CURIOUS CHARACTERS.

Man Who Will Navigate the Yel lowstone and Missouri,

It is almost a stereotyped expres that Omaha, the gateway between the east and west, is the passage way of a great many curious characters who range from the east to the west, to say nothing later by those who watch the trains and the curiosities in the way of express and freight goods in course of their trip across the continent, sea lions, cargoes of tea, tons of hosiery, silk and wines, being The Restraining Order Denied in the common sights.

Occasionally something a little beyond the usual limit of fame or oddity comes along and on one was a passenger on Sunday's west bound U. P. train. This individual was from Connecticut and was on his way to Montana, where he expects to take the head waters of the Yellowpesterday we found him opening his mail and smiling over a letter he had just received. Upon being asked what good news he had learned he replied that it was not any good news but just one of the characteristic letters which he is constantly receiving from all parts of the country by receiving from all parts of the country by some letters stone for a starting point and go down to bracelets on his wrists. Conversation with him, however, showed him to be a man of considerable intelligence.

PAXTON ON FENCING.

He Declares the Decision in Regard to Enclosing Cattle Ranges

To Be the Meanest Given By Any Judge in Any Country.

The Matter to Be Taken to the Supreme Court and Congress.

Mr. William A. Paxton had just risen rom a comfortable dinner yesterday at the hotel which is graced with his name, and had come out into the rotunda, when the omnipresent BEE man who had been hovering about in wait for a victim espied him, and waiting until he had comfortably placed himself in one of the numerous arm chairs the reporter soared down upon

"You are so largely interested in the western cattle business, Mr. Paxton," said the reporter, "we would like to learn what you think of the late decis-ion by Judge Sener in regard to the fencing of government land by cattle

Wiping from his lips the last traces of ice cream with a silk handkerchief, lib-erally perfumed with heliotrope, Mr. Paxton said:

"That decision, sir, is altogether the most contemptible, THE MEANEST DECISION, ever rendered by any judge in any coun-try! That's my opinion of the decis "Were you largely interested in that part of the country?"

"Yes, I have considerable land, forty or fifty thousand acres altogether, "What do you use for fencing?"

"Barbed wire altogether."
"Where is most of this fencing done?"

continued the newspaper man as he jotted down the remarks of Nebraska's cattle king in his note book,
"Mostly Wyoming, I believe, very little in Nebraska, except what Coe and Carter, and I have put up."

Who lives in that region that would be disturbed by this fencing?"
"Not a soul lives there," said Mr.

Paxton, "save the cow-boys and the ranchmen. Not a soul to be disturbed. ONE ACRE IN FIFTY THOUSAND. tell you, that will ever bear anything at all. All its good for is cattle raising. A

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Peabody Case.

Which Will Now Go Over to the Oc tober Term of the District Court.

city of Omaha, the mayor, city council and board of public works, and the contractors engaged in the work of grading that prior to 1873 the city had establishward the plaintiff and her grantors, she owning lots 1 and 2, block 196, made valuable improvements on said property, worth at least $8,000, which improvetablished prior to 1874.

The plaintiff avers that after said im present month the city passed certain son, Champaign, Ill; S J. Faris, North Au-ordinances changing the grade of Jones burn, Neb. Frank P. Ireland, Nebraska City; and Fourteenth streets in such a way as to require Jones street to be cut eight feet below the old grade, and Fourteenth street seven feet below its old grade, in front of the property of plaintiff, alleging a local state of the property of pla ng also that no appraisers were appointed to determine the damage from said change of grade and that no damages in that be-half had ever been tendered her, although she would be damaged at least $5,000; that contracts had been made and the work of grading actually begun under these contracts, and that said ordinances and all proceedings thereunder were null and void on the latter account.

Judge Neville granted a temporary re-straining order until Saturday, at which ime the suit came on for a hearing. At that time the city filed its answer and numerous affidavits, alleging as its de-fense that the plaintiff's husband, Dr. James H. Peabody, had waived plaintiff's right to damages by signing papers to Plaintiff then filed a counter affidavit denying her husband's right to sign such waivers. The papers signed waived the damages which might be caused by the new grade of Fourteenth street. After arguments had been heard, the matter was taken under advisement until yesterday, when the court decided:

First. That if no waiver had been signed the court was bound to grant the injunction, as the case the made by the plaintiff clearly came under the purview of the decision of our supreme court in the case of Hurford vs. the City of PRICES, by Mail, Postage Paid:

The only q estion to be decided, then, was that of whether there had been such a waiver. That he felt convinced that plaintiff's husband had authority to sign for his wife, and that, as papers had been signed, waiving damages by the grade on Fourteenth street, the damages by reason of the grade on Jones street, which is one of the approaches thereto, were necessarily waived as well, as it would have to be graded to make that portion of the city passable. He thought the papers would operate as a waiver and therefore refused to grant the temporary

This is not considered as fatal to the case, which will be proceeded with and tried on its merits at the October term, when they will not only ask for a perma-nent injunction of the work, which will by that time be completed, but that the assessment of all taxes, paying for the grading of Jones street be enjoined.
