THE BALL.

A grand ball will be given at Crouse's hall on the evening of the 11th of October, for the benefit of the force and to assist them in paying for the new uniforms. Every citizen should buy a ticket and help out in some way, as a harder worked set of men is not to be found anywhere. The following will show the police business done in our sister city last month and it will be interesting to compare it with our own:

COUNCIL BLUFFS POLICE REPORT.

The number of arrests made by the Council Bluffs police during August numbered just ninety and nine, and Chief Field is mourning greatly because one black sheep is missing to make it even numbers. A BOWER OF BOOKS.

The New Quarters of the Antiquarian Book Store Man.

He Enlarges His Business and Answers the Demand for Good Literature.

About four years ago there was a snug little place on Farnam street, a space between two large stores, where an Antiquarian had established himself. People who have seen the picture of "The Antiquarian" perched precariously on top of a step-ladder, books under his arms, between his knees and under his feet, would imagine Mr. Schonfeld, Omaha's antiquarian, to be something like this. He is, as far as his love of books is concerned, but he is active and wide-awake to the demands of such a city as Omaha for the best kind of reading matter.

From Farnam street, Mr. Schonfeld went over to Douglas, and now to a fine, well-lighted room in Crouse's block, where he is visited by his old customers and many new ones in search of the

BARE AND BEAUTIFUL

In books, as well as the general run of current literature and fiction. In the center of the store has been erected a cherry dais, with six seats, an accommodation to customers both ornamental and comfortable, where they may sit and read or glance over the latest treasures of the antiquarian's trove. The store is lit at night by the electric light, and for customers Mr. Schonfeld has imported especially from Germany a large amount of picture to be given away.

The steady increase of art study in Omaha has created a demand for works of a high class on the artistic and on artists, so Mr. Schonfeld has provided a large stock of these, as well as elegant gift books of various styles of binding and rich editions de luxe. Among these WORKS ON ART we noticed John Winckelmann's celebrated History of Ancient Art, Mrs. Jameson's Sacred and Legendary Art and all her list of good books, Linckle's History of Art, all in the very latest editions.

To stay in this store a moment is to be overcome with a fascinating desire to buy, so many are the interesting books presented. There is a full range of works on philosophy and science, such as cannot be found everywhere, even in cities of this size. A stock of articles attractive to children has also been put in, and an immense invoice of decorative ornaments and pictures. The antiquarian book store is indeed, as it always was, the "Headquarters of the Literate."

PENALTY ON TAXES

The County Treasurer's Opinion of the New Revenue Law.

Remarkable Increase in the Total of Taxes in One Year.

The force in the county treasurer's office was found by a B&R reporter yesterday making preparations for the fall work. Taxes are due the first of October and by the new law becomes delinquent the first of January, so a big rush will occur between those dates.

"After the first of January," said Treasurer Rush, "a penalty will be attached of 5 per cent besides the 10 per cent interest per annum. Where this money will go is not yet certain; it will probably be divided upon into various funds. But the law will be almost imperative for the very reason that it will be impossible to make to make receipts daily. All we can do is to take the fastenough. We cannot make over an hundred of the taxpayers, till them and take out the receipts."

"The business of the office must be INCREASING VERY RAPIDLY," suggested the interviewer.

"Yes, the increase is something to speak of," said Mr. Rush, and he proceeded to take down some figures from his books. The total tax for the levy of 1882, exclusive of special taxes, was $205,055.83. The total levy of 1883, exclusive of special taxes, is $261,873.04, showing an increase of $56,811.16. That is quite an increase for our year, almost forty-six thousand dollars more.

This exception of cities of the first class does not apply to Omaha, because an amendment to the city charter, Sec. II, of chap. XII, provides that city taxes shall become delinquent January first.

THE PROGRAMME.

The procession occurs this afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The line will form on Douglas street, counter-march thence to Ninth, to Farnam, to Fifteenth, to Davyport, to Sixteenth, to Howard, to Fifteenth, to Harney, to Fourteenth, north, past the Paxton hotel, in review and dismiss. LITTLE ITEMS

Concerning the Progress of State Fair Arrangements.

The general superintendent can be found at the fair grounds every afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock.

R. Daniels, of Gilmore, has got his usual large number of entries in class 2, the cattle department; over fifty put on the books yesterday.

Exhibitors had better apply to President McIntyre for booth, stock and exhibitors tickets instead of the secretary or treasurer, as heretofore.

Major Chamberlain and Dan H. Wheeler, Jr., went over Monday to the Iowa state fair at Des Moines, and this afternoon President McIntyre, Treasurer Hartman, Churchill Baker, William Dally, and O. F. Druse and W. H. Clark, of Lincoln, are going over on a flying trip of forty-eight hours. This means that the whole party will come back after having secured a number of exhibits to come to our fair.
