EXPRESSLY FOR HANCOCK

The Superintendent Handsomely Remembered by the American Express Boys.

There was a mysterious gathering of express men from various points of the compass yesterday, the arrivals being so numerous, and their manners being so strangely sly, that the uninitiated were greatly puzzled to know what was going on. The expressman took shady ways to get to the Ogden house, and there kept out of the way until they had all got together, and then sallied out on their raid. They fell into line, marched down Broadway, and made a successful capture of W. J. Hancock, the superintendent of the American and Wells-Fargo express company. That gentleman was set-ting quietly at his desk, attending to the many duties before him, when he was surrounded by employes from far and near. Assistant Superintendent F. A. Clark served as spokesman for the party, and explained as best he could, wasting little time in attempted flights of oratory, that the employes desired to express their appreciation of Mr. Hancock as a man and as an official, and had joined in pre-senting a testimonial of their regard. He led Mr. Hancock to the window and pointed out the gift, which proved to be fine horse, harness, elegant carriage, all complete, standing across the street, Mrs. Hancock and their little boy having been brought in it from their home to be present on the occasion. Mr. Hancock was pretty well broken by this sudden but pleasurable sort of a shock, but he gathered himself up and succeeded in expressing thanks. The outlit cost in Chicago $1,000, and the gift is made more valuable for the fact that it is an exproesion not merely of the regard of a few, but of all the employes of Mr. Hancock's division, extending over Iowa, Nebraska and Colorado.

The following were present on the appy occasion:

A little boy living near Creston was bitten by a rattle snake one day last week. A physician was called in but the boy was beyond the reach of medical aid, dying in a few hours. It is reported that a quart of whisky was administered in less than an hour to the child as an antidote, and it is a question in some minds whether it was the whisky or the snake bite which killed him.

Farm Drainage. The subject of farm drainage, which below that all the fish in Lake Bigler was some years ago much discussed, is were coming down the flume. A few receiving a good deal of attention in seconds later a school of fish struck the states where the need of it is most felt.

In one county in West-Virginia there are turn sticks of timber over the edge of the said to be over 300,000 feet of tile drains, which have improved the land many fold beyond the cost of the work. The land lies along the Kanawha, and much of it suckers, and they came in irregular numwas almost valueless until brought into bers, about six inches long, and all alive productiveness by artificial drainage. In Ohio and Indiana the good results of flume, and the workmen took them away money expended in this way are everywhere seen. Mr. G. M. Harrison, at a recent meeting of the Ohio Drainage association, said that the profit on good drainage is from twenty-five to one hundrad var cent a very. He spoke of one dred per cent a year. He spoke of one county in Indiana where the yield of wheat is had been increased by draining from nine and one-half bushels to nineteen bushels, and from thirty-one bushels of corn to seventy-one. At the same time there was fully sixty per cent decrease in malarial diseases.

This time was kept up for hearly hair an hour, when they got beautifully less, and then ceased coming altogether. They were mostly brook trout. Among the good results of drainage, Mr. Harrison said, it is of incalculable benefit to the public roads; it does away with much of the mud about the farm buildings, and, most important of all perhaps, it drive away mortages from a farming community.

I was laid low by an attack of Bronchitis and Minister's Sore Throat, and my life was almost despaired of, when my doctor said try S. S. S. I hesitated for some time, but I was afraid of being permanently laid aside from the active duties of my ministry, I decided to give the preparation a fair trial, and after persevering in its use I found complete rellef, and am enjoying excellent health. I am clearly of the opinion that Swift's Specific is one of the best Alteratives and Blood purifiers in existence, and I take pleasure in recommending its five curative qualities to others afflicted as I was.
