THOSE "306" FELLOWS.

Lately medals with the names of their recipients inscribed thereon and marked "306" were sent to the men who blowed Grant's horn at the Chicago convention. That splendid compound, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is daily giving medals finer than these men ever dreamed of, i. e. the unsolicited compliments of thousands whom it has freed from aches, sprains, and pains. Some assert that these men at Chicago were not worthy of their medals but none of the purchasers of Thomas' Eclectric Oil dare deny that it is entitled to its medals. Its purpose in this world is not the promotion of any one man's interests, but the well being of every human soul. It nominates and elects to comfort with every application. It is certain efficient, and economical. It is obviously certain because it is unfailing, efficient because it relieves, and economical because a few drops will cure a bruise, a bite, an ache, or a lameness, a small bottle will cure rheumatism, or neuralgia, and inhaled or swallowed for catarrh and colds its effects are wonderfully beneficial. The sale of Thomas' Eclectric Oil attests its worth; vast quantities of it are shipped daily to all parts of the United States. Every bottle receives a medal—the unqualified and unstinted praises of its purchaser.

A "FIFTY-NINER."

Interesting Reminiscences of Early Days.

An Omaha Man Who Was a Pioneer in Colorado Journalism.

Henry Villard as a Western Newspaper Reporter.

The following from the Rocky Mountain News of September 5th, will be of interest to every reader of the BEE, and especially those who came out to the Great American Desert in the earlier days and helped to transform the almost unknown country into what it now is, the Garden Spot of America. The News says:

Mr. Thomas Gibson, who, with Mr. Byers, established The Rocky Mountain News, the first newspaper published in Colorado, and at present secretary of the Omaha board of trade, is visiting Colorado, and yesterday paid The News a friendly visit. Mr. Gibson is one of the '59ers, having come out with The News early in the spring of that year. He also established The Rocky Mountain Herald in May, 1860, but the latter proved a short-lived affair, changing into The Republican and Commonwealth, which was purchased and closed up by The News after the office of the latter had been swept away in the Cherry creek flood of 1864.

Simultaneously with the appearance of The News a printer named Jack Merrick, who had brought a small press with him from the east, came out with The Cherry Creek Pioneer The press of The Pioneer was bought up that day by Mr. Gibson and the paper was discontinued. The press was removed to Mountain City, located between what are now Central and Black Hawk. Here it was used in running off The Gold Reporter for a short time, but was subsequently removed to Golden, where The Reporter was edited by George West. Henry Villard, the present great railway magnate, president of the Northern Pacific railway company, worked on the paper in the capacity of a writer, being in Colorado as the correspondent of Boston papers.

Villard has long since ceased to be a newspaper man, the story of his metamorphosis as related by an eastern correspondent being as follows:

"Henry Villard ought to feel very grateful to Sam Cox. The latter says he started Villard out of Washington. Villard used to come in and see him nearly every day. Villard was a fair correspondent in Washington, but he was not much more. After a time he got into the rut and was going to plodding, when Cox stirred him up. 'Villard!' said Cox, 'are you going to stay all your life in Washington?'

"'I had not thought much about it,' said Villard.

"'Don't you think,' said Cox, 'that you have been here about long enough picking up mere gossip and news? An entire life of that sort of thing is no life for any one. Don't you think you had better get out of the town?'

"Villard took this thought and worked it out. He found that Washington had been to him a very valuable school, but that he had gotten about all the good there was out of it, and that if he were ever to make any money he must go to a commercial city. So he closed up his news bureau at the end of the season and entered speculative circles. There are plenty of men here who believe that Villard is the coming king of the street; that while he has not the brilliant, dashing genius of Gould, he is an eminently safe man, who pursues a conservative course more in accordance with the real business requirements of the situation. Brilliancy of management appears to be at a discount at the present time."

Villard is said to still have a vivid remembrance of his Colorado life and will attend the quarto-centennial meeting this month if the opening of the Northern Pacific does not interfere.

Mr. Gibson's recollection of the finding of gold in the Pike's Peak county is rather indistinct, but he asserts that it occurred in the fall of 1858, on the banks of the Platte river, about four miles from the center of the city as at present located. He had himself weighed ten ounces of as fine scale gold as he had ever seen for two miners, who had taken it out in a couple of weeks' work.

The question of the population of Denver in the early days has been much discussed. Mr. Gibson is of opinion that it never exceeded 6,000. There were at one time in the early days 30,000 people in the territory, and at another 50,000 en route, but most of the latter were turned back by the discouraging reports.

Mr. Gibson built the present Southern hotel in 1860 as an office for the Herald. He sold out his Denver interests in 1868, having gone back to Omaha to reside in 1864. He says he did very well in Omaha, having increased his wealth about eight fold. Here, he says, he would have made an increase of at least twenty fold.

Mr. Gibson had just returned from Groen Lake, near Georgetown, and speaks highly of his treatment there. He will attend the quarto-centennial.

AN ASHLAND ENTERPRISE.

The South Platte Lumber Company With a Capital of $200,000.

One of the largest of Nebraska industries, the South Platte lumber company, has lately been incorporated with a capital of $200,000, headquarters to be at Ashland. It is understood that Mr. David Dean, who has been for a long time manager, holds the controlling interest and has supervision of the whole business. Branches have been opened at Greenwood, in charge of Whit Dean; South Bend, under D. W. Folsom; Springfield, N. Sailsbury; Manley, J. W. Williams; Weeping Water, Ira Dean; Avoca, C. A Kaufman, and all of these houses are doing a large business, as the towns are rapidly improving and the surrounding country is developing to a wonderful degree.

THE NEW COMPANY

deals in lumber, lath, sash, doors, coal, lime, cement, etc. David Dean is president; Ira Dean, vice-president and C H. Folsom, secretary and treasurer. The prosperous growth of the company and its present extent and usefulness is a great thing for the South Platte country. The Messrs. Dean have been in the lumber business since 1869, and the first train over the B. & M. railroad brought lumber for their yards.

Beginning in Ashland a number of years ago in a small way, Mr. Dean, by careful and prudent management, and by giving his patrons just what they paid for and at prices that did not "smell" of monopoly, laid the foundation of a business that has grown and strengthened with each succeeding year, and now ranks among the first industries in the state and has invested many thousand dollars in this and neighboring towns. Being pioneers in business at stations on the newly built Missouri Pacific railroad, it becomes necessary that they should have a means of communicating with each other and the outside world through the medium of a banking system. The South Platte Lumber company established banks at Springfield and Avoca, and these have been so carefully managed by accommodating gentlemen that they have grown, and are now recognized institutions even outside of the business of which they were originally auxiliary.

The home office is in charge of Mr. David Dean, who has supervision of the company's business, and being raised in a lumber yard, so to speak, is perfectly familiar with the wants and requirements of this section. From him we learn that they expect to dispose of a thousand car loads of lumber during the coming year, as all indications point to a boom in building and improvements in the South Platte country. This company, like Alexander the Great, is looking for more worlds to conquer, and is now casting around to establish more yards, and before long we expect to chronicle the fact that it has located branches at various other points in this vicinity.

The Heathen Goes.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 7.—Proceedings in the Hong Kong Chinaman's habeas corpus case, before the supreme court, Justice Field and Judge Sawyer, proved to be a great absurdity. It turns out that no such Chinaman as the one named in the petition was on board the steamer, Arabia. The Chinaman, Ah Kuam, mentioned in the second petition to the court, when brought before the court, stated he had not made any application to be discharged from the vessel. Justice Field said the court had been trifled with, and ordered the case dismissed.

READY FOR THE FAIR.

The Exposition Grounds Visited by the Officers and Found in Good Shape.

Trains to Be Run from the Union Pacific Depot as Heretofore.

Some of the officers of the state board of agriculture rode out to the fair grounds last evening to examine their condition and found everything cleared up and in good shape to receive the immense list of exhibits the coming week. A large force of men is engaged in putting on the finishing touches, and carpenters are to commence work this afternoon on forty or fifty new stalls, which the increase in live stock entries demand; there are now 220 entries of cattle

TRAIN ARRANGEMENTS.

The difficulty about trains to the fair grounds has been all settled, and the Union Pacific will unite with the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad to carry the crowds out to the fair. Trains will leave the Tenth street crossing at 9 o'clock, and every hour thereafter through the day, and stopping at the Webster street depot of the St. Paul road, the loaded cars of that line will be attached without any delay, and the whole train proceed to the grounds. People who come from outside the city, or who live in South Omaha, will do best to take the train at the Tenth street crossing; those who live north can go the Webster street depot.

STOCK MEN

will do well on coming to the city to find William R. Porter, who will be be at the Webster street depot and at Harry Gilmore's office, U. P. depot, to give directions to all parties as to unloading and getting their stock onto the grounds. Mr. Carter will be in communication with the yardmaster of the B. & M., the yardmaster of the U. P. and the St. Paul road, and has every facility for sending cattle speedily to their destination.

SELLING TICKETS.

A ticket stand will be established about forty rods south of the main entrance to the grounds, on the right hand side, where those who wish to visit the grounds can purchase tickets, Treasurer Hartman has also made arrangements for the sale of state fair tickets at several places in the city.

An official programme will be issued daily, the right having been let to Reese and Morrison. This, and the daily papers, will be the only advertising allowed on the grounds, except individual advertising.

Governor Furnas came in from Brownville last evening with several baskets of silk cocoons, spun silk and other exhibits of the silk culture process. A lady living near Hanscom park will also exhibit a large assortment of cocoons.

The street car line will be fully equipped to meet the demand upon it with a large number of cars. Wagons will convey passengers from the terminus of the line into the fair grounds.

The rain that is so necessary now to make next week successful is approaching, There is every indication of a heavy storm, though it is a long time getting here. The fair grounds and the approaches are now in pretty fair shape, but they need a thorough wetting.

An effort is being made by the state fair managers to induce J. H. Potts & Son, the biggest exhibitors of cattle in the state of Iowa, to bring their herd over here, and it is not at all improbable that they will succeed. This will be a great addition to the Nebraska cattle display.

A special purse of $100 has been made up by Messrs. Poppleton, Redick, Dorsey and others for Thursday afternoon, for Nebraska four-year-olds. An entrance fee of ten per cent will be charged. This will be a lively contest of home horseflesh.

Louis Littlefield has been given the contract for milk for the whole fair grounds, and commenced the supply early this week.

A large number of speed entries were made last evening. A large number of fine horses are expected from St. Louis to go into the thousand dollar free-for-all race.

The Apache's Terms.

EL PASO, Tex., September 7.—The Times' telegram from Chihuahua says Major Osvale, commander of the Mexican troops of Casa Grande, received information that the Apache chiefs Chatta and Geronima were in the vicinity anxious to treat for peace. He started with 25 men to see them, found a strong force of Apaches, comprising 200 bucks, within fifteen miles of the military headquarters. At the interview the indians demanded the Mexican government give them twenty square leagues of land, furnish seed and plant the ground the first year; that troops should withdraw from the vicinity. The dispatches were forwarded to the Mexican government asking instructions.

Steamer Wrecked.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., September 7.—The mails of the Canimas, wrecked on Gull Island, are all lost. Nothing was saved. The passengers were dragged ashore at Gull Island by ropes. The ship struck at 3 o'clock in the morning, during a dense fog, a heavy rain and high wind and sea. The steamer's head was east by south when she struck the sand. In half an hour a portion of the steamer's stern was out, the forward part smashed and cargo floating around. The steamer Cabot with all passengers and crew left Trepassy at noon. She passed Cape Race at 2:30 and is due at St. John's at 8 this morning. Captain Fargular remained by the wreck.

The Right Kind of Civil Service.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., September 7.—The first examination before the state board of applicants for the position of state inspectors of mines, was concluded to-day. Out of thirty-four candidates, only four received certificates to the government of qualification for the place, namely: Walter Rutledge, of Alton; H. Cummings, of Braceville; Alexander Ronald, of Streator, and Robert Winning, of Carterville. Another examination is set for October 9.

His Ludship in Bosting.

BOSTON, September 7.—Chief Justice Coleridge was to-day the guest of Governor Butler. After breakfast the party went to the state house where Chief Justice Morton and other Chief Justices of the supreme and other courts were present, together with officers of the state and other prominent men. The informal presentation was followed by an inspection of the buildings. After lunch, Gov. Butler and Coleridge were driven to Harvard college and through the suburbs.

IF EATING WERE A FELONY.

IT COULD NOT BE MORE TERRIBLE PUNISHED THAN BY THE TORTURES OF INDIGESTION. WHY ENDURE THEM? EVERY DYSPEPTI KNOWS, OR OUGHT TO KNOW, THAT TARRANT'S EFFERVESCENT SELTZER APERIENT IS A SPECIFIC FOR THE COMPLAINT. WHY THEN SUFFER? IT IS SHEER FOLLY. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

The World and its Owners.

NEW YORK, September 7.—Answering certain inquiries concerning the ownership of The World newspaper the following authoritative statement is given as a correct one in the premises: The names of the three trustees of the publishing company representing The World are Joseph Pulitzer, John McGuffin and Melville C. Day, all recently from St. Louis, Mo. Joseph Pulitzer is president and John McGuffin is publisher and secretary of the company. Neither Jay Gould, nor any son of his, nor Gen. Eckert, nor any other human being connected with any monopoly or corporation own directly or indirectly one dollar's worth of interest in The World, or have any more to do with its management than the emperor of China. The World is free and independent, without a dollar of debt or a particle of obligation to anybody. There is no secret about the ownership of the paper. Its editor is its owner.

The Editorial Raid on Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, September 7.—The reception at the southern expositaon to-day to the editorial excursionists from Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama and Mississippi, was one of the most important events occurring in Louisville since the war. The party included about 500 persons. The mingling of the citizens of the north and south was productive of the finest feeling of fraternity. The address of welcome was delivered by Hon. Henry Watterson, who performed his task with eloquence and credit. W. P. Jones, of The Chicago Inter Ocean, responded to Mr. Watterson's hearty welcome, at the conclusion of which, an elegant lunch was served to the guests at Central park.

The Newburgh Monument.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., September 7.—The joint congress committee on the Newburgh centennial, met to-day in Washington's headquarters, and adopted a resolution in favor of a granite obelisk for the proposed monument, the largest they can get for the money available, $34,500. The committee desire it to be 100 feet high if possible, and if found necessary, will again advertise for proposals. It is proposed to have the cornerstone laid at the time of the centennial ceremonies.

Wyoming Stock Men Scared.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., September 7.—The stock men of Northern Wyoming believe grave damage will be done this fall by roving bands of Crows, Sioux, Cheyennes, Shoshones, Bannocks and Grosventres, off their reservations on hunting permits of Indian agents. There are no buffalo and but little small game in the country. The Indians killed thousands of cattle the last three years. Stock men have horses stolen, are robbed of food, and talk of organizing and driving the Indians back to their reservations. The agents are suspected of dishonesty and leaving the Indians to starve or steal.

The Police Took Their Artillery.

CHICAGO, September 7.—A number of genuine cowboys, with the customary accompaniments of broad-brimmed hats and buckskin garments and with revolvers and other warlike paraphenalia prominently displayed, appeared on the streets to-day. The chief of police seemed to think they might conclude to "take the town" and ordered them brought in. They came without trouble and explained that they had just arrived with a lot of cattle. Pending the continuance of their visit the police took charge of their artillery.

A Huge Feast of Crow.

GREY CLIFF, Mont., September 6.—The third section of the Villard excursion party arrived here this evening in time to witness the war dance of the Crow Indians, in which 100 took part. The ceremonies were conducted to-night by Chief Two-Belly. The town was alive with Indians. It is estimated that no less than 2,000 Indians were present. All passengers on the train, including ladies, left the train and walked some distance to the open prairie where the grounds were lighted for the occasion by Indians bonfires.

Toledo for Postal Telegraphy.

TOLEDO, September 7.—The produce exchange to-day adopted the report of its committee recommending the passage by congress of a law providing for the construction of the government postal telegraph lines on the basis of the proposed bill of Senator Edmunds. The report opposes the purchase by the government of existing lines.
