphia court, she informed the major that she could not live with him, and they separated. She has not seen him since.

MISSOURI, June 17.—Major Nickerson's second wife did not leave the city with him, as was reported, but has been here for the past three weeks, and has no idea, she says, where the major is. As soon as she was advised of the action of the Philadelphia court, she informed the major that she could not live with him, and they separated. She has not seen him since.

CROOK AND HIS CAPTIVES.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
TUCSON, Arizona, June 17.—Col. Biddle arrived with five Mexican women taken from the Apaches. Crook is at Wilcox.

THEY WILL FIGHT.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The national rifle association have decided not to allow the American team to use the screw wind gauge in competitions at Wimbledon except in the international match. The Gazette regrets this decision and thinks that if the Americans are beaten they will be able to claim that they were handicapped because not allowed like English riflemen to use in preliminary contests exactly the same appliances they used in a match. However, says The Gazette, there are not wanting signs that the Americans may give the English a sound beating.

A HEAVY FAILURE.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
CHICAGO, June 16.—A season of extraordinary excitement prevailed on 'change immediately after the opening this morning, by a rumor freely bandied about that the firm of McGeech, Everingham & Co., who have for a long time past been looked upon as the heaviest dealers in land and other provisions on the Chicago board, had failed. This rumor was verified in a measure soon afterward by a member of the firm circulating among the members of the board and notifying all with whom they were interested in provision deals to close them out. Something in the nature of a panic appeared to seize the provision corner, and for a time the interest in the other trading was lost. The effect was seen at once in quotations of land and July option, which yesterday ran up to $11.75, and closed steady at $11.50. It sold down to $10.65 as the initial drop and then kept on descending the scale until $9.20 was reached, which would be equal in point of comparison to a drop of 40 per cent in wheat. Other options felt the effect in a like manner, but all were in a measure somewhat recovered in tone and at 11 o'clock the July option had gone back to $9.85, but subsequently again declined to $9.50. The effort to ascertain the extent to which McGeech had been operating failed, but upon application to the firm and members of the board of trade.

The liabilities of McGeech, Everingham & Co., will be very heavy. The failing market brought in its train plenty of rumors of other impending failures, but up to 11:30 there was nothing definite to report. Members of the broken firm declared to the Associated Press that they would make no statement of any kind before to-morrow. Peter McGeech, the head of the firm, is a resident of Milwaukee, and is styled "The Milwaukee milkman." He is reputed to have been the leader in the number of bull movements on both the Chicago and Milwaukee markets, and failed here two years ago. His name came prominently before the public two weeks ago by their refusal to receive a large consignment of land from Chicago on the ground that it was tainted, and over which disputed fact an investigation on the board is now in progress.

THE WATCHMAN OF LAST WEEK there is a drunken maudlin article which contains an infamous personal attack, so pointedly directed to a gentleman in this city, that there is no doubting who is meant thereby. To notice anything that appears in that slandrous and readerless sheet, is as a usual thing considered beneath the dignity of a person of respectability. But as has been truly said, "there are occasions when the significance of the accusation." What the animus of that scoundrelly and groundless attack can be it is hard to imagine, unless it be that the person assailed is an Irishman who has taken an active part and deep interest in advancing the welfare of his countrymen, or because of pure devilish maliciousness. But let that be as it may it is a brutally iniquitous assault upon a character that challenges the closest scrutiny, and is in entire keeping with the nature of the disreputable and contaminating sheet in which it appears. I am authorized by the gentleman referred to in the article, to pronounce that part of it charging him with having sent anonymous letters to certain employes about some one, as a circable, contemptible lie, "made out of whole cloth," and to demand the production of the letters in question for examination and comparison by well-known and honorable gentlemen, with the handwriting of the accused. To those who are personally acquainted with the gentleman whose reputation is sought to be blackened, this denial is unnecessary. It is made for the benefit of the many who know him only by name.

If the above request be not complied with, or the charge retracted, the author of the article must stand before this community branded, as he is already, a liar and slanderer.
G. B. T.

PERSONAL.
Oliver N. Lackey, a retired merchant from Hornellsville, New York, and Chief Clerk Newman Jamison, of the Pullman headquarters at Jersey City, are registered at the Paxton. A BRIEF BUT DECISIVE PRIZE FIGHT.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
STREUBENBURG, June 17.—A prize fight, short but terrific, was fought yesterday afternoon in Colliery township, fifteen miles from here, between Tom Duffy, superintendent of the Cherry Hill mines, and Peter Murphy, a miner. Both are young men and about 175 pounds each. Only five rounds were fought, but Murphy was whipped and terribly punished. There were 300 spectators. The affair wound up in a riot.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA
Works through the blood, regulating, toning and invigorating all the functions of the body.
Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.
RATNHAM, MASS., ABE 12, 1872.
C. I. HOOD & Co., Gentlemen—
I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my head was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had many other doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I bought it, and I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.
I am gratefully yours,
EDWARD J. WHITMAN.

BILIOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE.
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
MRS. C. I. HOOD & Co., Gentlemen—
I send me by express two bottles of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. My preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She feels much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of your medicine since last spring, and what little she has taken is from some good, and we must have it in the house.
Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

SUNDAY PICNICS. A Kentucky School Exhibition Suddenly Closed with a Funeral.

A Jealous Hibernian, in Chicago, Displays His Prowess as a Cutthroat.

The Bodies of Two Women Reduced to Dust—Sunday Sabbath Stiffs.

A School Exhibition.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
GREENBURG, Ky., June 17.—During a school exhibition at Sulphur Well, Metcalf county, Marshall Henry Beauchamp asked J. B. Winfrey and J. Price to assist from making a distance. Winfrey and Price opened fire and Beauchamp returned it. Mr. Farland, a bystander, was shot dead. Beauchamp was mortally wounded. A lady, Miss Phillips, was struck on the cheek. The negro has not been heard from since. He is supposed to be dead in the bushes, where he hid. Winfrey escaped injury; Price was badly wounded. No arrests.

A Razor Cut.
CHICAGO, June 17.—On North avenue to-night, Thomas McQuire, a dock laborer, met Mrs. Mary Little, proprietor of a saloon, and cut her throat with a razor, which he then turned on himself. The woman died in a few minutes and the man will probably recover. Jealousy was the cause.

A Lively Fight.
NEW HAVEN, June 17.—A serious fight occurred at the steambath landing to-day. Officers attempted to arrest a drunken passenger of the Grand Republic. They were resisted by the crowd, and several officers and others severely beaten.

Stabbed With a Pin.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
BOSTON, June 16.—Bernard J. Mahan, 43 years of age, was fatally stabbed in the neck Saturday night, with a sharp pin, in the hands of a dissolute woman named Liz Finnegan. Mahan had refused to drink in her company.

The Bellevue Blazing.
CINCINNATI, June 18.—The Bellevue house, a well-known hotel, was the head of Elm street is on fire since midnight and still burning at 1:30 a. m. The house is valued at $50,000.

A Hunting Party.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The sheriff of Dunklin county, Mo., with a posse of fifty men, is hunting for a man named Hayden, who last Wednesday killed Capt. C. L. Johnson, who resided near Kellett, by shooting him.

Krum Turns Up.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Judge Chester Krum, whose absence caused so much comment for several weeks past, returned to the city to-night with a sharp conference with his father and some friends. Nearly all the statements which have been published about him were news to him and excited surprise. He would not be interviewed. He said he would prepare a statement for publication in a day or two.

Two Bodies Cremated.
Special Dispatch to The Bee.
WASHINGTON, Pa., June 17.—The remains of Mrs. Bertia Blecher, who died in New York on the 30th, were put in the retort at the LeMoine furnace at 9 o'clock last night, and the ashes removed at midnight. She was a German, and a member of the United States cremation company. The ashes will be sent to Carlshaus, Germany. The body of Mrs. Cornelia Wolberg, wife of Simon Wolberg, a mining broker, of New York, arrived at 11 o'clock this morning, and was taken immediately to the crematory and placed in the retort. When the ashes are lifted they will be sent to her residence and put in an urn and placed on the parlor mantel.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Works through the blood, regulating, toning and invigorating all the functions of the body.
Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.
RATNHAM, MASS., ABE 12, 1872.
C. I. HOOD & Co., Gentlemen—
I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my head was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had many other doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I bought it, and I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.
I am gratefully yours,
EDWARD J. WHITMAN.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is sold at all druggists. Price $1, or six large bottles for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & Co., Lowell, Mass.
