Republican County Convention.

The Republicans of Pottawattamie county will meet in a county convention at the court house in Council Bluffs, Thursday, September 13, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following offices, to wit: One state senator, two representatives, sheriff, treasurer, auditor, surveyor, superintendent of public schools, coroner, and members of the board of supervisors. Each township will be entitled to the following representation:

Table with 2 columns: Township Name and Number of Representatives. Includes Kane, Lincoln, Lewis, Madison, etc.

MINOR MENTION.

Bliss has new Fall Hats. See Joseph Reiter's fall goods. The city council meets to-night. Additional local on seventh page. Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's.

The murderer fled and the police have been laying low for him, expecting he would return, but not expecting themselves to any degree to find out his whereabouts.

Justice Schurz has made Annie Gibbons and Phileo Heaston's husband and wife.

Justice Abbott has tied the knot, making Fred Dill and Miss Della Hoffman one.

Prof. Glenn's new orchestra goes to Glenwood Thursday evening to furnish music for a grand ball to be given by the Light Guards of that place.

Ed Phillips, over whom a charge of assault has been hanging some time, was yesterday discharged by Justice Schurz, the prosecution failing to appear.

The grading of Broadway is now close up to the O. & N. W. railway tracks, but it is doubtful whether the company will raise its track. If not, there will probably be a row raised.

Mr. W. W. Dearborn has sold his fine B flat cornet, of the Antoine Cortor's make, to Prof. Gus Corvath, the leader of the Harmony band. The instrument is a very fine one, Mr. Dearborn having paid $20 for it.

Mayor Harris, of Red Oak, recently fined a saloon-keeper in that place $100 for selling beer to a minor. If some of the saloon-keepers here were traced up by a reminder of that sort, it would be a good thing for the boys around town.

Mrs. Schuster complained at police headquarters yesterday that a man named Springer had shot her dog. It appeared that the dog had bitten one of Springer's children, and the woman took the chief's advice and concluded to say no more about it.

The funeral services of Miss Inez Young, whose death was noticed yesterday in The Bee, took place yesterday afternoon at the family residence on Lincoln avenue. Rev. Mr. Lemen officiated, the deceased being a member of the Baptist church of which he is pastor.

In the circuit court, the case of the rural property owners who desire to be set outside of the city limits, so as to avoid city taxes on farming lands, was heard and submitted, but no decision was rendered. The case of Casady vs. Sapp, concerning the title to some property, was then taken up.

An Oakland livery man let out a team and buggy, Monday last week, to a man who said he wanted to go to Shelby, expecting to return at once. The man or the team not appearing by Friday last, some of the horse thief association turned out on the hunt. The team was found in this city Saturday. The man proved to be an insurance agent, and claimed that he was using the horses legitimately, in pursuit of unexpected business.

Mr. F. Drake, the superintendent of the telephone company, was in the city yesterday. He says that the company realizes that there have been defects in the Council Bluffs service, but the present management has spent about $2,000 in bettering it, and that it is the determination to make the service here such that there can be no further cause for complaint. All that is asked is a trial of the service as now improved.

DEATH TO DOGS.

It is to be dealt out to unlicensed canines after this week.

According to the ordinances all dogs are taxed a dollar a year, and if the tax is not paid before August 1, and additional penalty of fifty cents per month is added.

After September 1, it is the duty of the city marshal to arrest every dog on which no tax has been paid, and lock them up in the dog pound, and those not called for within five days after notice is given, are to be killed and buried by the marshal. The first of September draws near, and as there are very few dogs in proportion who have the necessary permit to bark at people, and feed off of human flesh, the edict of death will carry destruction throughout the city. It is claimed by the authorities that the ordinance will be enforced, and as the marshal is liable to $50 fine for neglecting to enforce the ordinance, it is not unlikely that war on the canines will break out next week. Those who have any pets of this sort, should protect them by the necessary tag on the collar.

BACK AGAIN.

Prof. Slattery Returns from a Vacation Spent Partly in a Hunt for His Brother's Murderer.

Prof. J. J. Slattery has returned from his old home in St. Louis, where he has spent most of his summer vacation. He is preparing to enter with more vim than ever upon his duties as principal of St. Joseph's academy, a position in which he has already won much success. The academy is being put in shape for the opening, which occurs next Monday, and everything now points to a prosperous year.

The news concerning the reward offered by the governor for the arrest of the murderer of his brother had already preceded him here. It was somewhat of a surprise to many of his friends and acquaintances, as when the news of his brother's death reached here, it was understood to be the result of an accident. The facts show that he was the victim of a most brutal murder. It appears that young Slattery, while serving as foreman in some St. Louis iron works, gave orders to one of the men, named John Flicker, who was a rough, early fellow, and, as was afterward learned, an ex-convict and a desperado. Flicker refused to comply, and commenced calling young Slattery all sorts of vile epithets, whereupon the latter very calmly but firmly warned him not to use such words to him, or he would put him out of the yards. The ruffianly fellow turned, and with another torrent of abuse, picked up a heavy piece of iron weighing several pounds, and threw it at young Slattery, a distance of ten or twelve feet, the chunk of iron striking him on the side of the head, causing a bad fracture. The wound was not deemed so very serious at first, as the young Slattery, after washing off the blood, walked to a dispensary near there, had the wound temporarily dressed until he could reach home and have his regular physician attend him. It was thought that he might recover, as he was a young man of excellent physique and great bodily strength and vigor, which had been well preserved by the best of habits, but in day or two he began to fail, and rapidly sank into death's arms. There are some who fully corroborate this account of the affair, and who say that not one angry word was indulged in by the victim of the brutal assault, even when the enraged workman was using such abusive language.

The murderer fled and the police have been laying low for him, expecting he would return, but not expecting themselves to any degree to find out his whereabouts. One officer, who got a glimpse of him, followed on his track for quite a ways, but he gave him the slip. By making this chase he was absent at roll call, having been two hours after the man. The officer, for "neglect of duty" was fined $10. This sort of discipline is not very encouraging, and the other officers naturally have let the affair slide by. The St. Louis papers have lately been lashing the police department about it, and Prof. Slattery has succeeded in getting the governor to offer $200 reward for the fellow's capture. This will doubtless be a very active hunt to be made for him, and if found it is hard to imagine any extenuating circumstances which he could possibly present to keep the full penalty of the law from falling upon him.

The new fall styles of hats will be opened to-day at Bliss.

No Bliss for Mrs. Bliss. Mrs. Caroline Bliss, who was under treatment at the insane asylum at Mt. Pleasant, is now released, and, in a lengthy communication to The Bee, airs up her course of grievances in detail, too fully in fact to give all of them to the public.

Among the provisions of the contract between the city and the waterworks, is that there shall be furnished to the city, without extra charge, water for fountains in the park, and also for six drinking fountains. The location of these are at the junction of Main and Pearl streets; on Broadway, near Bryant street; at the head of Union avenue, near Broadway; one at the Broadway Methodist church; one at the Fairview cemetery; and one at the corner of First and Graham avenues. The necessity for public drinking fountains is very apparent, and it is suggested that the council should at once order the fountains, and have them put in place that they may be of use from the very moment that water is turned on. The fountains should be arranged on the Humane society plan, providing a low basin for dogs, a higher basin where horses can drink, and of course a neat and convenient arrangement for mankind. Unless the fountains are soon put in place they cannot be put in until next spring. They are needed, and should be put in with the rest of the water works, and started into active operation as soon as possible.

The Prohibitionists. A meeting in the interest of prohibition will be held at Bloom & Nixon's hall next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, to organize for active work during the present campaign. All friends of the cause are urged to be present.

PLUCKED BY THE POLICE. The Proprietor of the California House Charged With Getting a Great Money--Other Troublesome Matters.

Most of yesterday was taken up in the police court by the hearing of testimony in regard to the charge made against Robert Tasscher, the proprietor of the California house, that he had got away with $30 belonging to a drunken patron of his house. Tasscher on first appearing in court was charged with keeping his saloon open on Sunday and on a plea of guilty was fined $14 including costs. He had just paid this and put up his pocketbook, when the second and more serious charge was laid against him, that of grand larceny. A man named Murphy, who had been working in the harvest fields of Crawford county was the alleged victim. He arrived here Sunday morning, and quickly added so much to what drinks he had already on board that he became very drunk. He fell in with one Jack Hogan a boarder at the California house, and after giving him a dollar, the latter guided him inside, and told the proprietor to take care of the man and the money. Hogan swore that Murphy pulled out his pocketbook and a gold piece and bill fell on the floor, and the proprietor picked them up, but he could not swear whether it was a $10 gold piece or $20. He too had been drinking. Another man named Hitchcock testified that he was in the barroom when the money was displayed, and that it was a $20 gold piece. It seems that after Murphy had been brought to the police station, and had told about his being robbed, Officer Morse was sent by the chief to the California house to see about it. Morse testified that the proprietor denied having had the man's money, and that he didn't believe the man had any money. A little after that Chief Field interviewed the hotel man, and he gave up a $10 gold piece and a $10 bill, and a memorandum book, claiming that was all the man had. The defense will be presented to-day, its general claim being that the proprietor took the money to take care of, because the man was too drunk to take care of it himself, and that the gold piece was $10 and not $20.

Murphy, who was the complaining witness in the above case, was fined for being drunk.

Sam Dobson and a girl who was registered as Kittie Crawford and who says her name is Melissa Gilbert, were before the court yesterday for disturbing the peace, they having indulged in a little row on the street. Each was fined $5 and costs. Each claimed the other was the attacking party.

Yesterday afternoon a tailor, Henry Miles, appeared in court with one hand covered with blood and his eye badly bruised, and insisted that the saloon man named Hansen on Broadway, was the fellow that hit him. The witnesses were called in and it appears that Miles had a row with another tailor in the alleyway, soon after which Miles started to come into Hansen's saloon, and the latter seeing his condition and fearing that he was hurt on another row picked him away from the door and wouldn't let him in. Hansen was discharged, he and several others testifying that Hansen never hit the man at all.

Prairie chickens and A. Booth's select oysters received daily at W. T. Braun's.

FIX THE FOUNTAINS. Council Bluffs Should get Them Ready for the Flow of Water.
