THE BEE PUBLISHING CO., PROPRIETORS. E. ROSEWATER, Editor.

The decision on the injunction suit will be handed in this morning.

With over 150,000 people who cannot write their own names, the democratic majority in Kentucky is nothing to be surprised at.

Current opinion in Washington is to the effect that the president will have to relieve Revenue Commissioner Evans before congress meets.

Paving in Omaha has been put back two months by the ringsters and rascals whom the citizens have elected to guard their interests and to voice their wishes.

That sanctimonious old fraud, Rev. Delamater, has given up politics and gone to preaching. The Denver Methodists deserve the cordial sympathies of the country.

The Emma mine is beginning to yield heavily. Pomeroy Schenck and Edwards Pierpont ought to make another trip to London. All the English investors have not been led to death yet.

The Chinese in San Francisco are getting even with the Mongolian exterminators. Laundries have recently raised their rates from fifty to seventy-five per cent on account of the scarcity of help.

Filling in the stagnant pools and grading and sewerage the streets is well enough in its way, but alleys, back yards and foul gutters must be cleaned if Omaha expects to escape the coming epidemic.

Business men are taking a good deal of interest in the city council nowadays. The proper time to interest ourselves in city affairs is just before election. Delays have proved dangerous more than once.

St. Paul is crowing loudly over the assurance of a million dollar hotel to be built by Denis Ryan, the Colorado mining millionaire. The citizens have donated $270,000 towards the building and 900 feet of front on three streets have been donated.

Dennis Kearney has gone back to the Pacific coast. His mission east was a flat failure. Workingmen refused to listen to a paid advocate of the monopolies who tried to persuade them that railroad rates ought to be raised in order to enable the corporations to pay higher wages to their employees.

Speculation in the New York stock exchange is going begging at $23,000. Two years ago $200,000 was asked and given. This shrinkage is a fair indication of the dullness of speculation in stocks.

A Kearney dispatch to THE BEE expresses on behalf of the citizens of that place great indignation that the president refused to make a speech as he passed through Nebraska on his way to the Yellowstone park.

The Northern Pacific railroad will be completed and opened in September, just 10 years after the financial disaster which overtook the enterprise in 1843, and which precipitated the long commercial depression.

FIGHTING THE STEAL.

Mr. Silvers, of Lincoln, is doing the public a service by opposing the job by which W. H. B. Stout secured the capital contract on a bid of $41,000, higher than that of the lowest responsible bidder.

Mr. Silvers is a well-known and a respectable citizen of Lincoln. No one who has ever had business relations with him, doubts his ability to perform his contract.

It remains to be seen whether the supreme bench will rise superior to the malarious atmosphere of Lincoln. The case is purely one of equity. It is doubtful whether even under a distorted construction of a law, especially drafted to make competition difficult if not impossible, the board had an equitable right to permit the state to be swindled out of $41,000.

It is due no less to Mr. Silver himself than to the taxpayers of Nebraska, that a full presentation of the case should be made and an early decision arrived at.

The civil service reformers have been holding a convention at Newport in which George William Curtis was the principal speaker. Mr. Curtis seems to have joined the Arthur converts if the following language referring to the attitude of the president to the reform movement means anything.

ALBION, Boone Co., Neb., Aug. 3. To the Editor of THE BEE: I have got through for the present mowing weeds and I have got time to think, and I think it is about time that the managers of the trunk roads get together to determine how much of a raise in rates the business will bear.

The republicans had enough votes to elect a democrat or the devil before an anti, even though he had been a life-long republican, and one of the defenders of the Union.

Cuban Belles at Saratoga. The maidens dress becomingly in light silks and snowy swiss and fluttering ribbons, and their little feet are hidden in the most elaborately embroidered slippers from Havana.

The office seekers are now making for the Yellowstone Park as fast as steam and stage will carry them.

The Ohio democrats are beginning to strongly suspect that Judge Hoadly has kicked over the political bucket of milk in that state, and there is much dissatisfaction expressed over the outlook which a month ago was so brilliant for democratic success.

PERSONALITIES.

Dennis Kearney will summer at the gas works. Sexton Pendleton is said to be an occasional victim of the gout.

William K. Vanderbilt finds it necessary to keep a stable of twenty horses at Newport. Queen Victoria is four feet eight inches high. Prince Albert was fifteen inches taller.

General Sherman passed calmly before the camera. Oscar Wilde thinks "it must be glorious to die in the Niagara rapids."

Edith Twentyman, a bar-maid at the Nelson wine vaults, Koswick, is claimed to be the handsomest woman in England, and her good looks are equal to her beauty.

Teeng, who manages the Chinese government interests in Europe, remains in dress a white shirt, a white necktie, a white waistcoat, a white vest, a white hat, and a white fur cap with three fox tails attached.

Dr. McCook, of Princeton, is one of the most eminent of the old generation of physicians in the United States.

The Duke of Marlborough has left everything that he could leave in his will to his younger and favorite son, Lord Randolph Churchill. The entailed estates, the national debt, and certain hereditary offices, of course, to Lord Blandford.

A remarkable scarf pin has been built for the central station. The central stone is one and a half inches in diameter, and is encircled by a ruby, an emerald, a sapphire and five other stones.

When T. B. Hunter, of Huntington, Pa., saw a stone too large for him to move on the railroad track near his home, and heard the roar of an approaching passenger train, he went crazy with excitement.

Miss Ada Parker is a girl of 19, who lives on a certain plantation two miles from Monroeville, La. For the last four years she has had full charge of the place upon which her widowed mother, sister and two younger brothers reside, supporting them all by her industry.

It is said that the czar of Russia has become a partial convert to the faith of modern medicine. At least the other night a spirit claiming to be that of a once prominent physician appeared, but the czar was dubious.

Gov. Butler is very stout, corpulent, one of his eyes is so low as to be nearly closed; his motions are sluggish and apparently irresolute; and with his physique it is hard to associate the energy, impetuosity, and the ability which he displays.

Mr. Pike is a well-preserved man of 65, a lawyer, and an honest man. His make-up reminds one of Senator Edmunds, although his hair is still hardly tinged with gray and his beard is black.

Mr. Pike has always been a good party man, but was never accused of any "machinery" tendencies. As long ago as 1850, '51, and '52 he was in the legislature, to which he was returned in 1875-'6, in both of which years he was speaker.

Mr. Pike has a large law practice and has accumulated a handsome fortune. Both he and Mr. Burns are self-educated men.

Spent Fifty Dollars. In doctoring for rheumatism before I tried Jacobs Oil. Used a 50-cent bottle of it, and got out in one week.

These Cuban families arrive here early in July, having come directly from their island home. They are usually very rich and are planters, tobacco merchants and professional men.

The dark-eyed beauties, and, indeed, the whole Cuban population, mingle enthusiastically in the life and gaiety of the place. The appearance of the men is familiar on the streets of New York, save that their Panama hats, swarthy complexions and white linen suits.

In September these damsels with midnight eyes, the mothers and fathers of children, all go back to New York, where they stop for a month, and then resume their journey homeward.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives an appetite, and imparts new life and energy to all the functions of the body. Try a bottle and realize it.

PECULIARITIES.

"Good morning, Mr. B. How do you do?" "Think it'll rain to-day?" "Well, hardly think it will rain to-day; still it may, hope not."

"How do you do, Mr. C. How do you do?" "Well, you, I should say it was cold." "Have some snow? I mean?" "Wouldn't wonder at all; still it doesn't look like snow."

"Hello, E. going to get a freeze, eh?" "No, I don't think this going to blow up a thaw." "There's where you're wrong, I tell you its going to freeze."

"Well, Mr. B., how is your case of dyspepsia coming on?" "Have you found a remedy for it?" "Or like this: 'My liver and kidneys flag in their work. Is there a medicine that will assist them in meeting nature's requirements?'"

"If Mr. B., or the other party accosted had used Burdock Blood Bitters he would reply: 'Yes, I have found a remedy true and good, one that has merit and is honest.'"

Let us add that the reputation of Burdock Blood Bitters is founded upon solid facts of fact, rather than down and clinched by sincere conviction. For all ailments arising from or associated with the blood and stomach, this medicine is peculiarly adapted, and gives unvarying satisfaction.

Atonic persons generally take it well, and feel the better for its digestive property. Those in normal health may eat almost any ripe fruit. The bland varieties are most wholesome and nutritious—strawberries, apples, peaches, grapes, and gooseberries.

Among other foreign fruits, bananas are wholesome. Dried fruits, and the skin of fruits in general, are indigestible. Nuts, the edible part of which is really the seed, contains much albumen and some fat in a condensed form, and are particularly difficult of digestion.

Fruit may be taken with a meal or on an empty stomach. In the former case it promotes digestion by its gently irritating effect on the mucous membrane of the stomach and intestine.

An aperient effect is desired it had better be taken in the morning before breakfast or between meals. A succulent and pleasantly acid variety is best for both of these purposes, while it is also a food. The quality of fruit which should be taken depends on the kind. If it belong to the bland nutritious class, a healthy person may now and then partake of it as freely as of any other wholesome food; but he will gain most benefit if he take only a little, and take it regularly.

Cooking removes much of the acidity from crude fruit and renders it lighter as well as more palatable. So treated, it is productive of good and no harm; but it is a fundamental principle that whatever fruit is eaten uncooked must be fully ripe, and not overripe. This may sound trite, and, indeed, the principle is commonly admitted; but not, it would seem, by all, for we still find people, and not a few, who will themselves deliberately take, and worse, will give to their children green gooseberries, green apples, &c., the very hardness of which, apart from their acid pungency, suggest their unfitness for digestion.

Such people use as food an acid irritant poison, whose necessary action is to cause excessive intestinal secretion, with more or less of inflammation. Hence arises diarrhea. On the other hand, fruit, which is overripe, in which fermentation has begun, is a frequent cause of this disorder, and equally to be avoided, and perhaps also more difficult to avoid because the insidious beginning of decay is not easily recognized. It should never be forgotten by any who incline to follow the season in their feeding, that the want of such precautions as the above may produce that dysenteric form of diarrhea, "British cholera," which is occasionally as rapidly fatal as the more dreaded Asiatic type of that disease.

Very Well Put. Why do we defer till to-morrow what we should do to-day? Why do we neglect a cough till it throws us into consumption, and consumption brings us to the grave? DR. WM. HALL'S BALISAM is sure to cure if taken in season. It has never been known to fail. Use it thoroughly according to directions. Persevere till the disease is conquered, as it is certain to be, even if it should require a dozen bottles. There is no better medicine for Pulpmonary Disorders. Sold everywhere.

STILL SMOLDERING. Burning Oil Still Perturbing the Business Center of Lincoln. The corner of Eleventh and O streets, in Lincoln, where the heavy fire occurred a week ago, is a desolate spot, still burning and smoking a little.

The different oils stored in Leighton & Brown's wholesale drug store have been inextinguishable, and have scented up that locality with their various odors, the smoke blowing mostly into the Commercial hotel.

Mr. H. W. Brown, of the firm Leighton and Brown, arrived in Lincoln with his wife and daughter Saturday night from near Augusta, Maine, where he had been visiting his father's family.

A peculiar fact is connected with this statement. Six years ago the retail drug store of Leighton and Brown was burned in Lincoln and Mr. Brown was visiting in the same place and received a telegram announcing the disaster on Monday, the same day and the same season of the year that he did this time.
