THE BEE PUBLISHING CO., PROPS. E. ROSEWATER, Editor.

Another colored cadet has been admitted to West Point and the agony has again begun.

The Fort Collins contingents of the Republican are more interesting than disinterested.

To get even with Evans is now the burning desire of forty ousted internal revenue collectors.

General Crook will shortly be in Omaha. The old Indian fighter should receive the reception he deserves.

Italy records the latest theatre horror. Fourteen years is the average life of a theatre before it is destroyed by fire.

And now Georgia has been struck by a cyclone. The new south is bound to keep up with the times if it takes a town to do it.

When Major Baird, formerly of General Miles' staff, rises to make a few remarks on the surrender of Chief Joseph, an ambulance will be needed to carry off the dead and dying.

Kansas City is flooded, but Omaha is happy that there are no symptoms of a repetition of her experience of two years ago, when the Big Muddy took possession of the river bottom.

Two fire-eating Virginia editors are seeking each other's gore according to the code of honor, and the fervent wish is expressed that both may be satisfied in their desire for satisfaction.

Nebraska and Dakota are consolidated into one internal revenue district, but the fees will be tied to the York county Post, who is at present firmly planted in the hole formerly occupied by Lorenzo Crounse.

It is time for the dog law to be put in force. Omaha has too many curs running at large making day dangerous and night hideous.

There is no lack of discipline of one kind in the army. During 1882 there were 8,319 court martials and 131,434 minor punishments inflicted by commanding officers, an average of an offense and a half for every officer and man.

Beecher's seventieth birthday was celebrated on Monday in Brooklyn. Mr. Beecher has lost much of his old influence through the country since his trouble in 1875, but at home his eloquence and magnetism still maintains its former sway.

Steve Dorsy says that General Garfield offered him a place in his cabinet. Dorsy neglects to say that the position was not that of postmaster general. But perhaps this explanation is unnecessary.

The Republican says that the Union Pacific is the heaviest taxpayer in Omaha. This is probably true. The Union Pacific is by many hundreds of thousands the heaviest property-owner in Omaha.

The campaign about of the New York Sun is being generally copied by the democratic press. Turning the rascals out may be an issue in the coming campaign, but putting the rascals in will certainly be a counter issue.

This is the "acoundly scheme." It is acoundly simply because the Union Pacific railroad is interested in the Colorado stone. According to the Bee this corporation, constituting the heaviest tax-paying institution in the city, has no right to offer for sale in our markets the stone which it has quarried from the Colorado mountains.

So the Union Pacific is "interested in Colorado stone which it has quarried from the Colorado mountains." Having seized the entire coal business, and confiscated the elevator interests in Nebraska, the Union Pacific proposes to monopolize the paving of Omaha, and bribe off and drive away all other competitors in this city. The scheme stands exposed.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

Brighter skies and more cheering crop prospects have measurably improved the local business situation and increased the feeling of growing confidence which has been manifest for several weeks past in all legitimate trading.

The sudden depreciation in prices has had, if anything, a quickening effect upon the movement of provisions for consumption and export, and will be likely to infuse still greater activity into the foreign trade in grain as well as in hog products as soon as confidence shall have been restored to the markets.

As corn is the food basis of pork (dear corn making dear pork), a serious drop in provisions is at once followed by a decline in corn, and in times of speculative excitement wheat sympathizes with it.

Has Crook disobeyed orders? That is the question which is at once suggested after reading the Washington dispatches which treat of the disposition of the renegade Apaches.

General Crook has yet to be heard from. There was a good deal of talk about his violation of treaty obligations until he returned triumphant from his victorious campaign in Mexico with 300 red-handed Apaches in his train.

General Crook's explanation of his energetic flank movement on the Interior department will be delivered in person at Washington. Still there may be a court martial.
