

THE DAILY BEE. OMAHA.

Wednesday Morning, July 11. LOCAL BREVITIES.

The river is again on the rise. The fire hydrants are being painted green. The new plat of Pratt's addition was filed with the county clerk to-day.

A few drunks and other ordinary cases were disposed of in police court yesterday. Missouri Pacific train leaves only at 5:45 a. m.

Mrs. Jennie Allison has left for Mt. Corral, Ill., where her mother resides. To be gone for about a month.

Judge Anderson decided the "valley" dog case in favor of the plaintiffs, Gottlieb Zimmernann and Lang & Foltick.

Office Hinchey has received his voucher for $30 for the capture of one of the deserters who broke out of the guard house at Ft. Omaha recently.

It is reported that the Plattsmouth Journal suspended its daily issue with Monday night's paper. It is to be hoped that the report is unfounded as the Journal was a great credit to Plattsmouth and ought to have been well supported.

The first opening concert of the season will be given next Saturday evening on Capitol Hill from 5 to 7 o'clock, by the Omaha Musical Union orchestra and brass band. The programme will be published in a day or two.

The Antiquarian book store was removed on Saturday to Cronin's new block and some of the stock left over Sunday in the old place, Saturday night, thieves broke into the old stand and carried away a number of books, probably, like Eugene Aram, having a literary taste and no other means of gratifying it.

Mr. John Miller, manager of The Republican city circulation, is able to be out again after a serious illness. John came near passing in his checks, but we hope he is good for many years to come, and his friends are heartily glad to see him back at work.

The children and friends of the Eighteenth Street Sunday school attending the picnic to-day, (Wednesday), July 11, will meet at the church at 9 o'clock. The street car will leave at 9:30. There will be a wagon at the church to care for the baskets.

A new settler in south Omaha, recently built a corral and proceeded to impound all his neighbors cows found roaming at large. He took up six belonging to one party, and kept them until the owner claimed his stock. In the meantime milking them regularly and appropriating the milked fluid. He charged the owner six dollars for the cows and the latter then turned around and sued him for the value of the milk. He was fined $3 and costs, amounting to $7.25, but that the net profits of the operation were small.

Messrs. Elkies, Wildener, Rhodes, Maurau and Thomas, of Philadelphia, arrived in the city yesterday and are at the Millard. These gentlemen are the principal officers and members of the United Gas Improvement Co. of Philadelphia, with whom the Omaha Gas Manufacturing Co. has contracted to lease its works for a year from July first. It is supposed that they came on to see about the business. They are now running the gas works, and by October first will have in operation their new process of water gas.

Dr. Chas. O'Reilly, of Detroit, Mich., central treasurer of the Irish National league, is now in receipt of a draft for $157, furnished by the Emmet Monument association of Omaha. This sum is the net proceeds of the very successful ball given under the auspices of the Emmets a short time ago for the relief of the Irish famine sufferers. In deference to a universal desire of the members, the money was withheld until the machinery and central offices of the National league were in perfect working order. Dr. O'Reilly is requested in the letter remitting the amount to send it to those portions of Ireland where it will do the most good in alleviating distress and starvation. Another evidence of the acknowledged generosity of the Emmets in relieving suffering.

The wife of one of our best local lights had a little experience with the telephone yesterday, which she is anxious not to have given away. She rang the bell and called for a number, say 999. The connection was made, but she got 998 instead of the number she called for. She wanted a butcher shop, and intended to order meat for dinner. "Hello," said she. "Hello," was the reply. "How is your meat to-day?" "What did you say?" "Have you good meat to-day?" "I don't understand you." "What sort of meat have you for dinner to-day?" "I do not understand," and the lady heard her inquiry repeated, and the sound of laughter came over the telephone. "Who is that talking?" she asked. "Bishop Clarkson" was the reply. "Who are you?" The phone was hung on the hook in short order, and the connection rung off by the lady, who happened to be one of the bishop's parishioners. She is anxious not to have her name known, and as the reporter is the only one except herself and husband who know it, it shall remain a secret.

BROCKEN'S ARMED RAIDS. The great medical wonder of the world. Warranted to speedily cure Burns, Cuts, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Chancres, Piles, Chilblains, Corns, Tetter, Cancer, Headache, and all skin eruptions, guaranteed to cure in every instance, or money refunded. 25 cents per box.

DEATH RECORD. Mon. William Carnaby Called from Earthly Duties. The many friends of Hon. William Carnaby will learn with surprise and sorrow that he is no more numbered among the living.

A dispatch was on Monday received by his sons from Rawlins, Wyoming, stating that he was dead. Although no particulars were received, it is supposed that some affection of the brain was the cause. Mrs. Carnaby was with him at the time of his death.

The deceased was one of the oldest employees in the U. P. shops and was respected and loved by all who knew him. Such was his personal worth and popularity that in the fall of 1882, he was elected to the state legislature, notwithstanding the contest made by two opposing candidates. He served in that body in a manner to reflect credit on himself and his constituents and made a life of usefulness. He leaves a fine family, some of his sons being already grown to maturity and following in their father's footsteps. Mr. Carnaby was just past sixty-one years of age.

The remains will arrive in this city this morning, and the funeral will take place at 2 p. m. Thursday, from the residence, No. 1412 17th street.

THE WILD WEST.

Buffalo Bill Makes a Big Hit in the East.

Incidents in His Camp Life--A Trip to Europe.

Mr. William McCune, formerly of the police force and now assistant general manager and superintendent of the camp for Buffalo Bill's "Wild West," is in the city, having arrived from Boston on Saturday.

Mr. McCune reports the "Wild West" as having made an immense success on its trip east, and Messrs. Cody and Carver are reaping a golden harvest from their enterprise.

The show exhibited at all the leading towns from Omaha east and averaged from $2,000 to $3,000 per day in its receipts, which often went away above those figures. The only favorable grounds for the show were the fair grounds at each place visited, a half mile or more, being indispensable to a good exhibition. For this reason the party did better at towns like Peoria, Bloomington, Columbus, Buffalo, etc., than at cities like Cincinnati, where they had to give their entertainment in the Zoological Garden and were cramped for room. It was at the latter place, however, that things were not so good as a regular system and while the attendance was not what was desired they left the city with a balance in their favor.

The reported "split" between Cody and Carver, Mr. McCune says, is without foundation. The two men are working harmoniously and there is no reason to anticipate any dissolution of partnership.

Since the "Wild West" left Omaha there have been two births and three deaths in the party. While at the Zoological Gardens one of the Indian squaws gave birth to twins. The tent in which she lay was a foot deep with water but before the children were ten minutes old the mother got up, and taking one of the paposes in each hand, as a cat would take its kittens in its mouth, she walked over to the horticultural hall and showed them to Bill, asking him what he thought of them. She then returned to her tent and wrapped the children up in blankets, as tightly as if they had been wooden dolls. Unfortunately, one of the twins died at Springfield, Ohio, and the other at Dayton.

Of course the "Wild West" has had its vicissitudes like similar organizations. They had considerable trouble with the Lake Shore road, over which they hired a special train to take them to Buffalo. The train was two hours late getting in each hand, as a cat would take its kittens in its mouth, she walked over to the horticultural hall and showed them to Bill, asking him what he thought of them. She then returned to her tent and wrapped the children up in blankets, as tightly as if they had been wooden dolls. Unfortunately, one of the twins died at Springfield, Ohio, and the other at Dayton.

Some trouble was experienced with the Indians, whom Buffalo Bill fed too well, furnishing them with steak and other good grub which they did not use. They got independent and sassy and wanted pie and cake and if they saw anything on the table at the headquarters tent which they did not have they made a grand kick. The trouble was that Bill treated them too well.

The party is now at Boston, where the managers are awaiting the arrival of a gentleman who will confer with them in regard to a trip to Europe. It may be decided to go across "the big pond" this season, but if not, they will work their way back west to Omaha, go south during the winter and go to Europe early next spring.

All in all, the show is making as decided a success as its friends could wish for it, and it bids fair to become famous all over the world.

AN OBNOXIOUS ORDER.

The Military Headquarters to be Closed on Sunday. The Officers not to Meet Even for Social Intercourse.

General Howard believes in Sunday observance. He observes Sunday himself by engaging in general missionary work throughout the city and state, and he was naturally pained last Sunday to find several staff officers opening their mail at headquarters at a time when citizens generally who felt so inclined were engaged in their devotions elsewhere. As a consequence the staff on Monday were presented with a general circular which forbids in the future all work on Sundays in the military headquarters, and in addition prohibits the use of any of the rooms in the headquarters building for informal social intercourse among the staff. This little bombshell is indignantly rejected by the staff as a needless piece of pedagogical interference. No work has been required of clerks for years on Sunday. Officers whose mail comes to their office generally in Omaha, as at every other military headquarters, spend an hour or so on that day in opening it and in answering their private correspondence. At General Howard's headquarters a regular hour of informal social intercourse is held every Sunday in the commanding general's room and it is the invariable custom at military posts for the officers to meet for an hour or so every Sunday and talk over army matters socially. General Howard's paternal effort to regulate the habits of his staff in respect to Sunday observance is violently resented and there is a great deal of suppressed indignation among officers, some of whom having served longer in the army than General Howard, object to being placed on a par with the Sunday school scholars whom the general delights to address.
